That when the Commiſſioners were ready to enter into a real Treaty, grounded on their powers, the Spaniſh Ambaſſador confeſſed he had none. That the Emperor ſending an Expreſs into Spayne, and aſſuring them, that he would procure ſuch powers as were requiſite, they had worne out four Months more. That, at laſt, there is come, and confidently enough preſented, a thing like, and by them called, a Plenepotence; but ſo full of abuſe, that it forceth him to conclude, that we can expect nothing from thence but Scorne or Deluſion. Though, in the Condition wherein they are, in neede of freinds, he is amaſed, that they ſhould thus induſtriouſly looſe them by trifling. That a little before, the Mediatours had ſettled the Treaty in a forme: that is, that the Emperour ſhould firſt declare what, & how he would reſtore, for the Lands in the lower Palatine, remitted by the Duke of Bavare to him; and for thoſe held by the heyres of Inſpruck, Mentz, & Darmſtat. Then, that the Duke of Bavare ſhould declare, for the Dignitye & Upper Lands; and then, that the Conditions of Confœderation ſhould be propoſed. That they now expect the Emperors anſwer, who hath taken upon himſelfe to conclude & execute for Spayne, upon which he (Sir Thomas) has choſen to relye, as vpon the Head of the Empyre.

17. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas, 23 March 1641-2. 9.

Concerning the Matters before rehearſed; with his Opinion, that if he ſhould breake off & returne, the Emperour would ſend to His Majeſties Gates, & offer that, which they will not give, while they have hope of our Patience, or relye on our owne home Troubles; for this Protraction

Num. 1901.

Protraction of the firſt Anſwere doth block vs up, ſo that He cannot lay hold vpon the ouvertures of the Duke of Bavare. That the Arch-duke Leopold doth ſtiffly refuſe the Charge of Flanders with the Title of Governor; but requireth that of Regent, and to chooſe all his owne Counſell: with condition, that if he marry, and have Heyres males, that they ſhall inherit it, as was agreed vnto the Arch-duke Albertus. But Sir Thomas cannot believe the Spaniards will give that away which is their owne; when they will not reſtore that they uſurpe with injurye.

18. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 30 March, 1642. 10.

That neither Himſelf nor the Mediators can procure the Emperors anſwere; which ought to be the firſt Step & Ground of a Treaty. That his Miniſters have reſtreyned it agayne to declare only for Himſelfe, Spayne, the Heyres of Inſpruch, and that part of the Lower Palatinate remitted by the Duke of Bavare: flatly referring us to ſeeke our owne accommodation with Mentz & Darmſtat for the reſt, and with the Duke of Bavare for the Dignity & Upper Lands; to whom the Mediators have intimated this Reſolution; & the firſt two have taken time; but Bavare replyed, that whenſoever the Emperor will do his part, He will declare & enter vpon Treaty the next day. But Sir Thomas thinks that this is all Colluſion, & that the full deſign is to weary us out; ſprung from our owne diſtempers, and a Collection, that we can doe neyther good nor harme: it being reported that the Emperor & all his Court will ſoon go to Preſburg, thence to Pyrna, & from thence to Prague, there to ſettle his Reſidence; and he believes that they ſhall not have tyme enough left for them to finiſh that in three weeks, which they have not beene able to begin in Nine Months.

19. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 6 April 1642. 10. b.

That the Emperors Anſwer ſo long promiſed, is ſtill delayed; the meaning whereof is this; the Imperial Court want to know what our King will do for them. For, vnleſs they may haue help from His Majeſty, in this their extreme neceſſity, they will reſtore nothing. They will aſke (& nothing abate) to have preſently 10000 men given to the Prince Elector Palatin; & His Majeſty bound by a Treaty to mainteine them, in conjunction with the Emperor & Empyre, vntill the generall Peace can be obteined, and againſt whom they ſhall be imployed. Without this they will doe nothing; and this for the Lower Palatinate only; we being left to make our compoſition with Bavare, as well as we can. Wherefore, the Scale hangs thus, Whether it will be leſs Diſhonour or Inconvenience to breake off vpon their Delayes, or upon a Confeſſion of our own Impotency? Sir Thomas gives divers particulars relating to the Courts of Vienna, Madrid, &c. which I here omit.

20. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 13 April 1642. 11.

That the Cauſe of the Emperors Anſwer being ſtill delayed, is the Liberty of the Preſs in England, and freedom for all manner of advertiſements to paſs our Ports. For Relations & Journals of our Affiaires being brought thither, are inſtantly tranſlated & publiſhed to the infinite diſadvantage of our State. Inſomuch, as he findeth a ſetled Opinion there, that His Majeſty is not able to comply with their deſyres of preſent Ayde. And, therefore, howſoever they will in their Anſwere make ſome ſpecious Offers vpon Conditions; yet that is only done to make a fayre ſhowe to the World, in aſſeurance they ſhall not be put to the Tryall of Performance; and ſo they will ſpinne vs out, as long as they can, and in the end lay the fayling vpon vs. That the Emperor will remoue within 5 Weekes; yet there is no Invitement either to Him, or to the Mediatours, to follow the Court, as was ſeriouſly done at Ratiſbon. So that it appeares they are content he ſhould take an occaſion to ſeparate; and then he ſhall be forced, before that remove, to begin his Returne, leſt it ſhould be too apparent, that he is left behind as vnconſiderable. Yet this he cannot do, unleſs he be ſupplied with Money; for which he renues his preſſing Inſtances.

Num. 1901.

21. To Sir Arthur Hopton. 16 April 1642. 11. b.

That the Emperors Anſwer cannot yet be obteined, the difficulty reſting betweene Him & the Duke of Bavare, to accomodate the Dukes Satisfaction betweene themſelues. In which, if they can agree, He ſhall do all his worke at once; if not, we ſhall only receive an anſwere for the Lower Palatinate; and be left to treate with Bauare apart, which will prue uery knotty. Sir Thomas heares that the Anſwer will be reaſonably free, in the matter of Reſtitution, but uery high the demands of Ayds & Confœderacyes on our part. Which Demands if they ſhall be exorbitant, the meaning will be, to make a fayre Showe, as if they would have reſtored for the Loue of Peace, but that the fayling ſhould reſt upon us, as (in this vnhappy conjuncture of home troubles (vnwilling or vnable to comply with their neceſſities & deſyres.

22. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 20 April 1642. 12.

In this as in former Letters, concerning the confuſed ſtate of the German Affaires, which I paſs over, haſtening to what more nearly concerneth us, viz. that He had ſollicited the Emperors Anſwer to the laſt Hour before his removal to Vienna, and then was told by the Ambaſſador of Mentz, that the Declaration of the Emperor touching the Lower Palatinate was ready, for as much as concerned Him; but that he had given order it ſhould not be exhibited, vntill the Duke of Bauare & the Elector of Mentz ſhould, at the ſame tyme, deliuer their Reſolution & Conditions. This being contrary to the Forme agreed vpon; contrary to the Imperial conſtant Promiſes; & a direct oppoſition to the Duke of Bauares Proteſtation, is the ſure way anew to embroyle the proceeding. That to pacifie him, the Ambaſſador of Mentz had ſent to excuſe this delay, vpon the vnreaſonable demands of the Duke of Bauare; and that the Emperour had ſent to the Duke for more equal conditions. That the Elector of Saxe hath commanded his Ambaſſador to return, if a very ſpeedy courſe be not taken to expedite the Treaty, one way or other. That the Ambaſſadors of Mentz have no Commiſſion nor Inſtructions to declare any thing for the Bergſtraet, which is remitted to the Chapter to reſolue, which may be done in 2 or 3 Months, according as the French proceede or retyre from their Borders. That unleſs the Elector of Mentz doe declare a Reſtitution, Bavare will not deſcend to any particular offer. Sir Thomas is reſolved, hereupon, to ſend a preparatiue of Farewell to the Mediators; and to reſent the Abuſe by Letter to Count Trautmanſdorf. That he will govern himſelf according to what ſuch an Intimation may draw from them; and if they will be content thus to let him goe, he will retyre to Nurenberg and there attend His Majeſties Orders. Laſtly, that he enterteine the offered ſeperate Treaty with the Duke of Bavare, and thereby make a full tryall of his Intentions.

23. To Count Trautmanſdorff, in Italian, 21 April 1642. 12. b.

The occaſion of this, is intimated in the Abſtract of the laſt.

24 Sir Thomas's Latin Letter to the Mediators; complaining of the ill uſage they all had received by the Delay of the Emperors Anſwer ſo often promiſed; thanking them for their good Offices; and partly taking leave of them. But in the Margin, he hath written theſe words, "This deferred to be ſent vpon arrivall of an Expreſs from England; & new Promiſe of the whole anſwere."

25. To the King 26 April, 1642. 13. b.

In Anſwer to one he had received from His Majeſty, wherein He had ſhewn His gracious acceptance of Sir Thomas's Services.

26. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 26 April 1642. 14.

That Count Trautmanſdorfe had ſent him an Anſwer to His Letter, wherein he promiſed a pre'ent Reſolution from from the Emperor to the whole Reſtitution. He afterwards enters into a long deliberation upon the purport of ſome Letters received by the Prince Palatine Miniſters from their Maſter; whereby it was geſſed that his Majeſties pleaſure was that that Prince ſhould accept of the Lower Palatinate; with a Salvo jure to the Upper Palatinate; & obſerve a Neutralitie in the preſent War in the Empire. Sir Thomas ſheweth the Reaſons of his diſlike to ſuch a Motion; and that it is better, in the preſent conjuncture, to wait the Emperors freſhly-promiſed Reſolution; to gain time by ſtaying for Iſſue of the approaching Campaign; or to break off the Treatie in expectation of a more favorable Opportunity.

27. To the Prince Elector 27 April 1642. 15.

Referring Him to Mr. Secretary Nicholas for His Opinion of the Motion abovementioned. That His Highneſſes Miniſters & himſelf had agreed to proſecute the Treaty for the whole Lands, and an immediate alternative: and then if the anſwere to the generall ſhall be ſuch as his private information whiſpereth, he ſhall not be able to beare it, but with juſt Indignation will breake-off, & venture His Majeſties diſpleaſure in coming away without order: for by ſo doing, he ſhall leaue His Highneſſes Cauſe entyre for a better occaſion; & be juſtefyed by the Iniquity of their Conditions.

28. Relation of a Conference betweene the Ambaſſadors Mediator & Sir Thomas, vpon their preſentation of the long expected Declarations. 15. b. ($\frac{29 \text{ April}}{9 \text{ May}}$ 1642.)

It ſheweth that then the Ambaſſadors of Denmarke & Mentz, as Directors of the Mediation, came to Him, & preſented him with foure Papers, being the ſeverall anſwers & declarations of the Intereſſed & Poſſeſſors of the two Palatinats. The firſt in the name of the Emperor, for himſelfe; the King of Spayne; the Duke of Bavare; and the Archduchefs of Inſpruch, as Tutreſs to the Heyres of Leopold. The Second from the Electour of Mentz, concerning the Bergſtraet. The third from the Biſhop of Worms. The Fourth from the Landgrave of Darmſtat.

29. Sir Thomas's Anſwer to the Mediators thereupon; in Latin. 30 April, 1642. 16.

The Exordium, and divers of the Expreſſions are taken from that abovementioned at no. 24. but what our King did reſolutely inſiſt upon, may be ſeen by the words following. "Placebit itaq; Excell^{mis}. & Ill^{mis}. Dom^{bus}. veſtris certò ſcire, nullam aliam Palatinatûs Inferioris reſtitutionem, niſi integram, cum omnibus Juribus, Membris & Privilegijs, tam Politicis quam Eccleſiaſticis, in eo Statu. ac Conditione, uti a Principibus Electoribus Palatinis antiquitùs, et ſpecialiter anno 1618. poſſidebantur, abſque ulla Limitatione, aut Diminutione, vel Juriſdictionis, vel Poſſeſſionis, ſicut omnes alij Electores & Principes, vel vi Legum, et Conſtitutionum Imperialium, vel Jure proprio in ditionibus ſuis, ijſdem gaudent et poſſident, a Nobis acceptam iri. Quod ad Dignitatem Electoralem, & Palatinatum Superiorem attinet, Excell^{mis}. & Ill^{mis}. Dom^{bus}. veſtris, et univerſo Orbi Chriſtiano declaro, Seren^{mum}. Regem meum de accommodatione æquâ et honeſta tractare, in animo habuiſſe: ſed vel Terras emere, vel de alia alternativa, niſi immediatâ & integrâ, quicquam audire nolle." This Sir Thomas oppoſed as an anſwer to the four Papers brought by them, which being obſcurely or craftily worded, & ſo as to beget many inconveniences, he would no farther medle with.

30. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 3 May 1642. 16. b.

That He cannot thinke of the Papers aforeſaid, nor mention them, without Indignation, and breaking out into Paſſion: For never was any thing propoſed ſo vnjuſt, ſo inſolent, & ſo diſhonourable. Nor can he make any other Judgment, but that by longer Stay, he ſhall multiply the Occaſion of more Scorne & Abuſe. And he is the more amaſed, becauſe their Condition was never ſo low, allmoſt deſperate. He giveth the Sum of a Conference he lately had with Mr. Bidenback the Danes Ambaſſador, in the preſence of the Prince Elector Palatines Miniſters, and the Anſwer he gave to the Queſtions aſked by that Mediator, His Judgement (i. e. Sr. Thomas's) is, that nothing will be offered or aſked, that ſhall be, in any proportion, equall, or juſt, or poſſible. So that he reſolveth to take his Leaue of the Emperor in fayre tearmes, without breach of the Treaty abſolutely, but to ſuſpend it to another tyme & place, and to a better Conjuncture; ſuch as ſhal be agreed on betweene their Majeſties, it both ſhall like of it.

Num. 1901.

31. To the Prince Elector. 3 May 1642. 17. b.

That there is a neceſſity for him to come off, upon the Iniquity of the Declarations ſo long expected; & rather to preſerve His Highneſſes Rights & Title entyre, then to weaken them by offring to accept that which ſhall not, vpon any termes of honor be obteined. Yet he purpoſeth not to breake the Treaty (wherein ſome of the Mediators are our Oppoſites, and not only mock, but betray us) but to part vpon fayre tearmes, and to ſuſpend it to ſome other place, & a fitter Conjuncture.

32. To the Queene of Bohemia. 4 May, 1642. 18.

That after ten Moneths attendance, expectation, & promiſes; the Declarations of the Emperor & the others intereſſed, were delivered; being ſo abſurd, vnjuſt, diſhonourable, & impoſſible, that they deſerved none anſwer. That he will preſerve, in integrity the juſtice of the Prince Electors cauſe, & leaue it no worſe than he found it; but ſo much better, in that he hath drawn from them a Confeſſion, that he is reſtorable; and that it is fitt to doe him Juſtice; & that they haue declared a will to treate euen for the whole; but that the only hinderance hath bene, not in the Equity of the Cauſe, but in the Iniquity & Covetouſnes of their Offers & Demands.

33. To Sir William Boſwell. 4 May, 1642. ibid.

Touching the Declarations he had received; of which he thought thoſe of Mentz, Wormes, & Darmſtadt worthy of no Reply. For the Ambaſſadors of Mentz nothing, in theirs, but they had no formall Order from their Prince, but that they did collect out of ſome Circumſtances, that he would be content to pay the money for which the Bergſtraet had bene engaged. The pretenſion of the Biſhop of Wormes is but a quarrell pickt, to embroyle the Cauſe with the Church, that Conſcience might be pretended, to countenance Injury. The Deputie of Darmſtats long Narration was but Rayling, Scandall, & Folly; yet the Concluſion though ſweeter, was ridiculous, vizt, that he would, for Love of Peace ſurrender de facto; upon condition, that he might haue Security to receiue back the ſame Lands in Feudo. He knoweth not what the Duke of Bavare will doe, the Emperor having the point of anſwering for him; ſo that he is not likely to abate to vs, nor treate vpon lower tearmes, than he hath agreed to the Emperor. The cauſe of this Change is ſuppoſed, this, that he hath ſecured his feares by ſome ſecret accord with the French: into which, it is ſuſpected, he doth endeavour to draw his brother of Cullen, & the Elector of Mentz, now in this their aſſembly. In ſumme the whole Offer, & every part thereof is ſo unworthy, vnjuſt, inſolent, & diſhonorable, that he is reſolved not to treate farther vpon it. That the Mediators hope to procure more moderate or tollerable Conditions to be propoſed, which he will be ready to receiue, to the laſt hower of his ſtay: but he will doe no more; ſuppoſing he can neuer come-off with more ſhowe of Honour, then vpon the Iniquity of their moſt vnequall & impoſſible Offers & Demands.

34. To the Prince Elector. 10 May, 1642. 18. b.

That the Deſign of the Imperial Court was that England ſhould both enter into a League with them for their Aſſiſtance, that is for our King to raiſe & maintain, at the leaſt, 10,000 Men for them (which he was then unable to do) and that the Parliament ſhould be Security for the Kings performing his Covenant; and further, that his Majeſty ſhould pay a great Sum of Money, at the the leaſt, 2 or 300,cool. to the Duke of Bauare. He thinks therefore, rather than confeſs our weakneſs, & take the Breach upon our ſelves, it would be beſt to hold them to a declaration of a full Reſtitution, which they will never yield to, and then to ſeparate upon the Iniquity & Baſenes of their Offers & Demands.

35. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 11 May, 1642. 19.

That the Mediators haue ſummoned the Ambaſſadors of the Prince Elector Palatine, to draw them either to a particular Treaty, vpon every Article of the Emperors Declaration; or elſe by them to engage himſelf to ſome promiſe of a Summe of money, to helpe toward the Satisfaction of the Duke of Bavare, which is what the Imperial Court moſt wanteth. The Sum pitched upon, as he is ſecretly enformed, is 900,000 pounds; and, leſs than 300,000 will not be accepted. But he will hold them down to that, which they will not do; that is, to make a Declaration of a full & entyre Reſtitution, at leaſt of the Lower Palatinate; this being the only way left, to preſerue the publicque honour, & the juſtice of the Prince Electors cauſe entire. That that Court & the Mediators play with him, & thinke they can hold him by a twyne thred, as long as they pleaſe, they having intelligence from England, that he would not, nor durſt depart. That he is ſecretly aſſured, that he ſhall neuer haue better anſwere, vntil he ſhall begin to take Leaue; and then, if they haue any reall purpoſe, they muſt, & will vnvayle it. That, abſolutely, they will not reſtore the Lower Palatinate without a League, to joyne the Army vnder the Prince Elector with them, & ſome Conveniencias for Spayne; nor the Vpper, without a great Summe of Money to Bavare; nor the Dignity, but vpon ſuch an Alternatiue, as would weaken the whole frame of the Reformed Religion in the Empyre. He thinks therefore that it is better by removing, to avoyd the neceſſity of refuſing to do ſomewhat on our part, then to loſe his advantage; and had rather fall to his owne Maſter, and truſt in his benignity, than into a publique Shame.

36. To the Count of Guebriant, Generall of the Armyes of the French King within the Empyre. 12 May, 1642, in French. 19. b.

Thanking him, in a very complimental manner, for ſetting Colonell Henderſon at liberty, upon his Requeſt.

37. To Sir Arthur Hopton. 14 May, 1642. 20.

That he eſteemeth the Treaty irrecoverably ſick; yet the Mediators will not give it over, but haue conſulted to procure a Moderation in ſome of the Articles. That the Imperial Court will not reſtore the Lower Palatinate, without ſome very advantagious League, both for the Emperor & King of Spayne, which will coſt His Majeſty more then that Province is now worth. Nor will the Duke of Bavare ſurrender the Upper Palatinate, without a great Summe of Money; nor the Dignity, but vpon ſuch an alternatiue, as will deſtroy the Proteſtant Intereſt. He is confident that the Emperor ſincerely deſireth to ſettle this buſines; but his preſent neceſſity cauſeth his Miniſters to aſke rather according to the Exigent & Proportion of their own wants, than any thing within compaſs of Reaſon or Equitye; indeed, things wholly impoſſible. But in the Duke of Bavare appeareth playne & vnmaſked Covetouſnes & Selfe-Loue, that will abate nothing for the Publicque. Moreover, the Church is become engaged, and Conſcience pretended, to countenance oppreſſion: and this alſo hath two ſtrong Pillars, the Popes Nunce, & the Jeſuites. He therefore thinketh it more counſelable to remit the Cauſe to Gods tyme, & to preſerue the Prince Electors Title entyre, to a better Conjunction; which hath yet by this negotiation gotten this advantage, that it is now held to be reconcileable, which was a point that formerly would in no wiſe be granted.

38. To Sir William Boſwell. 14 May, 1642. 20. b.

That the Mediators endeavor to moderate ſome of the Articles, but he believes it will be in vaine; becauſe the Emperor, &c. will doe nothing but for a price aboue the valew.

39. To the Princeſs Elizabeth. 15 May, 1642. ibid.

Excuſing himſelf, that as he had done little, ſo he had omitted nothing; but however, he had drawne out a Confeſſion that the cauſe in it ſelfe was treatable; and therefore not ſubject to the Condemnation vnder which it ſuffered; and better tymes might make advantage of this preſervation of the roote ſound & entyre. That this mayne Repulſe had diſabled him from ſerving my Lady Levingſton; for he could not deſcend to aſke a fauor, where he is denyed juſtice: and to attempt any thing againſt the Landgrave of Heſſe-Darmſtat, who is the Uſurper & as hard as Flint, would have been in vayne.

40. Sir Thomas Roe's relation of a Conference he had with Monſr. Bidenbach. 13 May, 1642. 21.

That the Emperor would require a League Offenſive, & Defenſive againſt all the Enemyes of the Houſe of Auſtria, at leaſt within the Empyre. That Count Trautmanſdorffe had declared, that if England is not diſpoſed to ſatisfye the Emperor by a League, & the Duke of Bavare by a good Summe of Money, they would not giue away Principalityes for nothing. That the Surrender made by the King of Spayne of his part of the Lower Palatinate to the Emperor, was vpon Conditions of Aydes, or Commodityes, for them. That the Duke of Bavare, for His Poſſeſſions there, had obliged the Emperor to pay vnto him 3000 pounds Sterling yearly, for 8 years; ſo that that Duke had parted with nothing without money; and therefore the Imperial Miniſters would not buy him & others out of their pretenſions, without being reimburſed by the Palatins, or by England. That, at laſt, Sir Thomas had drawn this Mediator to undertake to make the Motion, that, the buſines of the Dignity & the Upper Palatine being ſuſpended vntil a fitter tyme (becauſe they would never come without money) the Lower ſhould be reſtored de facto, intyrely both in Poſſeſſions & Juriſdiction, with a Salvo Jure to all other rights ſuſpended; upon ſuch reaſonable Conditions as might not relate to any League, but only to newtrall & conuenient Acts of Friendſhip, on the behalf of our Kinge, & due obſervance to the Emperor & Empyre on the part of the Prince-Elector.

41. Minutes of a Conference which Sir Thomas had with Dr. Richel Chancellor of the Duke of Bavare, 16 May 1642. 21. b.

By theſe, it ſhould appear, that the Duke of Bavaria thirſted after our Money exceedingly, and would do any thing to gett it. But Sir Thomas is of opinion, that when the matter ſhould come to a Concluſion, Bavare will not part with Chamb; nor agree the alternative immediate; nor accept of leſs that 300,000 pounds: nor, that the Emperor will reſtore the Lower Palatinate only for his Satisfaction.

42. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 18 May. 1642. 22. b.

That he had viſited the Arch-Duke Leopold, who is a gallant Prince; expreſſed much reſpect for our King; & promiſed to interpoſe his power, that he might not depart without ſatisfaction. That Wolſtenſtein was ſent from the Emperor to the meeting at Mentz, tanquam explorator, and to awe their Reſolutions; & hath ſo well taken his meaſures, that he hath diverted the mayne Intention of Neutrality. That ſome diſcontent hath ariſen betweene the Emperor & the Spaniſh Ambaſſador, who hath Bills or Monyes there to haue rayſed men for his Maſter. Which being not able to effect, for the Scarcity & dearnes of Levyes, the Emperor would haue made uſe of it; promiſing, that as ſoone as the Suedes ſhould be expelled Sileſia, to employ the whole Army in the Spaniſh Service: but that not ſerving the turne, he would haue borrowed it; but could obteine nothing

Num. 1901.

nothing. Sir Thomas was told that a principal Counfellour fayd to a Engliſhman, a Prieſt there, thus, The Engliſh Ambaſſador in his anſwere offers nothing, for his King can doe nothing: he threatens us that he will be gone; and none here doth hold or forbid him.

43. Negotiation from the 18th to the 24th May, 1642. and Conference vpon it, betweene the Engliſh, Danes, & Palatin Ambaſſadors. 23.

This ſheweth, how Sir Thomas was, at length, drawn by the Ambaſſador of Denmark, (rather than ſuffer the Treaty to be broken off, through the mere want of an Offer, on our ſide) although he had no power abſolutly to offer mony, which was neuer ſuppoſed would haue bene demanded, yet ſeeing That was the Condition ſo much inſiſted vpon for the ſatisfaction of the Duke of Bavare & eaſe of the Emperor: He was content to offer an aſſiſtance of 600,000 Dollers, to be payd in reaſonable tyme. Sr. Thomas thought this is the beſt bargain that can, or euer could be expected; being made only, for Honor, & not like to be accepted. That being made without our Kings Order, he made it expreſly ad ratificandum. That if Security for the Money ſhould be required, it ſhould be propoſed, that the Upper Palatinate ſhould remayne in the poſſeſſion of the Duke of Bavare quoad uſu fructum, as a pledge, vntill the mony agreed vpon ſhould be payd. So that His Majeſty ſhall not be obliged to the Imperialls, nor Bavare; nor further then he pleaſeth to aſſiſt toward the payment; and yet the Upper Palatinate to be reſtored quod Dominium & de Jure, the profits only remaining as a pawne, to be redeemed when the Prince Elector ſhall be able.

44. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 25 May, 1642. 24. b.

That He had a late Conference with Count Trautmanſdorff, the Summe of whoſe Reſolution was, (though given in fayre & hopefull Expreſſions) that we muſt ſatisfye the Duke of Bavare with mony, or no Treatye. Yet Sir Thomas is conſtant to his opinion, that He ſhall doe nothing; and that though all the diſcourſe & preſent Intention is, vpon mony to content the Duke of Bavare; yet if they can once engage vs by an agreement upon that; then they will propoſe new matter for the ſatisfaction of the Emperor, Spayne, & others, without which all will fall. For he believeth not, that ever the Emperor & others will quitt all their owne Intereſts & Commodityes only for that Dukes advantage, though they never more needed him then now; and are forced to vſe all meanes, not only to keepe him a freind; but to hold him vpright, that he fall not to the Enemye. For, it is reported, that He with the Electors of Mentz & Collen, & the Biſhop of Wirtzburg, haue ſent part of their Reſolutions to the Emperor; That if His Imperal Majeſty will not ſeparate himſelfe from the Spaniſh Counſells & Intereſts, and ſeeke the Peace of the Empyre without forreyne relations; they are reſolved to take another courſe: which, at the beſt, muſt be a Neutralitye & Separation from the Intereſts of the Houſe of Auſtria. This doth more trouble the Court & Spaniſh Miniſters, then the Suedes proſperity.

45. Relation of a Conference betweene Sir Thomas, the Danes, & the Ments Ambaſſador. 27 May. 25. b.

Here, the Daniſh & Mentz Ambaſſadors, being (as Mediators) to hold an equality between all the parties; preſſed Him to offer more money than he had before done; but he gave them ſuch Anſwers as they deſerved.

46. To Mr. Browne. 31 May, 1642. 27.

That the late Aſſembly at Mentz haue meditated a Neutrality with France; & preſſed the Emperor to ſeparate himſelfe from the Counſells & Intereſts of Spayne; or elſe they muſt provide for themſelues; but that France had refuſed them the Neutrality, and offered them only Protection upon their Submiſſion. That the Suedes in Sileſia haue defeated Duke Fra. Alberts Army, & taken himſelf priſoner being wounded in three places; who being a Lutheran, ſuſpected & rayled at, hath ſcarce gotten pitty after this full Teſtimony of his Fidelity & Courage.

Num. 1901.

47. To my Lord of Falckland Secretary of State. 31 May, 1642. ibid.

That the Declaration of Reſtitution which he hath received, is limited to ſuch Conditions as are both diſhonorable & impoſſible; occaſioned by our own diſtempers at home, which hath layd our reputation flat, as being neyther fitt to be friends nor foes; nor able to doe good, or harme. Yet the Emperor's Condition is not ſuch, as that he may neglect Friends, eſpecially now after Duke Francis Alberts defeat. That the Emperor is a ſweete, ingenious, & noble Prince; and would, if he were not bound to Bavare & Spayne, and had the juncture bene generally propitious, have done much for his Majeſties Satisfaction, & the Peace of his Countrey.

48. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 1 June, 1642. 27. b.

That the Mediators will ſtill hope beyond hope, vpon moderation of conditions: ſo that thereby a Summe of Money to ballance all, for the Satisfaction of the Duke of Bavare may be obteined. Sir Thomas relates the reſult of the late Aſſembly at Mentz; & the Confuſion of the Emperors Affairs as in former Letters. With this addition, that Picolomini who, ten days ſince, reſigned his Commiſſion of Generalitye, & had reſolved to retyre, & never more to ſerue the Houſe of Auſtria, with much adoe, is gayned to take vpon him his old Charge.

49. To the Earle of Holland. 3 June, 1642. 28. b.

How he had heard that the French Ambaſſador, by his Lordſhip's Mediation, had preferred a Complaint againſt him in the Houſe of Peers, that he had offered to the King of Hungary, a League offenſive & defenſive, againſt all men; vpon Condition of Reſtitution of the Prince Elector Palatine to His Lands and Dignities. Which being in Contravention of the League betweene His Majeſtie, the French King, & the United States, was offenſively taken. Which whole accuſation, Sir Thomas replieth, in forme & matter, in ſubſtance & circumſtances, is vnjuſt; in the firſt Inventer falſe; & againſt Innocency, Truth, & faithfull Service, ſcandalous. For, he never received any ſuch power nor Inſtructions from his Majeſty; nor had the boldneſs, infidelity, or indiſcretion, to do it of himſelfe: but ſo far the contrary, that he had often openly, authentically, & ſeriouſly proteſted againſt any motion or ouerture of any confœderation, directly or conſequently, againſt the Crownes of France, & Suede, & the Vnited Provinces, his Majeſties Friends & Allyes, as is regiſtered in many public Acts. He being a good & true Engliſh man, neyther French, Spaniſh, Auſtrian, nor Dutch; nor for any reſpect ſhall ever be. He hath principally directed all his Scope to the Honor of his Majeſty the Safety & Advantage of his Kingdomes, and the preſervation of true religion in thoſe places, where it hath pleaſed God both to plant and purge it by his Chaſtiſements. This he beſeecheth his Lordſhip to preſent to the Houſe of Peeres, that they may be pleaſed to regiſter & publiſh his Proteſtation, for the Vindication of his Honeſty & Reputation.

50. To Mr. Edward Waller. 3 June, 1642. 29.

Upon the ſame occaſion, and to the ſame effect; with deſire that the houſe of Commons, of which he is an humble member, would judge better of him.

51. To Mr. Edward Waller. 6 June, 1642. 29. b.

Accompanying a copy of what he wrote to the Earle of Holland; which he may uſe according to his diſcretion, as he ſhall find that His Lordſhip hath publiſhed or concealed the atteſtation of his Innocency. For, as he would not offend His Lordſhip by Jealouſye; ſo he would not omitt his owne Juſtification by too much Indulgence to be a ſuppoſed friend.

52. To Sir William Boſwell. 6 June, 1642. ibid.

That his Buſineſs is deſperate; and ſo much the more, becauſe of the Complaint abovementioned, which hath made a great Clamour & Noyſe, from whence the Court of Vienna (which is better enformed of all things, than himſelf) hath drawne a Concluſion, that there is nothing to be expected of us, in Correſpondence with them; nor any other ayde for the Houſe of Palatin. He ſendeth to Sir William Coppyes of what he wrote to both Houſes of Parliament, which he deſires may be publiſhed to the States, & ſuch others as he ſhall think fit. If this will not cleare his Innocency he will print ſuch a Defence, as ſhall make the Accuſers, if they have any ſhame, aſhamed. For it was not him alone that they aymed at, but another deſſigne which he well diſcovereth, and will in tyme make apparent to the world.

53. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. June 8, 1642. 30.

That the Mediators do but triſle, & ſerve the old Turne to keep vp an opinion, & to gayne tyme. The Miniſters of Bavare haue anſwered to the Motion of Moderation, that they aſke nothing of vs; & deſpiſe the propoſition of Monſr. Bidenback; nor will abate of their demand of 13 millions from the Emperor, being a ſecured debt; ſaying they have nothing to do with the King of England. That Mentz will not reſtore the Bergſtraet; ſo that there is no hope to obteine any thing. This Matter is the more inflamed, by the French Ambaſſadors complaint againſt himſelf in Parliament, which hath been largely related at Vienna, & commented vpon, as having occaſioned ſome diſcourſe in one of the Houſes, that they have no deſyre to oblige, or be obliged to the Houſe of Auſtria; nor by that way, if by any, to aſſiſt the Prince Elector Palatin: ſo that being ſure they ſhall haue nothing, they will do nothing. He conceiveth the French Ambaſſadors bolt not to be ſhot at him alone; but at the buſineſs; and perhaps with a worſe Intention, which he doubteth not but His Majeſties Wiſdom will penetrate. The French grounded their Complaint vpon ſome words in a Declaration of the Emperors, againſt which he had excepted & proteſted, as crept in captiouſly & inſidiouſly, to caſt us into the Jealouſie of our Friends. That the Mediators made this fault by the levitye of Monſr. Bidenback; which when he reſented to Count Trautmanſdorffe, he anſwered, that it was not their Error, but a miſtake of the Mediators; who, in hope to do a good office, had exceeded their Commiſſion. But he will not ſo wholly cleare neyther the one nor the other, but that there might be an Art ſeminandi diſcordiam, and it purpoſely done; which he then ſuſpected, and is now come to paſs. Sir Thomas much wonders, that the Imperial Court will not ſee their neede of Friends, in this extreame danger of the Enemye; and not much leſs of the Reſolutions of the Princes aſſembled lately at Mentz, and prorogued to the firſt of Auguſt at Francfort. Where, they will eyther draw the Emperor to governe according to the antient Conſtitutions; or, without queſtion, ſeparate from him and inſtitute a new forme & way, to recover the peace of the Empyre. Which may be an occaſion to let in the Prince Elector Palatin, vpon better Conditions than he is like euer to obteine of the particulers intereſſed.

54. To Sir Arthur Hopton. 13 June, 1642. 31.

That vpon receipt of the anſwere of the Emperor for Himſelfe & for the others intereſſed, & the whole manner of their delatory proceeding, His Majeſty hath ſent him a revocation. That he knows the Ends of all the parties, Mediators & others; and, particularly, that they would caſt the Scandall upon vs. Which, if He cannot avoyde, He will defend, & as ſtoutly retort vpon them, by publiſhing that, which otherwiſe, diſcretion & temper would conceale. For, the difficultyes haue not proceeded from the Emperor, who is a moſt benigne and ſweete Prince, but only as he is bound vp by others, & cannot ſatisfye the Duke of Bavare, who is the great remora or rock whereon the Peace doth ſhiprack. Nor dothe he now complaine of Spayne: though he doubteth not, but there doth lye hid vnder their conveniencias, ſomewhat; which being diſcovered would be rocky enough. For now, the Terminus when they will ſurrender is changed, to When it ſhall conduce to the Peace of Germany. However, he will endeavour rather to ſuſpend the Treaty to a Conjuncture more propitious, than to breake it. He therefore prepareth for his departure within 14 dayes; which he is willing yet to give them, if at the laſt they will propoſe any thing that may induce him to ſtay longer.

55. To the Queene of England. 14 June, 1642. 32.

That he cannot get himſelfe at Liberty, by coming away, vnder 14 dayes; partly for Ceremonyes, and partly becauſe the Mediators, who haue trifled 12 Months, would now rayſe new hopes, againſt their Conſcience & Experience, only to ſtay him for their greater Confuſion. Which if he ſhould refuſe, and thereby give them a little ſcope, they would caſt the Scandall of an abrupt breach upon him; which, for honour, he muſt avoyde.

56. To the Queene of Bohemia. 15 June, 1642. ibid.

That having intimated the Order he had received to returne, to the Mediators; they put on graue & buſye faces, pretending that they deſpayred not. That, if I would breake, they could not oppoſe it; but the fault ſhould not reſt on them. That he anſwered, that they had not advanced one Step in Six Weekes, ſince the laſt Declaration; and he could not expect they would do more in a few dayes, then they had done in 12 Monthes. That he could not depart in 14 dayes; tyme enough ſeeing all the intereſſed knew what they would doe; if yet they would propoſe any thing honorable and acceptable. For the Imputation of the Breach, whenſoeuer they would begin to charge it vpon him, he would publiſh all the proceedings to the world; which yet, he thought were better on both ſydes to be concealed; and to part in a condition of friendſhip. Afterwards they propoſed to procure a Conſent of Reſtitution of the Lower Palatinate entyre, from all the Intereſſed, which they would preſent, with their judgement & Exhortatiun to the Emperor: which would be a great ſtrengthening to the Prince Electors cauſe, although it would be denyed to be ratefyed. This he accepted under the three Conditions formerly by me ſpecified; and they undertook to anſwer him in 7 or 8 dayes. However, for his preſent ſatisfaction, and to induce ſome beliefe in him, he deſired that the Ambaſſadors of Mentz would clearly declare, that their Maſter would reſtore the Bergſtraet: but they flatly refuſed it; and offered the money for the pretended mortgage: which he as plainly refuſeing, in great choler, they ſaid, the buſineſs then muſt be recommended to God. Yet the other Mediators deſyred their tyme to trye; and ſo he is yet in expectation, but not in hope.

57. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 15 June, 1642. 33.

That Count Trautmanſdorffe ſeems to pretend that there is yet hope, at leaſt a deſyre to end the buſineſs now; but not without a great Summe of money to the Duke of Bavare, and ſome helpe to the Emperor to advance the Peace. To which he replyed, that he would yet accept of any reaſonable & honorable propoſition, though for the Lower Palatinate alone; ſuſpending the vpper & the Dignity, ſalvo Jure, to tyme & occaſion. And it is likely he may get, if not the Reſtitution, yet ſome Declaration, that may advantage the Cauſe in the future; if but, that the Prince is reſtorable in Juſtice. That he hath diligently penetrated into the Intentions of the Duke of Bavare, and doth find, that he doth really deſyre an accommodation during his Life; but for mony, that is, for 3 or 400,000l to be paid in tyme: for which, he is confident, we may compoſe with him for the vpper Palatinate and the Dignity; the poſſeſſion of the Lands reſting in him for Security till the Payment be made.

58. Relation of a Conference betweene me & the Mediators, the 13th of June, 1642. 33. b.

The Sum of it is already ſpecified in the Abſtracts of preceding Letters.

59. To the Prince Elector. 21 June, 1642. 34. b.

That the Emperor doth ſincerely deſyre an end of this Treaty, and hath laboured it; but will neuer yield to

Num. 1901.

to purchaſe it at his owne coſt. That all the Miniſters & Mediators make a fayre ſhow and pretenſion, upon the Cloſe of the buſineſs. Firſt, to ſatisfye the world by apparencyes and ſemblances, that they would haue done much, if the Treaty had continued, ſo to ſaue their owne reputation, and to caſt the ſcandal of a breach vpon us. Secondly if thereby they can engage him to ſtay, they belieue his Higneſſes Condition is ſo deſperate by the troubles of England, that he will at laſt accept of any thing, and be forced to quitt all clayme to the vpper Palitinate & Dignity. Which is the plott of the Duke of Bavare, that he being Septuagenarius and living by art, may ſee the quarrell ſettled in his Life, & leaue his Heyres ſecure in the poſſeſſion. This is the maine cauſe why he preſſeth the Emperor to a preſent concluſion; becauſe he thinkes His Highneſſes feares to alike preſs Him to any accommodation. That His Highneſſes affairs were neuer before in ſo good a State as now, there being much gayned in this negotiation. Firſt, many declarations both of the Emperor & Princes of the Empyre, that it is requiſite and neceſſary, for the publicque Peace, that His Cauſe ſhould be accommodated. Secondly, that the whole is treatable; and therefore ſome juſtice on his part. For a Treaty ſuppoſeth a right; whereas when there is no right, men vſe to proceede by Supplication. Thirdly, the Duke of Bavare hath conſented to treate both for the vpper Palitinate & Dignity, vpon conditions: ſo that it will appeare in the future, that the want of effect of this Treaty, reſted not vpon the meritts of the Cauſe, but vpon the exhorbitant conditions demanded by the Duke of Bavare, & meerly vpon a matter of mony. This neyther the Emperor nor Empyre will endure when that Duke ſhall be deceaſed. For then the Emperor will be free & ſui Juris; and the Adminiſtrator will not haue that Authority which Bavare hath; and, in fewe yeares the Emperors obligations to him will be voyd. So that if the general good inclination be dexterouſly preſerved, there is no doubt of better tearmes then He can now expect, or ever obteine by ſuch partiall Mediators.

60. To Mr Secretery Nicholas. 22 June, 1642. 36.

That the Emperor deſireth an accommodation, in order to be cleare of Bavare, but dare not force him nor preſs him to any diſcontent. Bavare preſſeth an end now; not ſo much in hope of Money, which he foreſees will not be had to his Satisfaction: but deſigning to ſettle the vpper Palatinate, & Dignity ſecure vpon his Poſteritye, he hopes the Prince Elector Palatin will be content to renounce all his claymes in thoſe, to haue Reſtitution of the other. And therefore he hath newly declared that he will not ſurrender Heidelberg & the Dependencyes, vnleſs he may now haue a finall end. Nor will he treate with us, nor with any whomſoever, for his mony, but with the Emperor. Nor will Mentz yeild the Bergſtraet. And howſoeuer this new Decree (as they tearme it) of the Emperor, would ſeem to encourage the Mediators to proceede, as if there were yet hope: it is obſervable, that it doth not declare what the Emperor will doe for his owne part, & Germenſheim; which had been neceſſary firſt, for an example to others. But it is moſt certayne nothing can be done; & they all know it, for the difficulty & obſtruction of Bavare; which being removed, there is no doubt, upon the foundation layd, we make a good end of a bad buſines.

61. To Mr. Browne. 24 June, 1642. 36. b.

Specifying little freſh matter; beſides the deſign of ſettling in the Electorate of Collen & Triers, two Princes oppoſite to the ends of the French.

62. To Doctor Richel Chancellor of Bavare, 28 June 1642. in Italian. 37. b.

Taking Leave of him, upon ſuſpenſion of the Treaty to a better Conjuncture.

63. To the Biſhop of Wurtzburgh. 28 June 1642. in French. ibid.

Num. 1901.

To the ſame purpoſe.

64. To the Miniſters aſſembled at the Congreſs at Francfort, 23 July, 1642. in Latin. 38.

Herein Sir Thomas throweth the Odium of his not ſucceeding in his Negotiations, upon the Avarice & exorbitant Demands of the Duke of Bavaria; more eſpecially ſince the Emperor had promiſed to do all that in him lies for the Reſtitution of the Palatinate Family, when the others intereſſed ſhould do what might reaſonably be expected of them. He exhorts them therefore to make ſuch effectual Application to the Bavarian, as that the Treaty may be reaſſumed, & with the deſired Reſtoration a bleſſed Peace & Tranquility be eſtabliſhed in Germany.

65. Inſtructions to Mr. Curtius, for the deliuery of a relation, left by me, to the Ambaſſadors of the Electors & Princes at the Aſſembly at Francfort. 23 July 1642. 39.

Beſides which, Mr. Curtius is directed to aſſure the Lady Landgravine of Caſſell, of our Kings conſtant affection to her Cauſe; and that although there was no oportunity to mention the Comprehenſion of her, & her Sonnes eſtates: yet to faithfully promiſe her, that if the Treaty be reaſſumed, She ſhall be taken into ſuch due Conſideration, by particular Articles, as her Conſtancy & Magnanimity hath merited,

66. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 23 July 1642. 40.

That he as left the Treaty in a Suſpenſion, much for the Advantage of the Cauſe, and neceſſary in conſideration of our owne Condition in England. He hopeth that he came off with honour, & the general content, notwithſtanding a deſſigne, by art, to caſt the breach of Separation vppon him. But he eſcaped their Netts, & forced the Mediators to a Stand, & a cleare Confeſſion, that they could doe no more. The Emperor is ſo pleaſed with the opinion & reputation of continuance or reaſſumption of the Treaty, that he hath ſent an Invitatory Decree to the Mediators, to reaſſemble the 10th of January. Sir Thomas well knoweth the meaning hereof, and will make another vſe of it, to the Aſſembly at Frankfurt, by inviting thoſe Princes to remove the Impediments. That the worthy Biſhop of Wirtzburgh dyed ſuddenly at the Table; whom, the day before, he had left in perfect health.

67. To Mr. Curtius. 31 July, 1642. ibid.

Requiring him to remonſtrate to the Elector of Mentz, & to the Count de Rebolledo Commander of the Spaniſh Forces, how unjuſt their deſign of perſecuting the Proteſtants in the Lower Palatinate is. That ſuch proceeding will cauſe vs to diſpayre, as to the Treaty. It being a ſtrange Zeale, now to begin that alteration (when they haue profeſſed to reſtore) which they haue forborne ſo many yeares; from whence alſo he muſt conclude, that there is no purpoſe in them, but to excite vs to other wayes; of which they have no neede.

68. To the Provoſt, Deane, Prelates, & Chanoyns of the Church of Wurtzburg. 31 July 1642. in French. 40. b.

Condoling with them, upon the ſad occaſion of the Deceaſe of their good Biſhop & Prince.

69. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 18 Auguſt 1642. 41.

That in the Conference with the Elector Mentz, he promiſed, that though he had not declared for the Bergſtraet, ſeeing Bavare held back; yet the Breach ſhould not reſt vpon Him, when the Accommodation ſhould be ripe. But that the Tytle by him claymed, being for the Church, he muſt proceede lento pede, and with ſuch Circumſtances, as might agree with his Reputation. That in the poynt of the new Edict publiſhed and ready for Execution: he obteined a cleare promiſe of ſuſpenſion, That the Elector of Collen engaged his word more clearly in the poynt of accommodation with his brother of Bavaria; confeſſing that the Peace could not be made, or not ſecurely, without the Compoſure of the Palatin cauſe.

And

Num. 1901.

And therefore, he promiſed (though in a matter of mony his Brother be very vntractable; & that he who needed, and vſed him in that kind could worſt interpoſe) yet he would vſe all the power he had, to procure ſuch a Moderation, as might be poſſible to be accepted, & occaſion a new meeting to accommodate the whole Cauſe à l'amiable: which, if the Princes at the Aſſembly, ſhall vndertake, according to their Promiſe & Intereſt; it may proue of much more efficacye, then the Offices of Strangers, or Negotiation of Ambaſſadors. For if they there ſhall find it fit for the preparation of the Peace of the Empyre, to declare that they ought not, nor will not ſuffer the whole to periſh for the ambition or avarice of Bavare; and that he ought to comply with the publicque, or proue the Enemy of Peace: ſuch a Declaration will both plane the way to accommodation, & fortefy the Cauſe in all events. That the loſs of the Biſhop of Wurtzburgh is vniverſally deplorable; particulerly by the Prince Elector. For he proteſted, that as he would preſs the poynt at the deſſigned meeting: ſo he would contribute one Million of Florens toward the ſatisfaction of Bavare. His ſucceſſor hath good Affections; but being new, can haue no mony, nor ſetled authority. That he hath related the proceſs of his Negotiation & State of the Treaty, to the States-Generall; from whom he received a cold anſwere, as if they were not diſpoſſeſſed of ſome Jealouſye, or impreſſions they had taken. That he preſſeth an anſwere to his Propoſitions, and the Complaynts & Grievances of our Merchants injured in contravention of the Treatyes of Commerce; and hath a promiſe to receiue ſome ſatisfaction.

70. To the Earle of Arundell. 20 Auguſt, 1642. 42.

In the former part of this long (but very diſtinct Letter) there is little freſh matter; but the Concluſion s thus. The advantages gotten to the Cauſe Palatin by this negotiation, are theſe. Firſt, the Emperor hath made a very fayre declaration for Himſelfe, and for what is in his power as Emperor. Secondly, Sir Thomas hath gotten, by publicque acts, a judgement that the whole Cauſe is treatable, & conſequently not ſo condemned, as not to be capable, in right, of a review. Thirdly, that the Duke of Bavare hath conſented to reſtore all, and the Vpper Palatinate, vpon Conditions; to which formerly he would never be induced; and to treate in the poynt of the dignity. Fourthly, in the Treaty, the accommodation doth not depend vpon the meritts of the Cauſe, but vpon Conditions; and thoſe of a Summe of money; which is baſe in the refuſer of peace. Laſtly, that the Scandall of Breach is caſt vpon one only, vizt. the Duke of Bavaria: the Emperor hauing invited by a decree, after his departure, all the intereſſed to renew the Treaty, which may provoke him to a better temper, or rayſe againſt him an envy dangerous & vnſupportable. Hereby Sir Thomas ſuppoſeth the Cauſe is in better condition then he found it; or, then it hath bene ſince the unjuſt decrees of the aſſembly at Mulhuſen.

71. Recapitulation of the laſt acts of the Treaty of the Palatin Cauſe: for what reaſons it was ſuſpended; and in what eſtate it was left, at the ſeparation of the Mediators. 30 June, 1642. 43.

Herein, Sir Thomas relateth the laſt Conferences he had with the Emperor and Count Curtz his Miniſter; and how in order to keep the Treaty yet alive, they agreed that a Correſpondence ſhould be kept between ſome of the Miniſters of His Imperial Majeſty, England, & Denmarke.

72. To Count Leſley. 30 Auguſt, 1642. 46.

Deſiring that it will pleaſe the Emperor to be conſtant in his declaration, to receiue the Prince Elector-Palatin & his Family into his favour by an Amneſtye; whenſoever, with the other intereſſed an accommodation ſhall ſucceede. And that he will not releaſe the power of reſtoring the Lands poſſeſſed by the King of Spayne, in the Lower Palatinate. That he will remember the two Conditions of reaſſumption of the Treaty; that is, that the Summe of mony demanded by the Duke for the reſtitution of the Vpper Palatinate, be reduced to a certeinty & reaſonable proportion. And that the Duke doe declare that he will treate for the Succeſſion after him of the Dignity, upon Conditions poſſible to take effect, & ſuch as may conduce to the Satisfaction of all thoſe that are intereſſed, and the ſecure peace of the Empyre. For vntil his Majeſty our King may have ſome aſſurance in theſe poynts, there is little hope either to renew the Treaty, or to perfect it.

73. To the Biſhop of Wurtzburgh. 30 Auguſt 1642. 46. b.

Congratulating His Highneſs upon his Election; and recommending the Palatin Cauſe to his favor & furtherance, at the approching Aſſembly.

74. To Mr. Curtius. 30 Auguſt, 1642. 47. b.

That the Elector of Mentz but coldly performing his promiſe for the Suſpenſion of his cruel Edict againſt thoſe of our Religion; Mr. Curtius is required to preſs him, & not to let goe his engagement; which if he performe not, we muſt interpret an oppoſition to the reaſſumption of the Treaty. That Sir Thomas hath bene invited by the new Biſhop of Wurtzburg, to ſucceed to the friendſhip of his predeceſſor: he profeſſing his deſyre to contribute all in his power & means to the publicque peace. That if Mr. Curtius can procure from the Princes at the intended Aſſembly, a Declaration or Judgement in the Cauſe, it will be of very great advantage in the future. That if this meeting ſhould not hold (as he ſuſpecteth from a little flattering proſperity of the Emperor) Mr. Curtius is to ſend Coppies of the Paper left with him, to all the Princes, and particularly to the Biſhop of Wurtzburg, and to the 3 Cittyies, that they may be without excuſe of ignorance of our Intentions; and that no diſadvantage ariſe to the Cauſe by a ſeeming contumacye & refuſal of the Emperors invitation to returne to the Treaty vpon the 10 of January.

Now cometh the Third Part of this Volume, which Sir Thomas Roe hath thus Entitled,

"Letters written after my coming home; being commanded by His Majeſty to continew the Negotiation of the Cauſe-Palatin, & to correſpond with his Miniſters beyond Seas. 1642. 1643. 1644."

75. To the Prince Elector. 20 September, 1642. 48.

He doubteth ſtill, the King is not pleaſed with his Highneſs; and findeth the Parliament infinitely diſtaſted againſt the Queene of Bohemia & His Highneſs, but eſpecially againſt Prince Rupert, who as is reported hath done ſome outrages, & threatned firing, plundring, & forcing contribution, according to the War in Germany: inſomuch as nothing is ſo cryed out againſt, as his actions, which reflect a very ill odor vpon the whole Palatin Famelye & Cauſe. He wiſhes therefore that His Highneſs & the Queene would write to Him.

76. To the Prince Elector. 18 October, 1642. 48. b.

Complaining, as in former Letters, of the public Calamities; that here is no mediator from abroad, nor none that ſeeketh peace at home, no not one. That both ſides require obedience; no neutrality is admitted, for thoſe who are not with them, are againſt them; & thus men liue in feare & danger. The voluntary Contributions dayly encreaſe; & who will not contribute, are as Corne betweene two Milſtones. Such a condition for private men, Germany hath not tryed: for there were ſome Cittyes of Refuge; here none; all being one way, or other, engaged. That the Actions of Prince Rupert & Prince Maurice were not ſo flagrant as was reported; nor can be blamed by thoſe who know the liberty of War. That he hath heard the Cauſe of His Majeſty's Coldneſs toward His Highneſs; which he muſt reſerve, vntil he can adviſe it by a truſty Meſſenger. That he purpoſeth to continew the reſolued Correſpondence & Negotiation with Count Trautmanſdorffe & the Imperiall Miniſters; and to put vpon it the beſt face our condition can aſſume.

77. To the Queene of Bohemia. 19 October, 1642. 49.

Moſtly upon our public Calamities; concerning which he is yet perſuaded, that if any fitt Mediators were interpoſed, who might open the way to a Treaty, and who might ſpeake & propoſe to both, that which no Subject may to His King, nor no Member dare to the Parliament, it may not be impoſſible to reconcile theſe deſtructiue differences, where either part is about to fight for that, which both may haue better cheape.

78. To the Queene of Bohemia. 21 December, 1642. 49. b.

That there being a neceſſity to take Care of the publicque honour abroad; he had once more written to Sir Edward Nicholas for freſh orders.

79. To the Princeſs Elizabeth, Daughter to the Queen of Bohemia. (21 December, 1642.) 50.

That both ſides prepare for war, & are very ſtrong; & both dayly encreaſe, and are mighty to their owne deſtruction. That he himſelf hath no commerce with the Court; ſuch being His Majeſties pleaſure; and no other notice is taken of him by the Parliament, who are content to connive at his retyrement. He wondereth that the Hollanders, whom we haue tendered in their Cradle, & nurſed with our Bloud, ſhould not bend one thought to interpoſe in this our unnaturall quarrell, which may vndoe them, and involue them into ruyne. He left them in another ſenſe, and would fayne know the hinderer; or the policye of State, that defers ſuch an office.

80. To the Prince Elector; 21 December, 1642. 50. b.

That ſince His Majeſty had not found it fitt, that he ſhould give up the account of his Negotiation, he had putt Mr. Secretary Nicholas in mind, that it is moſt neceſſary not to ſeeme to ſinke under our burthen.

81. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 21 December, 1642. 51.

He deſires to ſee & kiſs His Majeſties Hands, & give ſome account of the Eſtate & Condition, wherein he left the Treaty; eſpecially ſince there is an expectation of ſome returne from him: which being omitted, the aſſembly at Francfort will be fruitleſs for us. That he had left a declaration that may produce the greateſt effect, becauſe their owne Intereſt is mingled with the Cauſe Palatin. That he hath received ſome letters both from Vienna, & the Biſhop of Wirtzburg, which confirm their expectation of his return. For, at the cloſe, he left the buſineſs in a better Condition then ever it was; or perhaps, then His Majeſty did conceiue it: which is alſo much bettered by the late Victorye of the Suedes, & humiliation of the Emperor and Duke of Bavare, who now pleads publicquely, that he was not, nor will not be the hinderance of the publicque peace. That the two mayne impediments of the generall peace betweene France & the houſe of Auſtria are removed, by the loſs of the Imperiall Army, & feare of the Duke of Bavare, on the one part; and the death of the Cardinall Richelieu on the other. That now, doubtleſs, all Art will be vſed to advance it, the Plenepotences from Spayne being arrived, in forme.

82. To Sir William Boſwell. 22 December, 1642. 51. b.

Deſcribing the ſad face of our public affairs, at that time; and wondring that he can hear of no reſolution of the States to ſeeke our peace, who haue payd ſo deare for their Security, by war.

83. To Mr. Curtis, Agent at Franckfort: 8 February, 1642-3. 52.

That having been with the King at Oxford, His Majeſty had given him the Care of the Correſpondencyes of Germany; with direction to proſecute the Treaty ſuſpended, both with his owne, and the Imperial Miniſters, and other intereſted Princes of Germany. That Mr. Curtius will receive a Congratulatory and Credentiall Letter to the Biſhop of Wirtzburg, & another to the Ambaſſadors of the Aſſembly; which, he hopes, will fully introduce him to hold up our Intereſt in the publique. Sir Thomas alſo directeth him, Firſt, that what treatye ſoever ſhall be ſettled, whether for the peace of Germany, betweene the Empyre, France, Suede, & Spayne; or particuler, by the Princes, or ſome of thoſe to preſs-in the intereſt of the Palatin Cauſe, as an ingredient neceſſary and eſſential to the Peace: without which (however fabulous rumor may decrye us) there never can, nor ſhall be any Peace or agreement, which may not be reviewed. We being as like to diſburthen our ſelves vpon the Enemyes of a juſt peace, as before we had this vnhappy diſtraction that hath armed us. Secondly, that we loſe not the ground we haue gotten on the Emperor; who hath declared for himſelf, whenſoever it may be agreed by the others Intereſſed, principally, with the Duke of Bavare. Nor, that it was conceived generally at the laſt Treaty, that the imperfection of the reconciliation did not depend vpon the merits of the Cauſe, but upon a Summe of money, & particuler ſatisfactions; which are great advantages, and in effect confeſſed by the Duke of Bavares remonſtrance. Now, for thoſe ſatisfactions; if the Duke of Bavare will deſcend to poſſibilities, the concluſion will be eaſye, & His Majeſtye will doe his part. But if he will not abate to what may be poſſible, the Princes muſt conclude it is ſtill He that will not haue peace. Yet this muſt be ſo dexterouſly inſinuated, that we do not make him more Enemye then he is. As for Mentz & Darmſtat; the generall reſolution will over-beare them. As to the Bavarian printed Apologye, the general ſcope is, only to diſburthen the envye vpon the houſe of Auſtria; &, by inſiſting vpon a ſpetious pretence of a juſt debt, impoſſible for them to pay, to keepe what he poſſeſſeth by Armes, at the coſt of the whole Empyre. Which if the Emperor & all the States of Germany will not ſee or not reſent; their caſe is as deſperate as the Palatins: all muſt ſuffer & periſh, to ſett vp a new Imperiall Famelye in Bavare; which doubtleſs is, next his owne, the French deſigne.

84. Sir Thomas Roes Inſtructions to Mr. Curtius. 8 February 1642-3 53.

Directing him how to introduce the Buſineſs into the Aſſembly, & how to carry it on: as alſo how to anſwer to the main matters contained in the Bavarian Apologie; & to make a proper advantage from the falſity of ſome of them, & the perverſeneſs of others. That he muſt keepe a watchful Eye upon the progreſs of the generall Treatyes ſo far advanced at Munſter and Oſnabrug. For, if this Aſſembly ſhould be transferred thither, His Majeſty will remove His & the Electors claymes thither alſo, as eſſential to the Peace of Germany. For, if any thing be any where concluded, with omiſſion or excluſion of that Cauſe, there will be no way left but Armes. That he ſhould keepe good correſpondence with the Miniſters of the Dukes of Brunſwick and Lunenburg; & the Landgravine of Heſſen; & all the Proteſtant States: aſſuring them, that His Majeſty will never deſert his Nephewes, nor his Allyes, nor the common Liberty & Proteſtant Religion.

85. To Count Leſley. 9 February, 1642-3. 54. b.

That he hath now begun the Correſpondence with Count Trautmanſdorff, which may grow to the renewing of the Treatyes, if the Duke of Bavare do not hope that all Germany will be content with his printed Apologyes, which doe caſt back upon the Emperor the whole burthen of not accommodating the Cauſe Palatin by his pretence of debt; and that for his private lucre of mony, that the whole Empyre will patiently endure the continuance of a conſuming war. That there being now an appearance of Peace in England, His Majesty & the Kingdome being fully armed, will be in a condition both to ayde his friends, and to oppose the obstinacy of the Enemyes of a just peace in Germany.

Num. 1901.

86. To Count Trautmansdorffe, 10 February, 1642-3. (in Italian) 55.

Reassuming the intermitted Correspondence; with divers particulars relating to this Cause, which being taken notice of before, I here omitt.

87. To the Bishop of Wirtzburg. 10 February, 1642-3. in French. 55. b.

Pushing him forward to exert himself in the assembly at Francfort, in order to the so much desired restitution of the Palatin Family, and the Tranquility of Germany. Of which, if there may appear any good prospect; his Majestie will shew his good Intentions to the whole World by his Royal Contribution.

88. To Mr. Curtius. 16 February, 1642-3. 56.

That in no Case any Treaty is to be admitted, or harkened vnto from the Elector of Mentz, to repay or redeeme his pretensions upon the Bergstraet: but that he must stand vpon this poynt, That it was vsurp'd by force, & rendred to him by an enemye; that Justice doth require, vt ante omnia spoliatus restituatur; and then let them pursue their title at Spires. That he must endeavour, not to let loose the busines to any particuler treatye, at Prague, or elsewhere: but to weaue it into the generall consultations and interests of the Empyre; engaging the Ministers of the Princes & States Protestant, & of the Cittyes, who desyre the peace, to hold it fast as essential to the publicque tranquillity & intereft of Germany. That it would much perplex the Duke of Bavare, if the Princes should be brought to aske a reason of his high demands, & call him to accompt: yet this must be so tenderly handled, as not to cast him into despayre. That the Emperor doth not much relish that this cause should be handled by the Assembly at Frankfort, nor embraced as a publicque interest; but rather to be transacted alone with Him, or concluded in a privat treatye. That the King of Denmark being the great Mediator, would haue the honour of the reconciliation, as his worke, & not let goe his owne interest in any treatye. That the best expedient would be, for the Prince Elector to procure the King of Denmarke to send his ambassadors to Francfort, there to joyne with all the Assembly, and to reassume the Treatye; and to that end to get a Safe-Conduct for the personal presence of the Elector, which would be of high advantage to his Cause.

89. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 16 February, 1642-3 57.

That the occasion of the Emperor's Agents coming to Oxford, is to press His Majesty, to declare what & how much he will contribute toward the satisfaction of the Duke of Bavare, in case of a full restitution of all the Palatin lands by him possessed; that the Emperor, as Mediator, may know how to driue the bargaine: which being expressed, the Agent hath order to declare somwhat concerning the Dignity Electorall. That these Propositions although very specious, may yet be made at this tyme for discoverye, and to draw the busines eyther to a particuler treaty, & sole dependance vpon the Emperor, and so to sever the Cause from the engagement of the Princes now assembled; which will be dangerous: or in case of a cold Answere, to dispayre the said Princes, & induce them to be less hearty in embracing this Cause, to which, the Elector is not able, nor his friends willing to contribute much. He adviseth therefore, would kindly embrace the proposition; because the Emperor is the right port, & safe way for the Prince Elector to re-enter: but not to declare any summe, till it be declared what will content Bavare. For the best way will be to keep to generall tearmes; as that His Majesty will contribute in such a proportion, as both the Emperor & all Germany shall confess both His Zeale & Bounty to promote the peace of the Empyre. But if he shall yet be pressed to name a Summe, to mention 800,000 Dollars: for Bavare will never take less, then more then thrice that mony, which must be raised jointly, by the Emperor, the Empyre, & by the Palatin allyes.

90. To the Prince Elector. 17 February, 1642-3. 57. b.

That His Majesty is well satisfyed with the state wherein the Palatin-business was left, and the Treatye also; and had commanded him to continew & keepe it aliue, by correspondence, at his owne discretion. Sir Thomas adviseth His Highness to procure the King of Denmark to send to Frankfort; and that both the Mediators & the rest of the Deputyes might vnitedly vndertake the composition; as the right course, both to remove the obstacles, and to strengthen, and to settle the treaty to a happy issue. That vpon the returne of the Emperors Agent from Oxford, he shall be better able to make some judgement, and to worke according to occasion. For, in the condition wherein both his Majesties & his Highnesses affairs are, all that can be done, is dexterously to governe the present, and to gett tyme, and to keepe the Treatyes aliue, without despayring any side. To this end, Sir Thomas will omitt no paynes, though this burthen be both too heavye & vnpleasant, to be vsed only as anothers Clarke. For he expecteth nothing but the inward reward; to employ himselfe for loue to the the cause; and, if possible, to doe good for goodnes sake. This is his portion; and he is contented to dye in it.

91. To the Princess Elizabeth. 17 February, 1642-3. 58. b.

Upon our domestic affairs: with this Observation, touching the practicableness of a Peace between the King and the Parliament,——Not that I foresee not great rocks & difficultyes; but if our other Star would be pleased to affoard & contribute the influence of her gracious beames for peace, and were now here: I should be confident. Now is the crysis, the true season, If the Queene would vse some meanes, send some Angell or Doue before Her, to assure the whole Kingdomes, that She would come, Crowned and Crowning, with the Oliue-branch: I know, She would not only be received with publicque joy, but a more Royall fleete sent to conduct her, than that of her happy mariage. She may now take the honour to her selfe, secure the Kingdomes, and her Princely children, and oblige the whole State to acknowledge her the Mother, as well of their felicity, as of their Kings. This is the opinion of many of her most devoted Servants: particulerly of some great Lords; one now present, the Earl of Pembroke: who doth now contribute all his power to peace.

92. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 8 March, 1642-3. 59.

That Monsr. Lysola the Emperors Resident hath bene very pressiue for some Declaration; whom he would not dispayre, because he hath many reasons to believe that these motions are sincere: yet he conceiveth that the Emperor eyther desyres to loosen the Prince Electors Cause from the judgment of the Princes now assembled, and the publicque interest: or, that He may have discovered the ouvertures of the Duke of Bavare, made by a Minister of the Bishop of Wirtsburg, who pretends to offer a private accommodation of the Cause, if He may haue assistance from his Majesty to revenge himselfe, and to recover his first pawne from the house of Austria. Sr. Thomas sends the answers he gave to Lysola, the drift of which were only to gain time; and desires Orders, if he be further pressed, to declare, that His Majesty will contribute, in convenient tyme a Million of Rix Dollars; which amount not to 250,000l. Sterling. Which, if it should be accepted, would be a very good bargayne, in respect of his Majesties continuall increasing pensions: and the noyse of such a Summe would stop all mouths, and have a mighty operation vpon the assembly of Princes; and, perhaps, discover the secret intentions both of the Emperor & Duke of Bavare, and shew vs which way to choose, in this variety.

93. To Mr. Curtius. 10 March, 1642-3. 60.

That his Majesty having wholly referred Monsr. Lysola the Emperors Agent to confer with him; he like a young negotiant, hath pressed that a precise & cleare declaration be made vnto him, in confidence, what Summe His Majesty will contribute toward the Satisfaction of the Duke of Bavare: without any intimation of a certeine abatement of the great demand; and what temperament His Majesty would accept for the Electoral Dignity. Two high poynts to be squeezed out at once; and vpon which, so many Ambassages & Negotiations haue shipwrakt. Notwithstanding which, he hath given such answers, as may giue full satisfaction to those who proceede with sincerity towards His Majesty. As to the ouvertures of the Duke of Bavare, made by the Deputy of Wirtzburgh; he gives his opinion; and thinketh it a matter of high consequence, and to be carefully penetrated into. Moreover, he adviseth him to adhere as close as he can to the Assembly of Princes; and to impress into them their common interest: which, if they will heartily embrace, His Majesty will contribute both his Authority & Meanes to cooperate with them by the satisfaction of Bavare; or in such other wayes, as may by their joynt advise, procure & settle the so much desyred peace of the Empyre. Sir Thomas concludeth thus, that he hath well observed the preface to the Bavarian Declaration; & is tempted to make some short reply. He desireth that it be intimated to the Bavarian Deputies, that such aspersions cast vpon those who really haue endeavoured peace, & an equall satisfaction to their Prince, are not the right wayes to procure any confidence of their sincerity, or desyre of peace. For, as there is neyther truth nor civility in their Prologue: so, if he shall be forced to discover their proceedings, he will make it appeare to the world, that the whole hath bene a Farse on their part, to abuse those who are too easily abused.

94. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 11 March, 1642-3. 61.

Upon such matters as require no particular abstract.

95. To Sir William Boswell. 17 March, 1642-3. ibid.

Giving reasons for his opinion, why the Cause Palatin should be brought before the Assembly at Frankfort; which was dessigned to debate the meanes of a general peace. In which, if it had bene wholy left out, as vnconcerning or vnnecessary to it, such a silence would haue bene enterpreted to the extreme prejudice thereof. That his purpose was; first, not to neglect the Princes, nor to seeme to separate the Cause from the publicque interest; but rather to draw a declaration from them, that this reconciliation was necessary therevnto. Secondly, to induce them as Mediators, for a temper with the Duke of Bavare; vpon which only, it was possible to renew the Treaty. And lastly, by this occasion, to move them to contribute some proportion of his Satisfaction. But never to make them Judges to giue any Sentence or Decision in the Cause. Nor could it be any trayne layd by others: for both the Emperor & Bavare haue vsed all arts there to silence it; and the dessigne proceeded from himselfe, not from the Princes. This appeared so cleare, that the Ministers of Bavare doe threaten to dissolve that Assembly (though it treate of Peace) if it meddle with the busines: which will clearly worke one of his ends, by throwing the whole Impediment upon Bavare. That Mentz, Collen & Saxe are interessed against us: Collen for his brother of Bavare; Mentz for the Bergstraet; Saxe for his sonne in law Darmstat, & his treaty of Prague; and now to be expected more partiall for the Emperor then ever, for his succour of Friberg: but many of the Papist Princes haue no other interest, but the generall peace. His judgment then is, that we shall never come to a happy issue, but by the generall Treatye of the Peace of the Empyre; if by all arts we shall be able to make our Cause appeare of absolute necessity thereunto.

96. To the Prince Elector. 17 March 1642-3. 62

Together with enclosed papers, whereby his Highnes might see how far he had proceeded; and that he had no purpose to forsake the Treaty of Mediation; or to engage the Cause to be decided; but only to be deliberated by the Assembly, concerning the Moderation, & Meanes. Being still of opinion, that if the King of Denmarke & the other Mediators would haue sent their Ambassadors thither, both the place and the conjuncture would haue bene proper & propitious. For if they shall debate upon the Meanes of a Generall peace within the Empyre, how can this business be left out? Sir Thomas will not presume to make any judgment how his Highnes standeth in the Kings opinion; in whom, nevertheless, he found no declination, if his condition were any way correspondent to his wisdome or affection.

97. To the Lord of Falckland, Secretary of State. 19 March 1642-3. 62. b.

That the Summe of all the negotiations for the Cause Palatin are resolved into an emulation, if it be sincere, whether the Emperor or Bavare shall oblige His Majesty in the restitution; both offring vpon conditions of mony, and engaging Him on their partye. For the jealousyes or hatred betweene them, are ready to breake out; et hinc sperare possumus. That when he shall know how the Declaration will be embraced by the Assembly at Francfort; his Majesty may haue some light, which way to choose: and in the meane tyme, we must entertaine every thing.

98. To Mr. Curtius. 24 March 1642-3. 63.

Shewing his gladness to finde that in many of the Deputyes there is an opinion, that the Palatin Cause ought to be embraced by the States of the Empyre; and that some of them think fitt to contribute toward the satisfaction of the Emperor, or Bavare. And advising him to procure such a declaration of their Judgment, that the Cause concerns the publicque peace, and ought to be embraced therein; and that the impediment doth rest vpon mony, and the private avarice of one man. In which, if they will undertake to mediate, that the treaty may be reassumed with any probability; his Majesty will, by a Royal Contribution, give them an Example for their owne good. For it would be of great consequence in the future to the meritts of the Cause, to haue obteyned the judgment & declaration of such an Assembly, the subject of whose meeting was the true meanes of a generall Peace. Sir Thomas agrees that the House Palatin must be restored eyther by agreement with the Emperour, or Bauare; though it may resolue into a generall Treaty. Which way of these to choose, is the knot. He believes, by the Emperor is both the righter way & the easyer; and therefore to be first pursued. For certeinly, he hath less Interest in the Restitution than Bauare; who must surrender both a principality & a beloved Dignity. And, perhaps, it may be the interest of the Emperor, rather to wish Bauare lessened, then the Palatins extinguished. For, if ever the House of Austria receive an affront in Germany, they haue cause to feare it only from that lyne. This, he wisheth, may be inculcated, as deep as may be to the Imperialls; and a necessity of ballancing the Electorall Colledge to the Protestant Princes. But seeing all wayes must be tryed; Sir Thomas desireth him to penetrate: what the Bavarian will expect from His Majesty & the House-Palatin, in case they shall treat with & adhere to him; that thereby, we may conjecture which will be the cheaper bargayne. For, if the demands of Bauare may be more moderate then those expected from the Emperor; they may be embraced, in respect of France, & Suede, & other allyes, with less opposition, then by any conjunction with the house of Austria.

99. To the Lord of Falckland. 6 April 1643. 64.

Observing, that the rest of the world, who may be

Num. 1901.

our enemyes, haſten to a Peace among themſelues; and thoſe who ſhould be our friends, make a ſilent war upon the advantage of our troubles; as may be found by the reſolutions of the Auſtrians, French, & Hollanders, to ſettle their generall Treatyes: and by the Edicts of the States, to prohibit our Commerce, contrary to the Treatyes, & the long poſſeſſion & practiſe of our Merchant-Adventurers in Holland.

100. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 6 April, 1643. 64. b.

That his own Declaration, and the Prince-Elector's Cauſe haue bene eagerly embraced by the Aſſembly at Francfort. Nevertheleſs, he his afrayd it will fall, without ſome ſupport. He ſhall keepe as much Life in it as words & intimations will mainteine; if poſſible, to carry it along, among the neceſſityes of the German peace, to the Generall Treatyes, which are now allmoſt ſetled: but there, if there be no Procurator, no Advocate; it will not be much conſidered. That the Emperors Agent preſſeth him to anſwere, whether, & what His Majeſty will contribute? That we now ſhould wyn tyme, and not diſpayre the Emperor. Therefore if His Majeſty will conſent that he may name the ſumme formerly mentioned, as it will not be obligatory, ſo it will not be accepted ſo haſtily, but that many other difficultyes will giue tyme enough to ratifye it. Yet it will both ſtop thoſe mouthes who deſyre to crye out, that His Majeſty will doe nothing, and make a great impreſſion in thoſe, who will thinke, that in ſuch an offer, His Majeſty hath done more then could be expected from Him.

101. To Mr. Curtius. 7 April 1643. 65.

Teſtifying his Joy for the Suffrages of the Aſſembly at Frankfort, gathered out of the Protocol, being more than he expected from many of them. But eſpecially, that the Directorium hath apprehended & confeſſed, that the affayre Palatin is judged, by plurality of voyces, to be one of the impediments of Peace, and that they would deliberate further vpon it. That therefore, he ſhould purſue the poynt, encourage them to conſtancy, and to follow the Vote of Wurtzburgh, to write to all, both Mediators & Intereſſed, to reaſſume the Treaty in this propitious diſpoſition and conjuncture. For, notwithſtanding the Prince Elector's different Opinion, the way to bring this great affair to a good concluſion, is not by a private treaty with Bavaria, or the Emperor & him at Vienna where the Counſellors of the Emperor will be at eaſe; and may weary thoſe that are far from home; and may ſpin out the buſineſs with fayre hopes, vntill the Generall Treatyes ſettle with an excluſion of that Cauſe, as left to a private Treaty, where in concluſion it may be deſperate. That, in view of the generall Treaty, the Proteſtation of the Duke of Bavare againſt the deliberation of the meanes of Reconciliation before the Aſſembly at Frankfort doth not affright him. For, in ſuch caſe, it will appeare publicque to the world, that he declineth the judgment of the Princes, feares the Juſtice of his Cauſe, and cannot endure the motions of Peace, which he only oppoſeth. But the truth is, he is armed & monyed, et nec Superos, nec Inferos timet.

102. To the Queene of Bohemia. 7 April 1643. 66.

That he had made vſe of her Letter, to the Lords of Holland & Pembroke (who are very well enclyned to ſerue Her) that Her buſineſs might haue moved from the vpper Houſe; and had conſulted with Sir Henry Vane and divers others of the Houſe of Commons, to haue prepared the way of a fayre acceptance. But that they haue reſolued, that it muſt moue immediately from herſelfe, by Letters to the Speakers of both Houſes, or by ſome immediate Meſſage; otherwiſe, they are of opinion it will be foyled. That he knows her Majeſties wiſdome to be ſuch, that if ſhe ſhall write, ſhe will ſo endeavour to giue the Parliament Satisfaction, as not to offend the King. That there had been an Order to ſend back her Letter to the Commons, with the Senſe of the Houſe vpon it; principally, becauſe of ſome wiſh in it, that the Prince Elector had bene as well counſelled as Prince Rupert. Sir Thomas, having in former Letters, complained of the exorbitantly-cruell Taxes levied of him by the Parliamentarian Faction, now writes that he is utterly vndone; having neyther Rent, nor meanes to liue.

Num. 1901.

103. To the Prince Elector. 7 Aprill 1643. 66. b.

That his Cauſe hath gayned much advantage; the Votes of the Aſſembly hauing concurred with his Scope & Senſe, which had theſe ends. Firſt, to enterteyne tyme; elſe the buſineſs had layne dead aſleepe: and the feare that it might be embraced by the Princes in a publicque Aſſembly, hath begott the warmth & motions made by the Emperors Agent here, & will diſcouer the Duke of Bavare & nouriſh a Jealouſy between the Emperor & him. Secondly, to gain the generall declaration & judgment from ſuch an Aſſembly, that the Excluſion of the Palatin Family was one of the principal impediments of the interne peace: which is ſomwhat, though it ſhould proue but an induction to leade it on to the general Treaty. Laſtly, that the Treaty of Mediation ſhould be reaſſumed; not at Vienna, but in the Aſſembly; who were likely to be better Moderators, then the intereſſed. Therefore he wiſhed that the King of Denmarke would haue ſent thither, where already the Ambaſſadors of all the Mediators are preſent. And that His Highnes ſhould ſpeedily apply all his endeavours to bring his buſines againe into agitation; and, at the worſt, it would be an eaſy remoue, both of the Perſons & Cauſe, to the generall Treatyes in Weſtphalia.

104. To Sir William Boſwell. 7 Aprill, 1643. 67. b.

He is ſorry the States ſhould be no wiſer then to ſhew vs how they would vſe us, if we were in their power. Which hath gotten him a Stomack, as a private man, to write to Monſieur de Meuſe, and to debate with him their proceedings; for which he hath leaue of His Majeſty.

105. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 10 Aprill, 1643. 67. b.

That his endeavours haue rayſed a great noyſe, and putt new life to the Cauſe of the Prince Palatin: which, by vote, is embraced at the aſſembly of Princes, notwithſtanding the open oppoſition of Bauare, and the vnderhand declination of the Imperiall Miniſters. That in this Negotiation hitherto, he hath obteined all his deſignes; and knoweth not what further to doe, but to leaue it to tyme, and the deliberation of thoſe, who may acknowledge themſelues concerned in it. And to that end, to purſue the poynt, he hath further inſtructed Mr. Curtius in every particular. Whether they will undertake to mediate an abatement of the 13 Millions demanded by the Duke of Bavare, he doubted: becauſe that Prince is allmoſt omnipotent, and few dare offend him. But he conceiueth, that the Emperor will endeavour ſomewhat in it, as being wholy deſyrous to end the Cauſe by a Treaty with himſelfe, rather then by a judgment of the Empyre. So that it muſt worke in both Spheres, that we may take our choice when we ſhall ſee what effects their ſeverall ends ſhall produce. Though his Judgment is, that both the Treaty by the Mediators, and the Cooperation of the Princes, as Moderators, may be joyned at Francfort, as moſt convenient for all partyes. For ſo, if that Aſſembly and all the matters handled therein, ſhall be removed to the generall Treatyes, which the Emperor endeavours, as being loth to be curbed by the authority of this Aſſembly: yet in that caſe, at the worſt, the Prince Electors Cauſe will be carryed along, as a principall ſubject of the Treaty, & Intereſt of the Empyre. Being ſo commanded by his Majeſtie, Sir Thomas delivereth his opinion concerning the Generall Treatyes; and of the conſequences & relations, that an agreement betweene the Houſe of Auſtria & France, and their mutuall Allyes, may worke vpon His Majeſties Intereſts, at home & abroad. Concluding, that the ſettlement of his Majeſties Peace & Authority at home, is only able togiue life & countenance to his Negotiations abroad. Next to that, the well-managing of the States of Holland, by reducing them to vnderſtand the ground of their owne ſafety, by a ſtrict vnion with the Crowne of Englande; from which, they ſeeme moſt vngratefully & ruynouſly to ſwerue: is the ſureſt & moſt probable way to ballance the Events of any other Treatyes, or Combinations.

106. To the Prince Elector. 14 April, 1643. 71.

Herein, is little freſh matter. Only, therewith, Sir Thomas ſent a Coppy of His Majeſties laſt Letter to him; whereby, his Highneſs might ſee His care, & conſtant affection to His cauſe.

107. To Sir William Boſwell. 14 April, 1643. ibid.

Upon the Calamities impending on the Nation, for want of Agreement.

108. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 22 April, 1643. 69. b.

That all induſtry is uſed by the Imperialls, & Bavare, to diſſolue the Aſſembly at Frankfort; under pretence of remitting all buſineſs to the generall Treatyes: not without ſome oblicque reſpect, that the Palatin Cauſe may receiue no countenance from the judgment or mediation of the Princes. And probably, that they intend to exclude the Cauſe from the publicque in the Treatye, as they did from the debate of the Dyet, & Amneſtye at Ratiſbon. For to keep it confined to a private mediation will be dangerous. Sir Thomas hath therefore adviſed Mr. Curtius to procure an Act of Declaration in that Aſſembly, conformable to their Voyces, that the Reſtitution of the Palatin famelye to their Rights is eſſentiall to the publicque Peace: there being little hope that Bavare will hearken to any mitigation of his Demands. That Bavare hath reconciled himſelf with the Emperor; and they haue joyned their Intereſts, to his advantage. For it is conceived that he ſhall obteine in full ſatisfaction of all his pretences, the land firſt pawned to him vpon the Ens; and that the poſſeſſion of the Palatinats ſhall be returned to the Emperors diſpoſing. This will much better the Condition of a Treaty, and facilitate the Reſtitution; becauſe He cannot ſo ſafely keepe them as to be an apparant hinderance to the peace. That Count Leſley writes, that the Inclination in the Emperor to giue his Majeſty ſatisfaction, was never ſo great as at this preſent; but the point of the Electorat will be the difficulty. Sir Thomas will therefore keepe vp the buſines in a generall way, as the publicque intereſt; and if poſſible, to carry it along, to the Treatyes of Munſter & Oſnabrug, where only the Cauſe can be well ſetled, & where His Majeſty ſhall haue the beſt bargayne. For the major part of the Princes & States do inſiſt & reſolue, to ſeparate in that Treatye the Intereſts of the Strangers; and to eſtabliſh the internall peace of the Empire, which includes the Cauſe Palatin. Therefor it will be neceſſary that His Majeſty & the Prince Elector doe ſend to that Meeting. That upon the deceaſe of Cardinal Richelieu, & the likelihood of the French Kings death, the face of affairs in that Kingdom is much changed. He belieueth that the French Regency will haſten the peace with the houſe of Auſtria, and will find friends to do their buſineſs with advantage. He wiſheth that ſuch an agreement may be ſtopped, vntill our kingdome may be in a better condition; and that we would ſtrengthen our ſelues by making ſtricter Leagues with our Freinds the Northerne Crownes, & helping to recover the witts of the Hollanders.

109. To the Earle of Northumberland. 3 May, 1643. Upon the then preſent Troubles. 71. b.

110. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 4 May, 1643. 72.

That having fallen into the jealouſie of the Houſe of Commons, he hath been adviſed to retyre. That the Emperor & Bavare haue accorded; and, though at the Aſſembly at Frankfort, the Princes do continue their deſyre to accommodate the Cauſe Palatin; yet ſo ſuperior is the power of the other two, that the beſt that can be expected, will be, that the particuler treaty be either reaſſumed there, if that meeting ſhall ſo long continew; or that it ſhall be carryed over amongſt the neceſſary ingredients of Peace, to the Generall Treatyes of Munſter & Oſnabrug; where, he belieueth, the accommodation muſt be made by agreement with the Emperor & Bauare. That it is requiſite for his Majeſty to take to his Conſideration, whether He will ſend & intereſs himſelf in the approaching Treaty, or not; without which, Sir Thomas conceiueth both loſs of reputation, & extreame danger to the Cauſe of the Prince Elector. That nothing is more wiſhed in the Empyre, than the death of the Duke of Bavare; he having both overſwayed the Princes by his Armes, & overwitted them in the laſt Conventions; where he promiſed to protect the publicque Liberty. In which he had no other deſſigne, but to ſhew to the Houſe of Auſtria, how neceſſary he was vnto them; and thereby to joyne their powers in prejudice of the Princes & States of the Empyre. That if the Duke of Bavaria be dead, according to a late rumor, it will be in the Emperors power to make a better bargain for himſelf.

111. To Mr. Curtius. 4 May, 1643. 73.

Declaring his Opinion, that if Bavare hath obteyned his ends, & gotten the conſent of the Emperor to haue the lands vpon the Ens in ſatisfaction of all his pretences; the Emperor may be perſuaded to accept of ſuch a Summe as can poſſibly be had, rather then by reteyning the lands remitted by Bavare in his hands, to hinder the generall peace, & take vpon him the Envye which Bavare hath ſo wiſely caſt off. Inſtructing him therefore, to aſſure the Imperiall Miniſters, that if they will reaſſume the Treaty, in an equall & convenient place, his Majeſty will largely contribute toward the Emperors ſatisfaction. Provided, we may haue nothing to doe with Bavare, nor Spayne; and that the Compoſition for the Electorall Dignity may be ſuch, as may content the Palatin Famelye; & the Proteſtants of the Empyre. But if the Duke of Bavare be dead, he muſt preſs the Princes to enterpoſe, before any thing be ſetled by inveſtiture, or admittance of an adminiſtrator (for the Minor) in the Electorall Dignity, that nothing be done in prejudice of the particuler, or generall Treatyes. Then it will be in the Emperors power to make a better concluſion, either with the Adminiſtrator, or Minor; both for himſelfe, vs, and the generall Peace.

112. To the Lord of Falkland. 5 May, 1643. 74.

Upon our inteſtine diviſions; and giving his judgement as to the method to be uſed, in order to the compoſing the ſame.

113. To Mr. Browne. 9 May, 1643.

About the Meeting intended to be held at Munſter & Oſnabrug, and the Duke of Bavarias endeavors to exclude the Palatin Cauſe from being debated therein. He giveth the preſent State of that buſineſs, for the advancement of which, he inſtructeth Mr. Browne to negotiate in his Majeſties Name, with the Miniſters of State in his Reſidence; that they give expreſs Order to protect this Cauſe in the generall Treatyes, as one of the principall impediments of the Peace, and not ſuffer it to be excluded for the advantage of the Duke of Bavare, who hath now joyned his intereſts cloſely with the Houſe of Auſtria, and uſed France only as a ſtalking horſe to his privat deſſignes. This, in honour, France cannot ſuffer: nor abandon a Cauſe, & the protection of a Prince & antient Ally, nor violate the profeſſions made particularly to His Majeſty, & publickly to the world, that ſhe took vp Armes for reſetling the Liberty of the Empyre vpon the antient foundations.

114. To Mr. Averye. 9 May, 1643. 76.

Opening unto him the State of the Palatin Affair, now, upon the approaching Treaty. That he hath diſcovered how the Dutch, for the ſake of lucre, abuſed the Danes with falſe ſuggeſtions, which begat a Coldneſs between our King & the King of Denmark his Unkle, a vaſt miſfortune to the Eaſtland Company, and to himſelf the K. of Denmark's diſpleaſure; to whom he had tranſmitted an Apology for his Conduct. He deſires to know how it was accepted by that Prince; in whom if any inclination may be found to ſettle this buſines right, our King will giue his Unkle ſuch content, as may confirme the mutuall Loue & Confidence neceſſary to them both, & to their Kingdomes.

115. To Mr. Curtius. 10 May, 1643. 77.

That he is not concerned becauſe of the Duke of Bavares being moved at his late Declaration. He hath as much cauſe, and all the Miniſters alſo, to reſent His Manifeſt & the added Preface. He cannot hope, in reſpect of the oppoſition of Bauare, and of the ſhort life of the Francfort Aſſembly, that the Treaty of Mediation can be brought thither. That if he (Mr. Curtius) can procure by the Interpoſition of the Princes, that the Treaty may be tranſacted at the generall Meeting, he ſhall haue very great hope of a good end; if we breake not concerning the Electorat, which, he fears, will proue the inſuperable rock. Sir Thomas alſo directeth Mr. Curtius, ſpeedily to informe Mr. Browne at Paris, and Mr. Avery at Hamburgh, what he findeth will be done or reſolved by the Aſſembly in the Palatin Cauſe, that they may timely negotiate fitt Inſtructions, concurrent to our ends, for the Ambaſſadors which ſhall be ſent to Munſter and Oſnabrug, from the Crownes of France, Denmarke, and Suede.

116. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 10 May, 1643. 77. b.

Acquainting him with his lateſt proceedings about the Palatin Cauſe; which, although it was all he is able to doe: is not all that is neceſſary, both for His Majeſties Honour, & Intereſt, & Reaſon of State. For howſoever His Majeſty is ſtreightned at home; it ſhould not be profeſſed abroad, by omitting to ſend to Munſter, vpon ſuch an occaſion; where, the whole Eſtate & Affayres of Europe will be brought vpon the Stage, and the ſeverall deſſignes of all Princes deſcovered. Neyther was there any Prince brought ſo lowe, but he could ſend an Ambaſſage. For it is not the Cauſe Palatin alone, (which is, in compariſon, a private buſines) but the reputation of the Proteſtant partye, in their relation to vs, and the honour of His Majeſty & the Kingdome, that will ſuffer, if we ſeeme to abandon both our ſelues & thoſe allyes which will be as neceſſary to our ſafety, as their owne. That the Earl of Arundell is allready abroad, and ſpends as much in the Courſe he is in, as he would by removing to Munſter, or Oſnabrug. That others may be found in England, glad of that protection from ruyne at home; and that the Parliament cannot oppoſe it. That Sir William Boſwell were very fitt, if his health would permitt. That a leſs quality than an Ambaſſador will haue no luſtre nor authority: for which reaſon he cannot approve of Curtius, although well verſed in public affairs. But if this cannot be done; his opinion is, that His Majeſty muſt ſuddenly ſend his Letters to the French, Danes, & Suediſh Crownes, to recommend the Cauſe wholly to them, to be negotiated & protected by their Ambaſſadors; and ſo wholly to depend vpon them.

117. To Sir Dudley Carleton. 11 May, 1643. 78. b.

Wiſhing that the Prince Elector may not be deceived, in the ſetling of his Penſion vpon a ground that cannot hold; was once held a grievance; and to which, ſome of his good friends haue a title. He would be glad the States would doe any thing that might make vs thinke they deſyre our peace; and that the common error did not blind them. That they ought to conſider, that a change in France, may change the Counſells & Government there: and if England be reduced to that condition that it be not able to aſſiſt them; or by their demerit, unwilling to doe it: the French will ſcrue them to what tearmes they pleaſe. Therefore, now is the tyme, that they may ſhew wiſdome, loue, & gratitude:

and if they haue none of theſe qualëtyes, they muſt expect retribution of the ſame meaſure.

118. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 11 May 1643. ibid.

That the Emperor will make no peace with France, but compriſing and compoſing the controverſyes with Spayne. For he hath aſſured the Duke of Bavare to him; who, like a ratt, hath quitted the houſe, he foreſaw would fall, when Richelieu the great Pillar was removed. So that the difficultyes in the generall treaty may be encreaſed, by the heightening of the Spirits & Demands of the Auſtrians, unleſs the French will yeild vp more than will ſort with their honour, & late ſloud of proſperity. That we ought not to neglect the French, if they may be induced to embrace the Palatin affayres in their treaty, which may be, to them, an advantage of honour. For, peace will not be made, vnleſs France make large ſurrenders: and they haue been ſo ſucceſsfull, that they haue nothing to remand, except Nauare, & the reſtitution of their allyes; thereby to mainteyne their reputation, that they giue not all for nothing. That Mr. Curtius hath written, that the Aſſembly will adhere to their votes. But it is diſcovered, that the Emperor & Bavare would exclude the Palatin Cauſe, as well from the Generall Treatyes, as they haue endeavoured to ſilence it at Francfort. Therefore, we muſt plye & preſs the three Crownes of France, Denmarke, & Suede, that they will inſiſt upon it, that the buſines doth concerne the General peace, at leaſt the interne tranquillity of the Empire.

119. To the Prince Elector. 12 May, 1643. 79. b.

Beſides what hath been before rehearſed, that he can foreſee no good ſucceſs if his Highneſs be left alone, to the mercy of the intereſſed, in a particular & private treaty. Which makes him wonder at the opinion of thoſe of his Highneſſes Counſell, that the Mediation ſhould be reaſſumed in the preſence of the Aſſembly at Francfort. And is therefore very ſorry that HE had ſo much enclined to them, as coldly to accept what was endeavoured; which had kept the Cauſe aliue, and made it publicque; and which, without that communication, had never bene accepted in the general Treaty; but vnderſtood, as the Imperialls & Bauarians ſtyle it, a private affayre betweene the Emperor & his Highneſs, no way concerning the Empyre nor publicque peace: that His Majeſties offer would have been refuſed at Vienna, and ſo ſtated; whereas at the generall Treaty, it will make a great noyſe, and the oportunity will be fayre, if the death of the French King rayſe not the Auſtrians too high; or that the Counſells in France warpe not toward the Spaniard.

120. To the Princeſſe Elizabeth. 12 May 1643. 80.

Upon our own Confuſions; the folly or madneſs of the Dutch, who interpoſe not themſelves in order to procure a peace between our King & his People; wherein themſelves are ſo much concerned, eſpecially now upon the death of the French King, which may be attended by alterations much to their prejudice. That the Palatin Cauſe is now in the Cryſis; and, if the deciſion be not more publicque, than ſome doe counſell, it is deſperate. Sir Thomas wiſheth therefore, that her Brother the Prince-Elector be not deceived in the wayes wherein he now ſeemeth to truſt, both here & abroad.

121. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 19 May, 1643. ibid.

Concerning the ſtate of the Palatin cauſe; about which, here is little freſh matter. That he ſuſpecteth the K. of Denmark may have made ſome private Treaty with Bavare, which may bring ſome prejudice to this Cauſe; and that this Duke, being not heartily affected to the Emperor, may encline more to the French ſide. That the French Parliament hath enlarged the Queens Authority as Regent, and ſettled their National Affairs, eſpecially the power of the Princes & Great Officers in a ſtate of Peace & Tranquillity. Moreover, Sir Thomas heareth from thence, that the Queene Regent & the whole Counſell do reſent the preſſures of our Parliament againſt his Majeſtie as an effect of the miſtaken doctrine of the reformed religion; which is like to make that partie ſuffer in France, at leaſt to be kept very low, for feare of the Example. And, that they encline very zealouſly to aſſiſt & protect the declining Royaltie: and to that end, they purpoſe ſpeedily to ſend hither, to expoſtulate with the Parliament concerning the Cappuchins; and vpon that occaſion to make ſome other ouvertures.

122. To Mr. Burlemachy. 23 May, 1643. 81.

In anſwer to a letter, wherein Sir Thomas was aſked, whether a mediation from the States Generall were ſeaſonable, & likely to take any good effect for our peace? He giveth his opinion, at large, in the affirmative, & that it would be both honourable & advantagious to that State to offer ſuch a Mediation, & would ſhew their wiſdome & gratitude by proſecuting the ſame. And though it might ſeeme very late, yet it might ſtill be ſeaſonable, if they ſhould dexterouſly manage the occaſion of the firſt Entrance. In this laſt reſpect Sir Thomas giveth his advice.

123. To Mr. Curtius. 25 May, 1643. 81. b.

Concerning the Palatin-cauſe, which muſt, by all meanes, be brought into the public Treatie, & not be left to private Charetye. Adviſing what he ſhould intimate to the Princes, concerning the Electoral Dignity; and giving his opinion touching the reſtitution of the lands taken from the Duke of Bavaria's Anceſtor, by the Emperor Maximilian the firſt.

124. To Mr. Curtius. 26 May, 1643. 82. b.

That our oppoſites intend a Labërinth, out of which we ſhall neuer gett, but at their pleaſure. That the Imperialls & Bauarians haue craftely obteyned their ends. Therefore he muſt, if it be not too late, awaken the Princes from the ſlumber into which the charmes of Bauare hath caſt them. That they have forſaken their honour, their intereſt, & their votes. Yet, if they will add a judgement or Declaration, that the Cauſe doth concerne the publicque ſo much, that it is neceſſarye to be decided among the impediments of the interne peace; it will be ſome amends. If they dare not do it, there is no more truſt, no courage in them: but we muſt fly to the Strangers the Three Crownes; to force them to ſee their own fayntneſs & impotencye.

125. To the Prince Elector. 26 May, 1643. 83.

That the Emperor & Duke of Bavare haue endeavoured nothing more ſeduloufly, then to ſeparate his highneſs cauſe from the publicque: which, if they can doe (and they have done much more than was expected) they will have the game ſure in their owne hands. For that reaſon, he deſired to weave it into the publicque conſultations of the meanes of peace; not in hope to ſee at Francfort a finall deciſion, but to putt life in the buſines, which otherwiſe had layne ſilenced in expectation of reaſſumption of a private Treatye; vpon which, the Emperor would neuer haue called, if he had not beene awakened by that alarme. That the offers he hath made to Iſola, are only to keepe the Emperor in a good diſpoſition, & continue the Treatye in the way reſolved at Vienna: leaſt, if we ſhould ſay nothing, it might be objected that wee had broken it, or diſcontinued it on our part. That he hath received ſomewhat from Count Trautmanſdorffe, Which, he thinks, doth ſay, that this buſines is now wholly in his maſters power; and that he will ſpeedily putt an end vnto it, either before or at the generall Treatyes from this expreſſion, ſperandum illud die ac tempore ipſo ad ſuam maturitatem breui peruenturum. That therefore His Highnes muſt endeavour, by all his friends, to bring his cauſe to the publicque treaties, and to ſtrengthen it there by the three Crownes; and vſe all the power he hath in England to procure His Majeſtie to ſend his Ambaſſador to aſſiſt. Elſe the world will judge that we haue deſerted ourſelves & our Allyes; and the Miniſters will be cold enough, ſhould none be preſent to watch ouer them, and hold them faſt to their profeſſions.

Num. 1901.

126. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 30 May, 1643. 83. b.

Shewing by many forcible reaſons, how neceſſary it was, that his Majeſty ſhould ſend an Ambaſſador to the approaching Treaties: which yet, if his Neceſſities would in no caſe permit, the expectance thereof ought, nevertheleſs, to be kept up; and Negotiations ought to be had with the three Crowns of France, Denmark, & Sueden, that the buſineſs might be brought to good effect by their Authority. That Monſr. Iſola the Emperors Reſident here, in his propoſitions given to His Majeſtie at Oxford, in February laſt, hath gone far beyond his Inſtructions & Commiſſion; and is like to be diſavowed. For the Duke of Bavare hath gotten a Coppie of them, and written a ſharp Letter to the Emperor, reſenting the injurye, and proteſting againſt the performance, on his part. Hereof Sir Thomas hopes to make a very good uſe; the drift being to diſengage us from ſeeking to bring the Palatinat-cauſe to the cognition of the Aſſembly at Francfort, or to the generall Treaties; which, if effected, the game would be in their own power.

127. The Heads & Subſtance of what is conceiued requiſite to be negotiated with the Crownes of France, Denmarke, & Suede, in preparation to the generall Treaties deſſigned; particularly in the cauſe Palatin; partly by Letters Credentive, partly by the Negotiation of the Miniſters of His Majeſtie, with them reſident. 31 May, 1643. 84. b.

128. To Mr. Auery. June 1. 1643. 86.

That the Imperialls & Bauarians haue ſo far preuayled by their Arts, as to ſilence the further proſecution of the Palatine-buſineſs at Frankfurt; and to exclude it from the Generall Treatyes (if they can) as a particular difference betweene the Emperor & the Houſe Palatin, no waye concerning the Publicque. Sr Thomas hopes that the 3 Crownes, who will be the great Actors in the General Treatye, will reſent this cunning, which hath awakened our King; who hath ſent freſh Orders to oppoſe this deſſigne, by engaging Denmarke & Sueden to inſiſt upon the Comprehenſion of this Cauſe, as eſſential to the Peace of the Empire.

129. To Mr. Browne. June 1. 1643. ibid.

Much to the ſame purpoſe; with Orders to prepare the French to make the ſame Motions.

130. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 2. June, 1643. 86. b.

Reciting various Opinions as to what would be fit for our King to do at this juncture. His own is, that His Majeſtie ſhould write to the 3 Crownes, the Elector of Brandenburg, the Dukes of Lunenburgh, & Landgrave, of Heſſen, and alſo to ſome choyce Miniſters, to take the buſineſs into their managë, and make a good end thereof at the generall pacification.

131. To the Queene of Bohemia. 7 June 1643. 87.

Shewing, in the main, his affection to Her Majeſties Service, though unable to advance in any great degree. Talks, as if ſomewhat might be expected from the Parliament; eſpecially for her Subſiſtance. But laments our public differences.

132. To the Prince Elector. 7 June, 1643 87. b.

Relating what hath been lately done in his buſineſs; with his own opinion, which he ſubmits to the Electors Will.

133. To Princeſs Elizabeth, the Elector-Palatin's ſiſter. 7 Juue, 1643. ibid.

Giving his Senſe upon the partial Conduct of the Dutch, who would make an advantage by our Troubles of which he believeth, that, ſooner or later, they will repent: ſince too much Caution, and open Covetouſneſs, are but Follies. That her Brother hath accepted of a weak foundation of Subſiſtance, viz. 12000l. per annum upon upon the Braſs Farthings; which Penſion is now in great Arrear. That, at the beſt, the Thing was not worth to the Undertakers 3000l. yearly; and then it was a grëeuance to the Kingdome; and will be greater, if enlarged.

134. to Mr. Curtius. 8 June, 1643. 88.

Inſtructing him how to proceed in the management of the Palatin-affair; which our King will never deſert. He juſtifies His own late Declaration, which none think injurious to the Colledge Ellectorall, but One Doctor. That He communicated the Subſtance thereof to the Electors of Mentz & Collen, the one a Friend, the other a Brother to the Duke of Bauare, who took no Exceptions, but (being convinced) rather approved it. Adding, that as the Greateſt Clerkes, are not the Wiſeſt Men: So, He has obſerved, that all the Treatyes & Reſolutions of the Princes of Germany, (which ſhould be managed by generous Spiritts, ſenſible of Honour) are ouer-ſeaſoned with that too-learned ingredient of Doctors, like good Broth ouer-ſalted. Thus, he leaves & deſpiſes their Cenſures.

135. To Sir William Boſwell. 6 June, 1643. 88.

That the Aſſembly at Frankfort hath done ſome Good, in diſcouering the Emperor Duke of Bauare (who is very angry) that the Votes will remayne vpon the Regiſter, and ought to be a great Inducement to the Crownes to embrace the Cauſe, by Judgment of the Princes, declared eſſential to the interne Peace. He wonders at the Conduct of the States; who act not as they are obliged by the antient Treatyes, or at leaſt by the Equitye of them: whereby they ought not to enterteyne a Conference of Peace with Spayne, without acquaynting our King.

136. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 12 June, 1643. 89.

That the Deputies of the Princes aſſembled at Francfort, will inſiſt upon their Votes. That Mr. Curtius hath there preſented a Memoriall, to require an Anſwere to His Credence; which will engage them to ſome Declaration more publique. That the Duke of Bauare & His Miniſters are much diſcompoſed, finding that this great affaire will not be remitted in a Corner, to be treated at Vienna, or in any priuate Colloquye, but in the face of the Empyre; and before thoſe, who will not ſo much reguard his 13 Millions, as the publicque Safetye, & Peace. That they now wiſh, they had rather conſented to have had it ended there, where there was ſome appearance of Contribution; then by the generall Treaties, where He can expect nothing but the Honor to haue ſacrificed his privat Pretenſions to the publicque: or to be left to the Lawes, to recouer of the Emperour. He conceiveth that the Letter of that Duke to the Emperour hath made all the Princes ſee, that there is no purpoſe in him to agree with the Elector Palatin; but to ſeparate him from the protection of the publicque Intereſt, vnder the colour of a priuat Treatye. So that there is nothing to be truſted unto, of Monſr. l'Iſola's ouuertures made to His Majeſtie at Oxford, which by Bauare are required to be reuoked.

137. To Mr. Browne. 14 June, 1643. 89. b.

Directing him to ſolicit the French Court for Inſtructions to their Ambaſſadors; and to procure (if poſſible) a Letter, or ſome equal Signification from that Crowne, to the King of Denmarke as the Great Mediator, for Comprehenſion of the Elector-Palatin & his Famelye as an Allye; that His Cauſe may be decided at the General Treaties as eſſential to the Peace. With a preſent conjecture at the Danes behaviour then, & the reaſon thereof.

138. To Mr. Curtius. 15. June, 1643. 90.

Approving his proceedings. That He (Sir Thomas) has endeavoured to prepare the King of Denmarke to remove his Mediation to the Generall Treaties; when he may have Concurrence & Help, ſo as not to be ouer-ſwayed by pluralitie of intereſſed Voyces. To which end alſo, he hath endeavoured to procure Letters from France & Suede.

He likewiſe gives further Directions, how to act with regard to the Emperor, in this affair.

139. To Mr. Auery. 19 June, 1643. 90. b.

Touching the private Views of the King of Denmarke, & of the Duke of Bauare; hoping, that His Daniſh Majeſty will not be made the Inſtrument of betraying that Cauſe, he ſo generouſly undertook to protect. Which Cauſe is of too high a Nature as to become a precedent for all Cauſes (as ſome pretend) & conſequently an obſtruction to the general Peace. This being the Caſe of Confiſcation of the firſt (temporal) Prince of the Empire; and the Tranſlation of an Electoral Dignitye; which is the Intereſt of the King of Denmark, as well as of all other Proteſtant Princes to prevent, and in it ſelf, not triable at the Imperial Chamber. That the general Opinion is, that the Peace cannot be concluded, or at leaſt ſecured, without the Reſtitution or Extinction of the Palatin-Family. And that France & Sueden, eſpecially, are of this Judgment, underſtanding the Elector-Palatin as an Allye of their Crownes; in which Qualitye they have procured Safe Conduct for his coming or deputing, to the general Treaties: not being willing that a Cauſe of this high concernment, ſhould be remitted, or hazarded in a privat meeting, wherein they ſhall haue neither Intereſt, nor Communication. That the Imperial Miniſters at Francfort, have privately confeſſed that their Maſter doth now deſire that the buſineſs may now be ended, by the Authority of the States of the Empire; in hopes of bridling the Demands of the Duke of Bavare, which he can not expect by any private Mediation; but that the Debt, or a Quarrell, muſt wholly reſt upon him, & his Houſe. Sir Thomas alſo ſetts forth the preſent good Diſpoſition of the Electors of Saxony & Brandenburgh, & of the Imperiall Townes, to this good & great Work. That the King of Denmarke & his Sonnes, will be better ſecured by obliging & aſſuring the Proteſtant Partye to Him, than by all the hopes he can have of the Auſtrians; & may make himſelfe General of the two Circles, being moſt Proteſtants, ſooner by his owne Meritt & Authoritye, then by the Suffrage of thoſe who cannott take pleaſure in any acceſs of Reputation to Him. Sr. Thomas deſires him to open a way for rectifying the miſtakeings which have happened between our King & the Dane. That His Majeſtie will doe all things on his part, if the King of Denmark will ſettle the Tolls according to the Dutch Agreement, according as He is bound by Treatye. If he will not; we may be, for a tyme, oppreſſed; but the Nation, or Traders, will not beare it.

140. To the Prince-Elector. 30 June 1643. 92.

Giving His Highneſs an Account of what had lately been done in his Buſineſs, eſpecially with relation to the King of Denmark. And adviſing him to induce our King to ſend an Ambaſſador to the Public Treaty, in Order to countenance & promote His Cauſe.

141. To Mr. Browne. 1 July 1643. 92.

Deſiring him to induce the Queen Regent, & Miniſters of the Court of France, to ſignifie to the King of Denmarke their Reſolution, to have the Palatin-buſineſs comprehended in the General Treaties. That in Order to this, He may aſſure them, that ſuch a Reſolution will be acceptable to that King, who hath lately written to the Emperor & Duke of Bavare, that this Cauſe could not be accommodated, but by the Generall Treatye. And that the Queene of Suede hath given the Prince-Elector aſſurance, that ſhe will uſe all her Power, in the Aſſembly, to reſettle him in his Rights. And that ſhe hath, to that purpoſe, commanded her Ambaſſador to negociate the Cooperation of the Crowne of France with Her. That, it is probable that the Duke of Orleans will ſtrenuouſly endeavor at the Reſtitution of the Houſe of Lorreyne; whereby the French Crown may gain much Honor, by ſetting againſt it, the Reſtitution of the Houſe Palatine. That the Cauſes and Qualities of thoſe Princes being equall, the French may be thereby invited to oblige two Friends by one Worke. For, without both be reſtored, there can be no Peace.

142. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas, 3 July 1643. 94.

Propoſing that our King ſhould ſend an Ambaſſador to the General Treatie; as alſo earneſtly to recommend the Exchange (i. e. the Reſtitution of the Houſe of Loranie on the one ſide, for that of the Palatin-Family on the other) as the moſt probable way to move the Crowne of France to give that Peace to Europe, which they do publicquely pretend; and without which, there can be no conſtant Peace. For, ſuch an Exchange may be favored both by the Spaniards and the Duke Bauare, becauſe of the Houſe of Lorreyne, whoſe Reeſtabliſhment they will jointly inſiſt vpon in the Treatye, both for reaſon of State, and for Allyance in Bloud. He gives reaſons for his Opinion and the probability of it; and deſires that His Majeſtie would write Letters (recommending the Palatin-Cauſe) to the Emperor; the three Crownes, the States General the Electors; and eſpecially to thoſe of Saxe & Brandenburgh, to the Landgravine of Heſſen, & Dukes of Lunenburgh & Brunſwicke.

143. To Mr. Curtius. 4 July 1643. 94. b.

That the 3 Crownes have aſſured us, that they will embrace the Palatin-cauſe as publicque; and that Denmarke hath written to the Emperor, that it cannot any where be accommodated, but in the generall Treatye. Wherefore, Sir Thomas doth not weigh the opinion of the Ambaſſadors of Collen, who ſpeake as they deſire, in compliance with the Duke of Bauare. That Monſr. Iſola, the Emperors Miniſter, is gone to Oxford with ſome new Bayts: but ſince it is found by the Duke of Bauares Letter to the Emperor, that he will reſtore nothing, but modo ſuo; and that the Emperor cannot performe without him; all Communication vpon his Ouvertures, & offers on his Majeſties part, are fallen; and the Cauſe muſt ſtick only to the Judgement of the great Tribunal.

144 To Mr. Auery. 5 July 1643. 95.

Settiug forth the Steps that have been taken by the 3 Crownes, in order to accommodate this great Affair at the General Treaty. That the Queene of Suede hath written a very heartye Letter to the Prince Elector, ſignifying that ſhe hath giuen Commiſſion to the Plenipotentiaries, and moued the French Reſident in her court, and alſo written effectually to Monſ. Grotius to negotiate & agree with the Crowne of France, for its Concurrence and Cooperation. Profeſſing, that ſhe will mainteyne the Honour & Juſtice of her Father in undertaking a War for the Reliefe of his oppreſſed Friends. And, that if others, particularly the Princes of Germany, will cloſely adhere; She will endeavour a generall Reduction of all the States, to the ſtate of the yeare 1618. Further, Sir Thomas deſires to know if he hath moued any thing to Monſr. Rauentclaw the Daniſh Miniſter, concerning the Accommodation of the Treatye of Commerce, & the Eaſe of the Merchants, who ſuffer on all ſydes.

145. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 17th July 1643. 95. b.

That the Prince Electors Cauſe is in a fayre way toward Munſter, whither he is reſolved to ſend His Deputyes; with deſyre that ſome may be employed by His Majeſty to aſſiſt there. That a Letter will come, from the Electors to our King, deſiring him to ſend his Ambaſſador to reſume the Private Treatye; touching an Anſwer to which, Sir Thomas gives his Judgment. That new Credential Letters will be neceſſary for introducing Mr. Avery into this Negotiation; wherein, it will be requiſite to give him both Grace and Authority. For he hath complained, that being employed to the King of Denmarke for the Eaſtland-Company: his laſt Credentialls were altered in the Style & Titles; & ſo reſtreyned & limited, that at firſt he was refuſed Audience as a pub-lieque Miniſter, & ſlighted by thoſe appointed to hear him and ſent away re infecta: under which diſgrace, he ye ſuffereth in that Court. That the Duke of Orleans & His Party will returne, not only into Reconciliation; but to prime Authority in the manage of State-Affayres in France; being united (by the Wiſdome of the Duke of Guiſe) to ſecure their future Condition. That their full Reeſtabliſhment will be ſtrongly favoured by the Houſe of Auſtria; and conſequently, they will be the fitteſt Inſtruments for working the Protection of the Palatin Cauſe; the Satisfaction of the Duke of Bauare; and the Conſent of the Emperor & King of Spain. That they are moſt like of any to keep good Correſpondence with our King; and (though it appeare a Paradox) not to diſfavour the Proteſtant Partye, whoſe depreſſion they haue found to have been the Oportunity of that abſolute Power exerciſed in the late Government.

146. To Mr. Browne. 18 July 1643. 96. b.

That if the two Crownes (i. e. France & Sueden) can ſettle & agree their owne Intereſts; the right way to end the Quarrels of Germanye will be in the lump. Not to diſpute this & that Pretenſion apart, and to weigh the Merits of euery Circumſtance; but to inſiſt vpon the reſtoring of the Condition & Libertye of the Empire, & of euery oppreſſed Prince & State, to what it was, & what they juſtly poſſeſſed in the yeare 1618. before the War begun. He is deſired therefore to inſinuate this Doctrine, & the Conſequences thereof into the French Miniſters; that by their apprehending or rejecting it, a judgement may be made as to what may be hoped from them.

147. To the Prince Elector. 19 July 1643. 97.

That he hath ſent all His Highneſſes Letters to our King, as alſo the Contents of them; but hath received no Direction thereupon; which Sir Thomas imputed to the nearneſs & daily action of both Armies.

148. To the Queene of Bohemia. 19 July 1643. ibid.

Is glad that our Parliament hath given Her a little Money; wherewith the King will be content, ſince he could not do it himſelf. As for his own Circumſtances, Sir Thomas writes thus, I neuer yet felt want, which now I ſuddenly feare. For my Rents are either taken vp, or vpon pretences not payd; and from the King no Releife; nor can I expect it, vntill God haue mercye vpon the whole Kingdome, whoſe State I tremble to conſider.

149. To Princes Elizabeth. 19 July 1643. 97. b. Complimental.

150. To Sir William Boſwell. 19 July 1643. ibid.

Comforting him in his preſent Affliction; and ſhewing this Satisfaction at the good Diſpoſition the French ſeem to be in, for advancing the Palatin Intereſt.

151. To Mr. Curtius. 20 July 1643. 98.

Blaming the Conduct of certain German Miniſters in this Affair. Deſiring him to ſend the Names, Titles, & Qualities of our Friends Ambaſſadors & Plenepotentiaries which ſhall aſſiſt in the Generall Treatye; becauſe there may be occaſion for His Majeſtie to write unto them. Is glad that the Duke of Bauare vnmaſkes himſelfe with Bravado's toward the Proteſtant Princes; preſſing their Contribution to ruyne themſelues. That the Truth is, the Princes haue vſurped vpon the Libertye of the Free-Townes; and therefore, as juſtly the Electors haue taken away the Libertye of the Princes. They ought therefore to take heed they giue not vp the libertye of all Germanye, to one who will trample vpon it.

152. To Monſieur Iſola, Reſident here for the Emperor; in French. 22 July 1643. ibid.

Giving him a Touch (as he expreſſeth it in the next Letter) that He might not think he walked inviſibly; or that His Majeſty would depend vpon any Priuat Treatye, againſt the Hopes whereof the Duke of Bauare had proteſted.

153. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 22 July 1643. 98. b.

Concerning the Motion for a Marriage between Prince Rupert & Mademoiſelle de Rohan. Alſo, of another, for the Spaniards obliging His Majeſty, by giving up what they hold in the Lower Palatinate; now that the French are about to take Theonuille; which hath haſtened a reſolution in the Emperor to reſtore the Duke of Simmeren.

154. To Mr. Auery. 26 July 1643. 99.

That what he hath done with the French and Swediſh Miniſters, will be acceptable to His Majeſtie: and therefore directs him to proſecute his beginnings, to bring the cauſe to publicque Cognition, & to run along with the fortune of the Generall Peace. That it will be the Intereſt of the French to maynteyne the Partye of the Religion in Germany; ſince they cannot balance the Power & Growth of the Auſtrians, but by the Proteſtant Partye.

155. To Mr. Browne. 27 July 1643. 99. b.

That Duke Charles of Lorrain is in a faire way to make his owne Peace with France. Which he would haue ſo letted & obſtructed, by remitting the final Concluſion thereof to the General Treatie, as that the Intereſt of the Palatin Cauſe may be promoted thereby. That this Game hath often beene playd ſecrettly betweene France & Spayne, with the Old Duke of Savoy, and may now be of great advantage to Us. That the Emperour hauing reſolved to reſtore the Duke of Simmerin & Electrice-Dowager, upon the feare of Theonville: He hopeth they may do as much for the Prince Elector, if preſſed; at leaſt to quitt Bacherach, Franchendall, & Oppenheim: this being the time for fiſhing in their troubled Waters.

156. Sir Thomas Rowe's ſhort Cenſure of the Bauarian Libel. ibid.

157. To Mr. Curtius. 1 Auguſt, 1643. 100.

Sir Thomas belieueth that the Bauarian Libel was not read in that Duke's Chancery, though dictated in the Aſſembly: But that if it be authorized and acknowledged, He ſhall not fayle to unravell it, and to lett them alſo taſt of his Inke. That the French Order for terminating the Prince Elector Palatins Intereſt at the General Aſſembly, is very poſitive; not only concerning the Reſtitution of his Countrye, but of the Electorall Dignitye, as being the more important Poynt, for the aduantage of that Crown. That this Comfort is to be infuſed into the Proteſtant Princes & States; who adhæring ſtoutly & conſtantly, the Balance (whoſe inequalitye will vndoe them all) may be brought right. That it will not be long before they who now deſpiſe Vs, & take the boldneſs to profeſſe it, may both need & feare us: and that whatſoeuer the Emperor cannott, or Bauare will not doe; if the Crownes hold their Words, Neceſſitye will enable & enforce.

158. To Mr. Auery. 2 Auguſt, 1643. 100. b.

Is ſorry that the Suedes Inſtructions are not ſo expreſs, to embrace the Palatin-Cauſe, as an Eſſentiall to the Peace. But his Opinion is, that thoſe of France ſhould deeply engage the Cooperation both of the Suede, and of the King of Denmarke. That notwithſtanding the Emperors endeavors to remove Matters to Vienna, and Invitation of the Electors thither, where the Old Treatye may be reaſſumed at his Court: our King is reſolued to runne the fortune of the Generall Peace.

159. To the Prince-Elector. 9 Auguſt, 1643. 101.

That Monſr. Iſola had ſent him Word, that his Journey to the Court at Oxford, was only to giue Aduertiſement to His Majeſtie, that the Emperor his Maſter had condeſcended, that the Palatin-Cauſe ſhould be treated at the Generall Aſſembly. That this contradicts what Mr. Curtius had adviſed, vizt. that his Commiſſion was to ſignifye the adjournment of the Priuat Treatye to the end of Auguſt, at his owne Court. That Mr. Browne hath ſollicited a Letter from the French Court to the King of Denmarke; to ſignifye their Reſolution to have the ſaid Cauſe brought to the Publicque Deciſion; but that he cannot obteyne a direct Anſwere; which looks aſquint vpon their other profeſſions. That he hath done the Office to the Duke of Orleans, which hath beene well enterteyned, and may work ſome good effect; eſpecially if ſeconded by a Letter from himſelf.

160. To Mr. Browne. 9 Auguſt, 1643. 101. b.

That Monſr. Iſola hath informed him that his Journey to Oxford was only to enforme His Majeſtie how the Emperor his Maſter had condeſcended that the Palatin cauſe ſhould be treated at Munſter; which is a great poynt; and of which, he may make extraordinarie uſe. Sir Thomas congratulates His happines & dexterous Negotiation, in procuring ſo fayre & poſitiue Inſtructions in this great buſines. To which, if He can add the Fauour & Aſſiſtance of the Duke of Orleans, and the partiſans of the houſe of Lorreyne, the Worke is halfe done: but that a Letter to the King of Denmarke, would be a publicque engageing of the Crowne of France.

161. To Mr. Curtius. 9 Auguſt, 1643. ibid.

That the Bavarian Libel being in Print, & ſomewhat more publicquely authorized, They who haue ſaid what they ſhould not, may heare what they would not, That the Opinion of Monſr. Langerbec & others, who ſay that the Action of the Duke of Bauare eſt fondé en Droit, &c. may be true in relation to the Emperor; but in relation to the Prince-Elector-Palatin, it is falſe; his owne publicque acts diſclayming any. And if he haue bought or accepted any thing of the Emperor, which He could neither giue nor ſell, by the fundamentall Lawes of the Empire: ſuch Purchaſe can giue him no Right; nor he be] ignorant of the rule Caueat Emptor. Sir Thomas replies to thoſe who pretend that he acquieſces to the reaſſumption of the particular Treatie vpon Conditions; that thoſe Conditions haue beene refuſed by the Duke of Bauare; ſo that he is not bound. Nor can the Act of Invitation of the Emperor oblige him, being made & publiſhed after his Departure.

162. To Mr. Auery. 17 Auguſt, 1643. 102.

That the Emperor hath condiſcended that the Palatin-Cauſe ſhall be treated & decided at the General Aſſembly at Munſter & Oſnabrug. That as to the Duke of Bauare, &c. he pretends the purſuing the particular Mediation; and to Us, the Generall Treatye: which laſt ſeemeth trueſt, becauſe he hath ſent the Elector-Palatin another Safe-Conduct, dated in July. That this is the moſt probable way for him to diſcharge & free himſelfe from the extravagant Demands & Entanglements with Bauare, whoſe preſſures & menaces are inſupportable, as well to him, as to all other the free States & Princes of the Empire.

163. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 21 Auguſt, 1643. 102. b.

Concerning Letters to be written to the King & Princes intereſſed in the generall Treaties. recommending the Palatin cauſe. That the Houſe of Lorreyne do treate their owne peace in France; which may engage many Friends unto the ſaid Cauſe. He thinks that in the Letters to France & the King of Denmarke, Credences to Mr. Browne & Mr. Auerye ſhould be deſired, mentioning only the general ſubject: becauſe it would giue a larger ſcope to ſpeake, & urge many things not proper for the Letter of a King; and he himſelf can more fully inſtruct them. That Mr. Curtius preſſeth to haue a particular Credentiall to the Elector of Mentz, as Director of the Colledge, to reſent ſome vnſeemly proceeding of the Duke of Bauare at Francfort. That the ſame Duke not hauing ſpared himſelf in a publicque writing; Sir Thomas deſireth the Kings leaue to giue a Replye of good Inke, without Gall: believing, that, in a point of Honour, His Majeſty cannott be too ſenſible; leaſt the Example preuayled to exclude any of His Miniſters, or their Negotiations, vpon any of the affayres of the Empire; which the King of Suede apprehended as an Injvrye, & motiue of his his Reuenge. That a Letter to his Majeſtie from the King of Poland, is left with him, but without a Coppie. But ſeeing that there is ſome Diſtaſt between them; He deſires to know His Majeſties pleaſure, whether it ſhould be ſent unto Him, or returned.

164. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 26 Auguſt, 1643. 103.

Touching the Letters to the Kings & Princes treating the General Peace; which he had drawn up, in obedience to His Majeſties Commands. That he ſhall not need to adverтiſe the Comminge of the Count de Harecourt from France in Ambaſſage; nor what he heareth Grotius hath aduiſed of his Meſſage: If it be true, it is of very great conſequence, and His Majeſtie will take it to deepe & ſerious Conſultation.

165. To the Princeſs Elizabeth. 31 Auguſt, 1643. 103. b.

That while England languiſhed, he ſees fayre beames ſhine vpon her Brothers Cauſe; which will be embraced by thoſe who will haue Power to protect it.

166. To Mr. Browne. 5 September, 1643. ibid.

Is glad that there is hope of obteyning a Letter from France to the King of Denmarke, upon account of both the Vſe & the Seaſon. For Monſr. Iſola retracts the Confeſſion of his Maſters Conſent to treate the Palatin-buſineſs at the Generall Aſſembly: having had new Enformation, that the Emperor hath ſigned the Invitation to reaſſume the private Treaty at his owne Court in October next, whereſoever that will be. That this Change is an effect of the Bauarian predominacy over him. That he (the Bavarian) procured the Electors that ſent to Frankfort, to write to the Emperor, for ſuch a Declaration; and that their Letters of Intimation to his Majeſty are dayly expected: being allready written & ſigned. That His Majeſty is prepared for anſwere; and will not change His Reſolution to truſt the Cauſe with his Friends & the Publicque only. That the King of Denmarke will be firme; eſpecially if He may haue ſuch a ground, that it is the deſyre of the Crowne of France: as to whoſe Inſtructions in that Poynt, Mr. Grotius writes but faintly, viz. That they will mediate; but not inſiſting vpon it as neceſſary to the Peace; without ſome new Conditions, of a high Nature, to be propoſed by the Count of Harcourt. Thus, if the French ſuffer the Duke of Bauare to gourmandize the Empyre, as he doth awe the Emperor; the Peace which they pretend as a benefitt to their friends, will be more hurtful to their Liberty, then the War; for in this, they may dye Free Men.

167. To the Prince-Elector. 6 September, 1643. 104.

Adviſing His Highneſs to looke about him, and endeavour to fixe the King of Denmarke; all other Planets ſeeming to be in Conjunction with Mercury. That the Count de Harcourt at his coming hither will make ſome Propoſitions, which will be, in this Conjuncture, of hard digeſtion. And that vnleſs they be accepted, neyther France nor Suede will inſiſt vpon His Reſtitution, as ſuch an Impediment to Peace as, ſine quâ, non: but that they will mediate ſome kind of accommodation. That His buſineſs is in the Cryſis, and muſt be every way watched. That there is no Danger ſo great to him as to haue none of Authority from His Majeſty at the Treatyes: and this cannot be, vnleſs ſome delay or Interruption of the Meeting, gayne vs Time.

168. To Mr. Curtius. 6 September, 1643. 104. b.

Belieues that the Emperors complyance with the Duke of Bauare, in ſigning the Intimation for His owne Court, was to auoid claſhing with Him, who is the Winde, Sayles, & Sterne of the tottering Ship of Germany. That the Free Cittyes have juſt Cauſe to reſent the rejection of their Votes in all Aſſemblyes, as deliberative only, and Opinions not to be weighed. For recouery whereof, if they appeale to the Crownes in the general, nothing can be more prevalent, nothing ſo readily embraced. That the beneſit of any other Peace, will but augment the Giues & Manacles which now enthrall them; and will be as little honorable to their great Vindicators, as profitable to themſelues. Sir Thomas approves his Tranſlation of his Cenſure upon the Bavarian Libell; to which he will alſo prepare a full Anſwer; and make them wiſh they had not ſtirred that which was quiet. That now they muſt endure their owne Savour; and heare that which they had wiſelier kept in ſilence. That he hath deſired a Credence for him to the Elector of Mentz, both to reſent & to prevent the barbarous incivility futurely. That they may remember, it was not the leaſt of the King of Suedes pretences of Revenge, to haue bene refuſed in a Treatye concerning the peace of the Empyre. Finally, that if he can get any Declaration of the Dyet, conformable to their Votes, it will much advantage the Remove of the Cauſe. That Mr. Browne hath obteyned of the French King, a Letter to the King of Denmarke, to bring the Palatin Cauſe to the generall Treatyes. That it is very effectual, and will animate that King. That it is a publicque Engagement of the French, an Example to the Suede, and a great Encouragement to all the Proteſtant Princes; as alſo a great Helpe to him, in ballancing all the Tricks of Bauare, and all the Inuitations to a privat Treaty.

169. To Sir William Boſwell. 7 September, 1643. 105. b.

That very good Vſe will be made of the French Kings Letter to the Dane, in reſpect of the Wauering, or rather Complyance, of the Emperor to the Machinations of Bauare, and all their Plotts to tye the Cauſe vp to a privat Treatye.

170. To Mr. Averye. 7 September, 1643. ibid.

That the French Kings Letter ought to encourage all the Proteſtant Princes & States to vnite cloſely, to redeeme their Liberty, vtterly loſt, if the inequality of the Voyces in the Electorall Colledge ſhall be ſetled, to decide all Controverſyes to the advantage of the Roman Church & Partye. That they haue now a fayre Sanctuary open; and may take an Example from the French Proteſtants; who (though abſolute ſubjects) would not make Peace without an Equality of Aſſeſſors & Judges in their Parlaments: which is granted to them in all the Edicts of Pacification. Sir Thomas is of the ſame opinion with him, that the French & Suedes haue not yet abſolutely inſtructed their Ambaſſadors, ſo far to inſiſt vpon the entyre Reſtitution, as to breake the Treaty vpon the Refuſall: and yet, that it may be ſo managed as never to come to that extremitye; it being probable, that there will be other occaſions of making a Rupture, before the Cauſe Palatin can be the ſubject. That the right way of avoiding that Rock, is not to treat the buſines ſingle & apart, but mingled & woven into the Generall of the neceſſary Peace of the Empyre. Which if the Crownes do not ſettle ſecurely, they will reape as little honour, as their Client benefitt.

171. To the Prince Elector. 19 September, 1643. 106.

That he hath direction from Mr. Secretary Nicholas at Oxford, to correſpond with the Lord Goring, his Ambaſſador in France, where Mazarini & Chauigny gouerne in matters of State; and the Houſe of Guiſe adhering to them, are like to recouer Authoritye, & may be the fitteſt Inſtruments of promoting His Cauſe with their owne (as branches of Lorreyne) at the Generall Treaties. That he feareth both the Affections & Inſtructions, from Rome, of a Cardinall, in relation to the Recouery of the Electoral Dignitye. That the Duke of Bauare is ſo omnipotent, that he threatens to breake the General Treatye, by his Power, Armes, or Arts, if they ſhall looke backe to ſuch an Amneſtye as ſhall comprehend His entyre Reſtitution. That, at laſt, the States are likely to ſend Ambaſſadors for England, in correſpon-dence with France: but Sir Thomas hopes they will not dance only to their Tune: and intimateth, that somewhat may be propoſed, that will not ſuite with their Conjunction.

172. To the Queene of Bohemia. 19 September, 1643. 106. b.

Directing Her how to procure an Aſſignment on Public Funds, for the Arreare of her Penſion; being perſwaded, that if the Parlament were rightly enformed of her Wants, they would tender Her Honour & Neceſſities. But herein he adviſeth her to acquaint the King who doubtleſs would conſent, & otherwiſe might take it as a Neglect of Him, & a whole Dependance vpon their Fauour.

173. To Sir William Boſwell. 20 September, 1643. 107.

That (with relation to the Palatin Cauſe) he liketh not the Game, which is, & ſtill muſt be played vnder a Red Hatt (i. e. Mazarini). That he hath obſerved from Hiſtorye & Experience, that no Gouernment is ſo rigid, as in the predominancye of an Eccleſiaſtical Stateſman. The cauſe is, becauſe they are miſplaced; not as vtterly vnfitt for temporall Affayres; but that they are vſed as a Weight to caſt the Balance, whereas they ſhould only hold the Beame, & aſſiſt the Temper & Equalitye of Meaſures. He goes on to apply this to the Biſhops of the Church of England.

174. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 21 September, 1643. 107. b.

Adviſing, that when the Count of Harcourt ſhall be with His Majeſtie, it will be neceſſarie to preſs the Palatin Affaire, and to procure a clear Declaration, how far France will valew, and to what Iſſue they will driue the accommodation. That in defect of Reſolution, the Lord Goring do ſollicite ſuch Powers & Orders, as that the Cauſe may be taken into the mayne; and not only precarió mediated vpon by the by, & apart, for ſo it will haue a cold end. That nothing being more deſired by the houſe of Auſtria, then the reſettling the Duke of Lorreyne in his Poſſeſſions; nothing but the Palatin-Cauſe can balance it with Honour. But then, His Majeſty muſt counter-negociate the One againſt the Other; in Spayne, or at Bruxells. At Bruſſells Sir Thomas can engage Sir Henry de Vic, if authoriſed, & Sr. Henry be commanded to correſpond with Him. That now is the tyme; for the Plenepotentiaries & Ambaſſadors moue from all parts, toward the Cittyes deſſigned for Treatye.

175. To Mr. Secretary Sir Edw. Nicholas. 23 September, 1643. 108.

That the Duke of Bauare hath written a long Letter to the King of Denmarke, to perſwade him to prevayle with the Elector-Palatin to waue the Generall, and to be content with the Priuat Treaty; and to induce our King to ſend his Ambaſſadors to aſſiſt therein: being reſolued rather to breake all, then to endure the teſt of the Empire. To this end, he hath wrought the Emperor to continue the Aſſembly at Francfort, againſt the Judgement of moſt of the Princes, ſo to ſeparate the matter from the Publicque, and from the Intereſt & Cogniſance of the Crownes of France & Suede. That the King of Denmarke hath written to the Emperor & Electors, vrging the Neceſſitye of deciding the Cauſe at the Generall Treatye, as the principall Impediment of the Peace; without which, France & Sueden will not enter into any Conference. That the Bavarian's Myſtery is Mony; which he hopes to get in a priuat Compoſition, & which will not be conſidered in the balance of the Publicque Peace.

176. To Mr. Browne. 26 September, 1643. 108. b.

That Four Electors having jointly written to our King, inviting him to reaſſume the Private Mediation: His Majeſty is conſtant, and will anſwer (by a Ciuill Refuſall) to all other motions; as reſolued to truſt the Cauſe to his Friends, to Publicque Juſtice, and to the fortune of the Generall Peace. Sir Thomas alſo gives him further lights, how to negotiate the Palatin-Intereſt at the French Court.

177. To Mr. Curtius. 27 September, 1643. 109.

Directing him to be conſtant in affirming, that His Majeſtie cannot decline the Societye & Intereſt of the Crownes of France & Sueden; who haue reſolued that the Cauſe-Palatin is neceſſarie to the Publicque Pacification; and is engaged with them, to relye vpon the Generall Treaties. That ſeeing the Duke of Bauare oppoſed all mention of that Cauſe, in the Aſſembly at Francfort (in which, nothing was intended but a fayre Mediation) it hath cauſed His Majeſtie to deſpayre of any Treatye under-hand: ſo that the Change of Counſells in that poynt, hath beene his owne Fault, & Violence. That the Free Cittyes haue it now in their power (if they know how to vſe it) to caſt the Balance, & to ſettle the Peace. This to be effected, by jointly preſſing (on all ſides) the Amneſtye, & the Reſettlement of the Empyre in the State, as before the War.

178. To Mr. Auery. 28 September, 1643. 110.

Affirming that if the Free Cittyes would joyne in conſtantly requiring an entyre Amneſtye, & general Reſtitution & Reſettlement of Poſſeſſions & Lawes, in the ſame State as before the War: the Crownes will not refuſe their Patronage, but be glad of the Occaſion. Moreover, if the Treatye moue vpon particular Accommodations, the Debates will be infinite, & ſuch Difficulties be diſcovered, that many Yeares will not ſuffice. And whatſoeuer ſhall be ſetled or agreed ſeparatly, will neither be durable nor ſafe.

179. To a Friend. 4 October, 1643. 110. b.

About a Method of beginning a Treatie of Peace between the King & Parliament: which he thinks to be a very nice & difficult matter to effect.

180. To Mr. Browne. 4 October, 1643. ibid.

That, the Count of Harcourt being arrived at London, Mr. Iſola the Emperors Agent is reſolved to go to Oxford, and to oppoſe him. That he pretends that the French will not conclude a Peace. And if they ſhould they will not ſo embrace the Cauſe-Palatin, as ſine qua, non: and in that Caſe, we ſhall loſe the Emperor by adhering to, & taking Protection of his Enemies, & ſhall be left betweene two Stooles. Sir Thomas himſelf is of opinion, that if the French ſhall leave vs in the halfe way, the Cauſe is vtterly loſt: for when we have forſaken the Emperor & the Mediation, it will be too late to beg a fauour. It will be requiſite therefore that the Lord Goring & he ſhould get a clear Declaration & Obligation, how far they will inſiſt vpon the entyre Reſtitution of Lands & Dignitye. That this is a poynt deepely conſiderable; ſeeing Mazarini (whc is not to be truſted by us) governs the Counſells in France. That it is not probable that the French will ſcandalize the Romiſh party, by wreſting backe the Electorall Dignitie, when ſo much concerns them. The Lands only will touch the Duke of Bauare; but the caſting voice in the Electorall College will be friended by the Pope, & all the Catholique faction. And, in the mean time, the Miniſters of the Duke of Bauare, doe boaſt of their Secrett good Intelligence, & aſſurance of France. That the Bavarian Deputies have intimated, that they may now be content to admitt the Palatin Cauſe to a Mediation of all the Princes at the Aſſembly at Francfort (which is decreed to continue purpoſely to depriue the generall Treatye of the Cognizance of ſome ſelect Cauſes) that it may there be prepared; or goe on, pari paſſu, with the Generall Treatye: although before, neither the Emperor nor Bauare, would heare of the mixture of the Princes & States. That Monſr. Iſola hath complained that he (Mr. Browne) hath negotiated in France, directly againſt the Houſe of Auſtria & to oblige the Elector-Palatin as an Ally with that Crowne; which cannot conſiſt with the fayth of a Prince of the Empire. That herein, his Majeſtie hath diſobliged the the Emperor, and giuen him juſt Cauſe to withdraw his good Intentions to that Family. That Iſola hath gotten a Coppie of the Remonſtrance given the Miniſters; which he muſt haue from them or their Servants.

181. To a Friend. 13 October, 1643. 111. b.

Concerning a Requeſt made by certaine Engliſh Families formerly retired into Holland; who now deſire leave to returne, & be permitted a Church & Miniſter of their owne. Theſe were Independants, whoſe principles Sir Thomas could not approve of.

182. To Mr. Browne. 25 October 1643. ibid.

Concerning the Letters which our King had written to the French King, Queene Regent, & the Duke of Orleans, and that the Elector hath deſired others to the Prince of Condé & Mazarini; which may be poſtponed untill he ſhall be appriſed of the Count de Harcourts Negotiations, & our Kings Reſolutions vpon them.

183. To the Prince Elector. 25 October 1643.

That whereas His Highneſs had deſired that he would attend at Oxford, during the Negotiations of the Count de Harcourt, to which end a free Paſs would be procured from the Parlament: He had received no Commands from his Majeſty, without which he held it unfitt to intrude into His Counſells. That the Emperors Agent is gone after the Count, to counter-worke for the Priuate Treatye.

184. To Mr. Curtius. 26 October 1643.

Hoping that the Count de Harcourt, at Oxford, may prepare the wayes of our owne Accommodation; and with it, conclude vpon the meanes of ſettling the Palatin Cauſe by Treatye. That Monſr. Iſola doth profeſs, that his Maſter will be diſobliged, & free from any Promiſes or Declarations, made on his part, if the Prince-Elector ſoly adhære to his Enemies, & refuſe the Mediation in his preſence, as diſtruſting his ſincere Intentions. That this is a tickliſh point & will require a dexterity of manage, not to loſe the Emperor, and not to loſe Fauour & Oportunitye of the Collegued Crownes, & of the Generall Treatye. That the Judgment will reſt vpon this, how far the French will embrace the Cauſe, and not leave it out in the concluſion? For, out of doubt, Bauare will rather breake all Treaties, and continue the War, then reſtore by Compulſion, only for publicque Peace. As to the Medium propoſed, of a paralel Treatye at Francfort; Sr. Thomas thinks it muſt not be for that Cauſe alone; but with the Conſent of France & Suede; that if Agreement cannot be made, it may retyre & be received into the Generall Treatye. So that this privat Mediation ſhould not be vnderſtood as concluſiue there, and excluſiue of the Generall; but preparatorye, for eaſe of Diſpatch of Buſines. That after all, the Duke of Bauare may write & plott what he pleaſes, but muſt be content to doe, or ſuffer, as we ſhall conclude with the French; which may give him worke enough.

185. To Sir William Boſwell. 26 October 1643. 112. b.

That it is reported, the Count de Harcourt hath propoſed ſuch ways of Accommodation, as are like to take ſome effect. That the Ambaſſadors of the States will come late enough. For the buſineſs will either be entred vpon, with little Grace to them; or Deſpayred of, before they arriue.

186. To Princeſs Elizabeth. 26 October 1643. ibid.

That, the French neuer think vs enough Vn-Eſpaniolíſed; which they feare not in others who are the Antipodes to Monarchy. And yet, while they kill a Baſiliſk, they may nouriſh a Snake.

187. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 26 October, 1643. 113.

Complaining of the ill uſage & Ingratitude of ſome about the King, whom he had obliged. That the Dexteritye of negotiating with Count Harcourt, will lie in this poynt. Firſt, not to accept the continuance of the priuat Mediation; and yet not, by the Refuſall, to looſe the Emperor, by ſeeming to miſtruſt him, & depending only vpon his Enemies; which would uſtrſtrate his declaration of receiuing the Prince-Elector into Grace, &c. vpon Condition of no Practiſe with his Enemies, vntill the buſines were concluded. Sir Thomas apprehends, that the French & Suedes will doe no more than may make a fayre Show; their own Aduantages ouerſwaying all other Reſpects. That it is neceſſary to know of the French, whether they will embrace the Cauſe as Eſſentiall to the Peace; or only as Mediators, which is worth little: and of the Emperor, how far he will vſe his abſolute Authoritye, if the Duke of Bauare ſhall continue obſtinate?

188. To the Prince-Elector. 2 Nouember, 1643. 113. b.

He believes that the Houſe of Guiſe will not much fauour His Highneſs; but that they may do much for their owne Chiefe, the Duke of Lorrain. That therefore, they may be induced, with the Duke of Orleans as Mediator, &c. to preſs the Duke of Bauare (who is Vnkle to Duke Charles) to yield as the only meanes to re-eſtabliſh his Nephewes & Neighbours, & to ſettle a Peace, Sir Thomas will aduiſe to Oxford the Contents of the Duke of Bauares Letter to the Electors; the caſe being playne, If he will abate no mony, or not more than the halfe; he can haue no Satisfaction, & ſo no reſtitution. That the Emperor cannott pay it; ſo it is to no purpoſe to treate vpon Impoſſibilities.

189. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 11 Nouember, 1643. 114.

Reminding him of ſome things neceſſary in the Palatin-buſineſs, which had lain too long neglected. And tendering his Service to his Majeſty, in Order to procure an Accommodation of the plus quam Civile, & Vnnaturall War.

190. To the Prince-Elector. 13 Nouember, 1643. ibid.

Adviſing him to procure ſome Friend of Power, at Court, to ſollicite the Diſpatch of the Kings Letters written in His behalf, That the King of Spaine being greatly affected to Cardinall Richelieu, & auerſe from France, muſt be more laboured, & the more neerely looked into.

191. To Mr. Browne. 15 Nouember, 1643. 114. b.

That much Labour & Art hath been vſed euery where, to procure His Majeſtie to waue the Generall Treaties, by reaſſuming the priuat Mediation: in which, Monſ. Iſola hath receiued at Oxford a ciuill Denyall, in anſwer to his Memoriall exhibited to His Majeſtie. That the Imperialls & Bauarians haue made a very odd ſort of Interpretation of the Safe-Conducts for the Elector-Palatin, or His Deputyes, to come to the Generall Treaties, procured by France & Suede; vizt. that they are for their Perſons, as Spectators; not for their Cauſe, as Actors, or intereſſed.

192. To. Mr. Auery. 21. November, 1643. ibid.

That the Count of Harcourt hath begun ſome Ouuerture of a Treatye, by interpoſing as a Mediator, of accommodation of our miſerable Diſtractions. That Monſr. Iſola is much diſcontent with the Anſwer he received to his Memorial. He conceives that His Majeſtie will give the like to the late Letter of the Electors; being reſolved to truſt the Cauſe only with the Crownes his Friends, & the Publicque. Sir Thomas is ſorry for the Comportment of the King of Denmarke, toward Mr. Avery: and though he knows the malicious Pride & Inſolence of ſome of his German Miniſters; yet fears it proceeds from an ill naturall Roote. Adding, that at leaſt, in the Condition we are, we can expect nothing but Contempt & Injury.

193. To Mr. Pooly. 21 Nouember, 1643. 115.

Deſiring him to diſcouer how he ſtands in the Grace or Diſpleaſure of the King of Denmark; with regard to whom, he clears his own Conduct. He recommends (as he did in that to Mr. Avery) his friend Mr. Barker, employed by the Eastland-Company, to peticion the King of Denmarke, in the Obstructions of their Trade.

Num. 1901.

194. To Mr. Browne. 21 Nouember, 1643. 115. b.

That the Elector-Palatin seemeth to doubt that too earnest a pressure, how far the Crowne of France will declare in his Cause, may offend; or draw on some other reciprocal Question from our Court. Therefore he rather desireth to proceed in good Confidence, then to search out that which he would not know. That other Jealousies are infused into that Prince, by his Counsellers, of the affection or power of the House of Lorreyne and the Guises. But that there is no other way, nor balance of this busines, which the Tryall at Munster shall justefye. For, to that Tribunall the Cause is resolutely referred on our part, and as obstinately refused on the other. Lastly, that Monsr. Isola inculcateth, that all the French fayre weather toward vs, is only to fright the Duke of Bauare, to a Revolt from the House of Austria.

195. To Mr. Curtius. 22 Nouember, 1643. 116.

Concerning the Practices of the Bauarians to possess the World with their Pretensions; & to avoid the General Treaties by specious Abuses, of enclining to an Accommodation by the Priuat mediation. That Monsr. Isola is not well content, that he cannott cosen us. That we appeale from their pretended & partiall Dyett of Mulhausen; and deny any prejudiciall Decree at Ratisbon; and protest against the Clandestine Treatye of Prague; and know no judge competent, but the justice & fundamentall Lawes of the Empire. Nor can they more grosly abuse the Saxe-Ambassador then to make him beleeue, that Bauare will yeild up both Palatinats, for Lands out of the Emperors power & possession. That he (Mr. Curtius) hath touched a right String, in adhering to the Cittyes, who haue voted an unlimited Amnestye at Ratisbon. And if the Suedes can procure their Appearance as Assistants, and Interessed at the generall Treatye; their Power, if they know how to use it, will cast the ballance. That the Count de Harcourt hath offered to the Lords his Enterposition, in the Name of the French King & Queen Regent, (already accepted by his Majestie) and that the Consideration thereof now rests in the House of Commons.

196. To Prince Rupert. 14 December, 1643. 116. b.

Desiring to know in what Condition he stands with His Majestie; finding all Opportunities preuented; euery man preferred or graced; and himself only (that hath serued faythfully) neglected, if not ruined. That the World will judge of his Seruices by the Reward & Estimation putt on them, or Himselfe, by his Majestie. He further desires that the King would vouchsafe to lett him know his faults, or faylings: wherein he hath demerited; wherein he hath beene defectiue, in his Duty, Allegiance, in a possible Obedience, or Succes in His Commands: and if he may vnderstand his Sinnes, he will punish himselfe: nor shall there be need of silent or implicite Disgrace.

197. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 14 December 1643. ibid.

That he hath receiued a Coppie of His Majesties Answere to Monsr. Isola, which ought to satisfye his vnreasonable importunitye. That the defeat of the French in Germanye will prove very disadvantagious to the Cause Palatin, & to the whole State of the Affayres & Treaties in the Empire. That the Suedes will suddenly feele the effects of it; and may perhaps be enforced to Treat, at least a Truce apart. That the Imperialls & Bauarians alreadie braue all their Allyes & Friends, shewing how they would vse a totall Conquest. That Consultations haue been since held betweene the French Plenepotentiaries & the Commissioners of the States Generall about prosecuting the Treatyes of Munster. Further Sir Thomas aduises that the Lord Goringe should exasperate the French against the Duke of Bauare, whom they haue favoured & fostered, and who hath requited them with this Disgrace. 15

Num. 1901.

198. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 19 December, 1643. 117.

That the Defeate of the French may not dissolve the Meeting at Munster; but will certainly alter the State of Affaires, and make the end of the Treaty difficult: particularly, it will weaken the hopes of the Elector Palatin. That the Austrians, after this blast, will swell beyond measure, & will giue the Law in Germany. That Mr. Secretary will find both the Hous of Hessen & Brunswicke faynting, if not changing; & prouiding only for their owne Safetye. Further, Sr. Thomas still continues to press for His Majesties Commands, Whether he shall send or burne the King of Polands Letter, which hath lien in his Hands above Six Months.

199. To the Prince Elector. 21 December, 1643. 117. b.

That he hath received Advice from Mr. Secretarie, that now upon the French Defeate, the Treaties of Munster and Osnabrug will not hold. That the Imperialls & Bauarians are so high vpon their Victory, that they openly profess little Care, whether his Cause be brought thither; or treated (as they desired) by the priuat Mediation, or not: for in all Cases, they thinke themselves Masters of the Conclusion. Sir Thomas excuses an error of Sir Arthur Hopton, proceeding from a want of Correspondence & Information, usually in our Ministry & States-men. That His Majestie our King is constant, not to send to the private Treaty; and thinketh His Highness shall best excuse himselfe to the Emperor, that without His Majesties Counsell & Assistance, He cannot accept to renew a Treaty begun by him, without Him. For, in all Euents, the Emperor should not be vtterly discomposed & disobliged by apparent diffidence: since without Him, nothing will be done in Germany.

200. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 17 January, 1643-4 118.

Is sorry he cannot obey His Majesties Commands in repairing to Oxford; God having pleased to lay many Afflictions vpon him, both of body and mind; and his Weakness lately so increased, that his Bed hath beene all his Consolation. If God shall enable him, he shall faithfully serue His Majestie; if too late, he shall dye enjoying the Peace of a loyall Heart. That the Cause-Palatin, by the Changes in Denmarke, may be layd vp in Hope; a weake Remedye, for an old & strong Disease.

201. To Mr. Aurey, 17 January, 1643-4. ibid.

That he knoweth not what is become of the Credentialls promised; fearing it is too late; and that by the miraculous changes in Holstein, & the reuolutions in Germany, God hath some great worke to finish, which it is in vayne for Man to trouble: and consequently, that the deplorable Cause Palatin may be hanged vp vpon the Hookes of Hope, vntill God will be reuealed.

202. To Mr. Browne. 17 January, 1643-4. ibid.

That the Changes of the Reputation of the French in Germany, and the Reuolution in Holstein & Denmarke have so dejected the Hopes of the Cause-Palatin, that he can giue no Aduice, but to continue & goe along with the Publicque Interest & Generall Treatyes; if in them there succeed no Interruption, the Austrians being a-new eleuated beyond hope of Compassion or Justice.

203. To Mr. Curtius. 17 January, 1643-4. ibid.

To the same effect as before. Councelling him to beare vp, & not to sinke in Spiritt; to unite & keepe close to the Publicque Interest of the Protestant Princes, & the Fate of the Generall Peace, or Ruine.

204. To Sir William Boswell. 17 January, 1643-4. 118. b.

Concerning the Nature of his grevious Indisposition; withall desiring that Dr. Cneuffelius may be sent over to help him; or else induced to tarry in Holland, untill Sir Thomas may be carried over.

205. To Sir William Boſwell. 20 February, 1643-4. 118. b.

Upon the ſame Matter; as alſo about ſome Aſperſions caſt upon Him; perhaps, with regard to his Conduct in menaging the Palatin-affair. He writes that he knows that his Innocencye will juſtefye him before God, and Juſtice preſerue him among Men.

206. To the Queene of Bohemia. 20 February, 1643-4. 119.

Concerning Her Majeſties late Indiſpoſition, & His own. That the Count de Harcourt is gone, without any Effect; being only feaſted in London, by young Griffin, to the Tune of 400l. A Summe, that would now keepe Sir Thomas (that hath been feaſted of many Kings) all his Life: his Rents and Meanes being taken from him, he knows not why.

207. To the Prince-Elector. 20 Februarye, 1643-4. ibid.

That he hath receiued no Direction nor Intelligence from Oxford, ſince the Change of State-Officers; and therefore his Correſpondence abroad is become uſeleſs. He cannot conceiue how the Treatyes can proceed, ſome of the Wheeles being taken off. And he foreſees that if they ſhould, new Matter & new Embroylments will fill his Unkles hands full of the Care of Himſelfe. For he is now embarqued in the War; & the ſettling of his owne Eſtate muſt be a part of the Vniuerſal Peace. That the States & all other Princes intereſſed in the Neceſſitye or Vſe of the Trade through the Sound ſhall look about them & be well aduiſed. For, the Suedes, if they ſhall engroſs all in the North, will ſett their owne Prices, & giue Lawes, ſuch as flow from their great Maxime of State, Non convenit rationi Statûs noſtri. Adviſes his Highneſs to apply to France, vpon this opportunitye & Ground (which they haue experienced at a deare price) that the French Armes & Deſſignes in Germany can neuer proſper, vnleſs they be commanded & conducted by a German Prince: the chiefeſt of their Force conſiſting of that Nation, who will not conſtantly obey a Stranger. That this will add ſome Luſtre to the Juſtice of their War within the Empire; which now appears a forreyne Invaſion. That it ſeemeth not improbable, but that His Highneſs may now gett the Command of the Remay of thoſe Forces; the French deſſigning Moneyes into Germany to recruit them; & preparing ſome Leauies in France, who vnwillingly paſs the Rhyne: whereas He, ſupported with the French Money, can with much leſs expence rayſe Men in Germany, then tranſport them thither. That the Duke of Lorreyne hath made himſelfe conſiderable by ſmall Troopes: and the Landgrauine of Heſſen & Duke of Brunſwicke haue made, & can make their owne Peace, becauſe they are armed. Sir Thomas adds, that when at Vienna he objected their War with the Emperor, equall to any Offence of the Palatin-Family: it was ſayd, They had a right Intereſt in the Peace, becauſe they were part of the War.

208. To the Prince-Elector. 8 May, 1644. 119. b.

That Sir Arthur Hopton's Error from Spayne was meere Ignorance or Inanimadverſion; at leaſt, had no ground from any Averſion either to His Highnes Perſon, Cauſe, or Rights, from England. He feares a priuate Treatye, betweene France & Spayne; which may be as dangerous to England, as excluſiue to His Highneſs; eſpecially ſeeing the King of Denmarke needs Mediators for himſelfe. And prays that the Suedes, from whom much hath beene expected, for the Common Good (who haue no ends but their owne, not one Publicque Thought) do not verefye the Proverb, Omne malum ab Aquilone.

209. To the Queene of Bohemia. 8 May, 1644. 120.

Moſtly upon his own matters. Believes that the States Ambaſſadors are weary of Labour in Vayne: and that they will confeſs, there was more Truth then Manners, in that Word (per impoterily & unſeaſonably ſpoken to them in Holland, That ſome vnderſtood the State of England better then they: which, ſince, is made good.

210. To Princeſs Elizabeth. 9 May 1644. Ibid.

Complaining of the Miſchiefs & Miſeries of this World; which he ſeems not unwilling to leave. And Propheſying, that while Religion, of all ſydes, is made the Stalking Horſe, and not the Bird: there ſhall be no Peace vpon the Earth.

211. To Mr. Hollis. 16 May 1643. 120. b.

That, Two Errors in State do now prevayle in the Parliaments Conſultations; firſt, in diſcontenting the Ambaſſadors of the United Provinces, by not Anſwering; or not accepting them as Mediators of Peace: ſecondly, in inclining to make ſome Conjunction with the Suedes; ſuch as may prejudice the King of Denmarke; with reference to both which, he giveth his Reaſons at length.

212. To Mr. Secretary Nicholas. 2 June, 1644. 121. b.

Geſſeth, that the French are far aduanced, or reſolued to huddle vp a Truce (which will vndoe all the Proteſtants) if they cannot agree vpon a Peace. That the Invitation of the Elector Palatin, is very feruent; & doth oblige the French farther than any other publick Act of theirs. He therefore thinks it agreeable with His Majeſties intentions, that that Prince either goe or ſend thither, reſolued to ſtand or fall with the Publicque. If it ſhall be Peace; they cannott with Honour, leave Him out, for their owne expreſſed Reaſons & Intereſt. If the Treaty ſhall breake; he ſhall reſt unreconciled, with good Company: where any privat Deciſion would ſhutt him up for euer.

213. To the Prince-Elector. 11 June, 1644. 122.

Eſteeming, the French Invitation of His Highneſſes Aſſiſtance at the Generall Treaties, a very great Obligation on their Part; and ſuch, as may worke great Effects for Him. But that a Truce is to be avoided as a Rock upon which His Cauſe will Splitt; and hopes that the States of Holland will look to the Danger of it.

214. To Mr. Auery. 20 June, 1644. ibid.

Beleiuing not that the French intend a Peace, when they multiplye their Charge in new Seiges, of ſuch Importance as Grauelin; nor, that they will euer giue it up, if they gett it; or the States of Holland conſent. Nor yet, that the Spaniards will reſt content with the Loſs, & ordinarie Conditions of a Truce, quæ poſſident, poſſideant: ſo he fears not their ſudden Agreement, but our owne Condition to ſee our Seas hemmed in by a potent & growing Neighbour. That formerly, England would not haue ſuffered the French ſo to ſwell, as to be able to braue vs in the Mouth of Thames. Theſe are the Firſt Fruits of our more then Vnciuill War; which few conſider, or underſtand; and the Preſage of worſe. Wee now know, & the King of Denmarke doth feele, how great an Error it is to ſtretch a Prerogatiue; or awaken ſome pretended Rights, which were ſafer aſleepe then practiſed.

215. To the Queene of Bohemia. 20 June, 1644. 122. b.

Concerning his Diſeaſe, which ſo encreaſeth; that only to be lame, were an Happineſs. Wiſheth that they who haue neglected his Seruice, may neuer need it; nor, too late, know, that thoſe Counſells are ſafeſt, or more honeſt wherein is no Selfe-Intereſt, which He hath alway neglected & deſpiſed. That, the King of Denmarke may emerge out of his preſent Danger, that thereby the State of the North may be balanced, & not fall into the Iron-hands of the Suedes. That no Friendſhip in State is ſecure againſt Ambition backed by too great a Power, nor can any wiſely truſt ſo great a Jewel at the Baltic-trade to the Curteſie of one Nation. That while things are almoſt every where in Confuſion, and we in an Un-civill War; the French will become Maſters of the Flanders-coaſt; which we ought not to ſuffer, and the Hollanders

Vindicating himſelf, both as to the Integrity & Dexterity of his Negotiations in Germany; which had been queſtioned in Parliament, upon an Accuſation which Sir Thomas avers to be abſolutly falſe, both in Matter & Forme; Subſtance & Circumſtances. Adding, that it is eaſy to ſcandalize any Man, but to repayre him, & leaue no marke behind, Accuſers know is difficult: and therefore, True or Falſe, they haue their ends, to defame. Hereupon, Sir Thomas deſires Mr. Burlamach to retract His Aduice to Mr. Pym, & to let him ſee the whole & cleare Truth: profeſſing that He (Himſelf) is neyther French, Spaniſh, nor Dutch, but a true Engliſhman (This letter hath no Subſcription; but ſeemeth to be of Sr. Thomas's own hand; and is faſtened into the Book)

An Heraldical Book in ſmall folio, begun and carried on about A. D. 1594. by a Perſon of whoſe Hand-writing I have ſeen much, both in this Library & elſewhere; but whoſe Name I could never yet certainly recover. It hath alſo divers Additions and continuations from the Hands of others. On the Outſide it is thus entituled, South Wales with Salop and Staffordſhire Pedegrees; with thoſe alſo of diverſe other Countyes. The Book begins from both ends; for what is entered therein is done in manner promiſcuous, and without any Order: And foraſmuch as the Pageing thereof begins from what may be called the later or wrong End, I ſhall endeavour briefly to deſcribe what it containeth, in the manner following.

1. The Names of the Signs of the Zodiac; the Names of the twelve Months in Welſh; and in Latin, with their ſeveral Numbers of Days enumerated: ſeeming to haue been copied by the third Randle Holme from ſome old Calendar written by a Welſh Hand.

2. Pedegree of Sir Chriſtopher Hatton (as it was made up from Him, and) confirmed by Robert Cooke als. Clarenſulx, A. D. 1574. ſaid to have been copied from the Originall ꝑ Ja. Cha. (i. e. James Chaloner) 1.

If this be to be underſtood of the individual Hand which entred this and the following Deſcents, my Doubt might be ſolved: but this Note being written not by this ſame Hand, but by another, I am not ſatisfied but that this Copie might be taken from that which James Chaloner made from the Roll, perhaps in looſe ſingle paper.

3. Then follows the promiſcuous Collection of Pedegrees abovementioned, being of Engliſh and Welſh Families, the Writer whereof ſeems to have been verſed in the Engliſh, Welſh, Latin & French Tongues. 3.

Herein, beſides the Armes & Creſts of ſundry antient Families, I further obſerve,

4. The aforementioned names of the Months in Welſh; with certain Letters, Monograms, and Words, ſeeming to have been copied from the old Book or Calendar hinted at before, at §. 1. 23.

6. Some Welſh Notes relating to their Deſcents, &c. 45. b. 52. b.

Now beginning at the other (or firſt) end of the Book, I find

7. A Table of the Deſents of this Booke, & other things therin; made by the ſecond Randle Holme of Cheſter.

8. An Alphabet of the Cotes, Creſts, or Quarterings in this booke; made by the ſaid Randle Holme, 1632.

An Heraldical Book in fol. written by many Hands, and relating to the Deſcents and Armes of antient Shropſhire-Families. It exhibits,

1. Alphabetical Table directing to the Cotes Creſts, or Quarterings contained in this book, made (as it ſeems) about the 10 December 1632. by the ſecond Randle Holme.

Herein I find interſperſed,

4. Some Extracts from, or Tranſcripts of old Family-Deeds. as at fol. 17. 51. b. 55. b. 56. d. 62. 78. c.

5. Armes of Shopſhire-Gentry, in Blaſon. 43. b. 44. b.

9. Pedegrees of Welſh Families; perhaps of ſuch as have reſided in or near Shropſhire. 124.

This is of Chaloner's Hand, and ſeems to be a Tract diſtinct to itſelf. This is followed by

10. An imperfect Tract, by the firſt Hand, entituled The Viſitation of Shropſhire; under which, the ſecond Randle Holme hath written thus, 'taken 33 Q. Eliz.' of which Viſitation I knew not, before I ſaw this Remainder. The Deſcents are, for the moſt part, daſhed through with a Pen; and ſometimes hath the Heraldical Note of Entries made into ſome other Book, as may be ſeen at the bottom of fol. 73. 75. b. fol. 75. b. 76. b. &c. for which Reaſon I believe they are the Originals, ſo far as they go. It is needleſs to repeat the Hand of the ſecond Randle Holme doth farther appear among theſe Deſcents. 'Tis pity there is no more of this valuable Tract, which now begins with folio 72.

An Heraldical Book in folio, which ſeems to have been contrived, laid out, or diſpoſed by ſome Armes-painter, and (as to the greateſt part of it) performed by his Apprentice. It contains,

1. A large Collection of the Pedegrees of Shropſhire-Families, with the Armes painted, together with ſome Church Notes, & Extracts from Family-Deeds; ſeeming to have been taken from one of the old Viſitation-books of that Countie that is older than the Viſitation of A. D. 1623.

This Collection hath met with great Improuements, not only by Continuation of thoſe Deſcents, but by the Addition of many freſh Pedegrees, by the Hands of Mr. Richard Mundy, or Thomas Knight Cheſter-Herald, Randle Holme iii. and ſeveral others.

1. His Table, directing to the Coates & Creſts exhibited in this Booke.

2. A ſmall Alphabet of the Armes in Blaſon of many of our old Engliſh Gentry of moſt Counties. fol. 150. At the top of the Letter A, or firſt Page of this Alphabet, ſomebody hath written 'Surrey Com.' which perhaps may have given occaſion to the particular mention of that County on the back, as is above obſerved.

Intermingled, in divers Places, with the ſaid Alphabet, is,

3. A large Collection of the Deſcents of our Engliſh Nobility, made in the times of Queen Elizabeth & K. James the Firſt, with many Continuations & Additions by Thomas Knight Cheſter-Herald, as it ſeems; & ſeveral others. ibid.

Without doubt, ſome of the Perſons mentioned in theſe Deſcents did actually reſide in Surrey; but whether this whole Collection ought therefore to be called Surrey-Pedegrees, I leave to others.

4. A larger Collection of the Deſcents of the Shropſhire Gentry, Regiſtered by the Hands of Sir Henry St. George perhaps then but Richmond-Herald, Mr. Thomas Knight (Cheſter-Herald, & other Officers of Armes, as it ſeems. 189. b.

I have heard that there was a Viſitation of this County by Thomas Chaloner, A. D. 1593: and that there was another taken by Robert Treſwell Somerſet, & Auguſtine Vincent Rouge Croix, about A. D. 1623. but ſuppoſe not theſe Deſcents to have been regiſtred at either of thoſe Times. Nevertheleſs, theſe Papers ſeem to be Originals, & Thomas Knights Letter C upon moſt of them, ſhew that they have been copied from hence, & entred into ſome other Book. The others may have been added ſince.

5. In this Tract (as well as in the laſt) appear ſome few Church-Notes and Extracts from old Deeds; as alſo the Names of the Knightes made by my Lord of Eſſex, & my Lord Admyrall in the Viage to Spayne, A. D. 1596. 256.

An Heraldical Book in fol. collected or made by several persons; which I shall describe in the manner following:

1. The Valuation of the Bushopricks in the Queen's Bookes, A. D. 1600. with the Fees for them, paid to the Pope.

This is written on the wast Leaf lining the Cover, as it may seem, by one Thomas Barneston; whose Name is upon fol. 1. & 3.

2. The Armes of Queen Elizabeth, or of England rudely depicted; as all the rest are that follow. 1.

3. The Armes of England (that is, with only the Norman and Andegavian Lions or Leopards:) again with that of Guienne; and the Armes of Ireland: all with the modern Crown of England over them. 2.

4. Armes, perhaps, intended for the Princes of Wales: being included within the Garter, & under a Label of three points. The Supporters are two Stags; and above all, is the same modern Crown of England. 3.

5. Armes of the University of Oxford; the Words within the Book being these, "In principio erat Verbum, et Verbum erat apud Deum," &c. 4.

These are followed by the Armes of such Colleges as were in being within that University A. D. 1600. with the Names of their respective Founders. Among which, those of Brazen-nose, University, Baliol, Merton, Exeter, Oriel, Queenes, Lincoln, New, Trinity, & St. John's Colleges, are attended by other Armes of particular Persons, Families, or Benefactors, which may have been found in them painted in the Glass, or cutt in Stone or Wood.

Num. 1993, 1994.

6. Armes of the University & Colleges of Cambridge; but without such Attendance. 20.

7. Armes of the Empires Occidental and Oriental, with those of the King of the Romans, France, England, and many other Kingdoms & Countreys. 22.

Among these some are set forth in false Colors; and others seem to be fancied only. Here are also divers Notes touching the Armes of Kings, Princes, & Countreys, taken out of Dr. Heylyn, Mr. Guillim, &c. by the abovementioned Thomas Barneston.

8. A Copie of Clarenceux Cookes Baronage; as continued to the Lord Gervase Clifton. 30.

The Armes were begun, perhaps, by him who painted at the beginning of the Book, who proceeded no further than fol. 34. from which, I find no other Colors expressed than Yellow, Green & Black, unto fol. 45. b. where I perceive some Red, but then it is done with common Raddle. After fol. 54, a. there are but few of the Armes given; and those are, for the most part, only traced with Black Lead. The Writing part of this Treatise seemeth to be of the Hand of Thomas Barneston.

9. A Table (defective) to the Names of the Nobility mentioned in the preceding Work. 73.

10. Descendants from Rees Merchan of Cliud, or Pedegree of John Davids. 75.

11. Names of those who decyded a Strife betwixt Massye of Pudington, & Massye of Tatton about their Coate of Armes. ibid.

But at length, after much Trouble, the Cause went for the Defendant; and the King, who had seized on the said Churches, restored the same to the Monastery.

Notwithstanding that this Tract is written by a good Hand, and that great Peer's Name is subcribed at the end, I take it to be but a Copie.

11. Notes taken in the Churche of Bingley in Com. Ebor. 83.

12. De-

12. Declaration of the Deſcent of William Norres of the Speke, Knight; by him compiled & putt furthe, to remayne for a Teſtymonie & Record of Truthe; to the end his Children & Heyres might reade & vnderſtond the ſame; according to that which he had hearde & founde, either by Writing, Words, Witneſſes, Evidences, or other wayes. dated the 19th of June, A. 20. A Booke of Names, Places & Tymes; taken out of Recordes, Evidences & Offices. 182.

The Method of this Tract, is to give the Name of the Place (which is for the much greater part in Cheſhire) in pretty right Order of Alphabet; and then to ſett under the Perſons name whom they found concerned there, and the time when: that is ſpecifying the year of the King reigning. (This is diſcharged by being cut ſhorter.)

21. Alphabetical Table to the Pedegrees, contained in this book. 209.

22. Such another Table referring to the Coates of Armes. 210. b.

A thin oblong Book in fol. on the outſide, by the third Randle Holme, thus intituled, the Names of the Inhabitants of Cheſter, in the ſeuerall Wards, about A. D. 1600. but I chooſe to deſcribe it briefly in the following manner:

1. Liſt of the Inhabitants or Houſe-keepers within the Wards of St. Giles, and of the Holy Trinity as they were aſſeſſed towards the finding or providing of Armor or Armes, A. D. 1595. Mr. William Alderſey then being Mayor. 1.

2. Another Liſt of the Magiſtrates, and others of Cheſter, but their Names uncharged: Mr. Sheriff Wirden being mentioned therein, it appeareth that it was made A. D. 1590. 5.

3. Another Liſt of Perſons chargeable with Shott; and from Mr. Sheriffe Ratcliffe's being therein named, it appeareth that the ſame was made, A. D. 1590. 6.

4. Another uncharged Liſt of Inhabitants Names, through divers Wards of the City of Cheſter; but no Year, or Office being expreſſed, I ſhall not pretend to determine the Time when it was made. 8.

Num. 1998, 1999.

Wards in Cheſter; among which I find mention of Mayſter Jhon Smythe, Tomas Alderſay, and Rauffe Alderſay, Aldermen. 21.

The laſt of theſe was Sheriffe A. D. 1541. The ſecond was Mayor A. D. 1549. having been Sheriffe, A. D. 1538. The firſt was Mayor A. D. 1555, having ſerved as Sheriffe A. D 1546. But this Aſſeſſment being made when Rychard Rauffebon (or Rathebone) was Sherreffe, i. e. 1547, it ſhewes, that divers in Cheſter (as in other places) become to be Aldermen, before they are Mayors.

6. The Names of Houſeholders within St. Oſwalds Warde; with their reſpective Aſſeſſements, made when Rychard Bavande was Alderman theareof; who ſerved as Sheriffe A. D. 1571. and was Mayor ten Years after; and again A. D. 1600. 23.

7. Uncharged or unaſſeſſed Liſt of the Inhabitants of St. John's Warde, Mr. John Hankye then being Alderman; who was Sheriffe of Cheſter A. D. 1556, and Mayor thereof A. D. 1571. 24.

8. A like Liſt of the Inhabitants of Sene Giles Warde, made when Maſtar Wyllyam Bryde was Alderman there: now there being two William Birdes Tanners, both Sheriffes of Cheſter, the one A. D. 1546, the other A. D. 1566; I ſuppoſe this relates to the former, who was alſo choſen Mayor, A. D. 1547. 26.

9. Original Aſſeſſment of the Inhabitants of St. Martin's Ward toward the Reparation of the Walls of Cheſter; ſigned by the very ſorry Hand of Peter Drinkwater Mayor, that is, A. D. 1624. 28.

10. Atteſted Copie of the ſame, produced upon the Suit (formerly mentioned, at the book 95. C. 4.) betweeen Sir William Brereton (or Sir Waltar Pye for him) and the City of Cheſter, upon their aſſeſſing & diſtraining upon his Tenants, who had refuſed to pay toward the ſame Murage. 30.

An oblong Heraldical book in fol. on whoſe back the laſt Randle Holme hath written this Title, 'Sutes of Coates; & Coates of ſeuerall places:' which I ſhall preſently endeavour to explain. But I beg leave, in the firſt place, to obſerve, that it is indeed a ſort of an Armes Book; that the ſaid Collection ſeems to have been made (or at leaſt, begun) in the time of Queen Elizabeth; and was rudely or haſtily done, by ſeverall hands, ſome of which ſeem to be of Officers of Armes: and by this Mark ×, or this O, upon or near to moſt of the Eſcocheons, the greateſt part of it ſeems to have been more leiſurely & fairly entred into ſome other Book, for ready & conſtant Uſe. Moreover, at the beginning, I find,

1. An Alphabetical Table of the Coates in this Booke; made either by the ſaid Randle Holme, or by his appointment.

2. Part of the old Table, which is almoſt uſeleſs; becauſe it ſeldome directs to the Leaves where the deſired Armes are to be found. More of it may be ſeen at folios, or pages, 88, 101, & 109.

3. The Collection it ſelf, which beginning in the nature or manner of an Ordinary; was, perhaps what Randle meant by his Sutes of Coates; which I take to be an uncouth expreſſion, fol. 1. More Coates diſpoſed in this way of Ordinary, may be found at folios, or pages, 4, 7, 8, 10, 12, 16, 20, 22, 38, 41, 52, 57, 72, &c. As to his expreſſion of Coates of ſeverall places; I underſtand it not as if here was a Collection of Armes of Kingdomes, Cities, Monaſteries, Corporations, &c. for in truth, I ſee none ſuch: but rather, that the proper helps for compiling this Collection did appear, and were made uſe of in ſeverall places; as is now and then hinted at in the book; eſpecially where we find,

4. Armes of thoſe great Warriors who were preſent at the Sige of Carlaverocke in Scotland in the tyme of King Edward the firſt, Anno 1300. 23.

5. Some intimation (the Writing not plain) as if Armes were collected at the Houſe of the Lord Treaſurer Burghley. 82.

It is certain that that great Man did cauſe the Armes of many eminent Perſons to be painted in his Houſe; which may remain yet, for ought I know.

6. Henningham's Pedegre: i. e. Armes only collected from the Pedegree of Heveningham.

in the laſt Section or Article: and it may be eaſily imagined that the Rebels, when gotten into Power, & into the Poſſeſſion of Cheſter, would be revenged to the utmoſt of all thoſe who acted by its Color & Authority: ſo that it is no wonder if the Holme's Family were ſuddenly oppreſſed, and (at long run) brought to ruin. 20. Copie of the Decree iſſued from the Chamberlaynes Court, for the City, againſt the ſaid William Hodges. dat. 22^mo die Aprilis, A. D. 1612. 696.

The Defendants chief Argument was, that He was a Free Citizen of London; whoſe Citizens were by many Charters of our Kings, exempted from the payment of any Tolls, Subſedies, or Cuſtomes, in any Port or Place of this Realme. Now this Suit concerning all Citizens of London trading to Cheſter, and being of great importance to the ſaid City of Cheſter; it was (in favor to both Sides) ſuffer'd to ripen & grow to maturity by ſlow Degrees. At length (after much Art and Trouble given by Hodges) the Court pronounced Judgement againſt him, whereby he was to pay all the ſaid Cuſtomes, with large Coſts.

Note, Sir Richard had lett a Leaſe to the Mayor & Citizens of Cheſter of all Prize Wines which ſhould be brought into any of their Ports during the Terme of 9 Yeares, at the yeerelie Rent of 32 pounds; out of which, they were to pay for ſuch Wines as ſhould arrive there, and be approved by himſelf or his Servants.

On the back, this Commiſſion is thus entituled, 'The Comition of Shewers about the Cauſey in Dee.' Perhaps that might be thereby taken Care of, as a principal Article.

39. An Inquiſition taken by virtue of the Commiſſion aforeſaid at Cheſter, 16 December, anno 5 R. Jacobi I. where the Jurors preſented the Weare of Richard Groſvenour Eſq; made between the Townelhipps of Aldforde & Eaton, as hindring the Current of Dee-River: as alſo the Cawſey & Floode-gates nere Dee-Bridge, in or nere Cheſter, as not only hindring the paſſage of the ſaid River into the Sea; but upon all greate Land-Floods, annoying & ſurrounding of diuers lowe Grounds, to the Damage of £100 ℔ ann. beſides other effects of the ſaid Weare, Cawſey & Floodgates, fatal to the Chanel or Courſe of the ſaid River, its Navigation and Fiſhing. This

Num. 2003.

This Breviat ſeems to be very judiciouſly drawn up, in oppoſition to the Decree of ſome of the Commiſſioners; as objecting, among many other reaſons or arguments, that the Haven was then but in the ſame Condition, as it is deſcribed by Giraldus Cambrenſis, and others. That his Majeſties Cuſtomes at Cheſter, were then greater than ever. That the Cawſey (which had then been erected above 500 years, and was never before complained of) could not be abated without deſtruction of the whole, & loſs of the Mills. That the Decree (as the Verdicts found in Wales, which were contradicted by that found in Cheſter) was made by Parties intereſſed, who ſollicited the Cauſe, before & ſince, both the Commiſſion & Decree; and continued to proſecute it, as Parties. That of 56 Commiſſioners, 18 of Wales, and only ſix of Cheſhire agreed to the Decree (made in the dark, & out of time;) of which number neverthelefs many were not actually preſent at the making of it, but their Hands and Seales were procured to it afterwards: &c.

42. The Caſe of the Cawſay & Milles in Cheſter; preſented to the Lords the Judges, 13 February 1608. 786.

This is in purſuance of the Breviat abovementioned, againſt the Cauſay's being proſtrated, pulled down, taken away, &c. & ſigned by Sir John Doddridg, Sir Henry Hobarte, &c. 786. et vid. 849.

43. Another Copie of the ſame Caſe, ſetting forth (as the former did) that the Cawſway, & ſome of the Mills objected againſt were certainly ſtanding A. D. 1119. and that others of the ſaid Mills were erected by Johannes de Scotia Earle of Cheſter, who died A. D. 1237. to the great benefit of the Inhabitants of that Countrey, & elſewhere, without ever being impeached before. This is alſo ſigned by ſeveral of the Judges. 788.

44. Draught of a Letter from the un-ſigning Commiſſioners, to the Lords of the Privy-Councill, in behalf of the Cawſway built upon a natural Rock, croſs the River Dee. 800.

This was contradicted, as it ſeemes by the then Earl of Derby, who (with the Biſhop & Deane of Cheſter) had conſented to the pulling downe of one half thereof.

45. Draught of another Decree from the Commiſſioners, for the Salvation of the Cauſway over the Dee (which they obſerve to be originally yſſuing out of a certaine Mere or Lake in Wales commonly called Pymble-mere, falling down with ſuch violence, ſometymes vpon an Increaſe of Rayne, and ſometymes by Wynde without Rayne, as that the Grounds adjoyning to the ſayd River have bene in auncient tymes, as they now are, vſually overflowne; eſpecially thoſe which are toward the Head of the ſaid River, many Miles above the Cawſey) and of the Mills or Water-workes ſett up, in or neare the ſame. dated the . . . of . . . . . A. D. 1609. 801.

46. Atteſted Copie of an Act of Aſſembly made at Cheſter, the 9th of October, 1607. wherein they declare the great reaſons they had to preſerve the Cauſway, Mills, & Water-works in & adjoyning to the River Dee (as are likewiſe finely repreſented in the Draught laſt abovementioned) reſolving that a Petition be made to the Kinge for a Superſedeas of the ſaid Commiſſion; and that other Petitions or Letters ſhould be ſent to the Ld. Chanceloure of England, the Lord Treaſurer of England, The Earle of Saliſbury, &c. 810.

47. Draught of an Act (or Bill) for Explanation of the Statute of Sewers. 811.

This is drawn up, in a View of enlarging the power of the Commiſſioners of Sewers: but at the back, there put ſome Notes diſproving it.

48. Atteſted Copie of an Act of Parliament (of Anno 3 & 4 R. Edwardi vi.) intituled An Act concerning the Cittie of Cheſter, for Weares in the River of Dee. 815.

This Complaint was exhibited by John Byngley & other Clothworkers of Cheſter, to Thomas Earle of Dorſet Lord Treaſurer, Sir Julius Cæſar Chauncellour & Under-Treaſurer of the Exchequer, Sir Lawrence Tanfiel Lord Chiefe Baron, and other the Barons of the ſame Court: ſetting forth the Antiquity, with the great Uſefulneſs & Convenience of the Cawſway, with the Fulling-Mills & Corn Mills, erected upon the River Dee, in or by the City of Cheſter. As alſo how there had been a Combination entred into, & a Riot begun by a ſort of lewd Perſons, who would pull downe the ſaid Cawſway & Mills, which would be not only to the diſheriſon of the King, but to the deſtruction of all the Clothing Trade in thoſe parts; the hindrance of his Majeſties Service in Ireland; & the ſtarving of the meaner Sort, for want of Bread.

50. Diver Draughts, Caſes, & other Papers relating to this matter of the Cawſey & Mills. 849.

51. Petition of the Maior, Aldermen, Citizens & Inhabitants of the Citie of Cheſter, & of the Gentlemen & Inhabitants of the County Palatyne of Cheſter, neere vnto the ſaid Cittie. 857. b.

52. Petition of the Meyre & Cominalte of the Citie of Cheſter for the Cuſtomes of the Mylnes to be relaxed. 858.

This Petition was exhibited to K. Richard ii, in the 21ſt year of his Reign.

53. Tranſlation of the ſaid Kings Anſwer to the foregoing Petition; being a Grant, whereby he releaſeth to them all further Toll for grinding theire Corne at his Mills than the 16th Grain: but this for Four Years only. dat. 23 Februarij, anno Regni ſui 21. 859.

54. The Caſe offred by the Commiſſioners aforeſaid, to the Judges; being againſt the Cawſey & Milles; with this Queſtion grounded upon it,' Whether Commiſſioners of Sewers haue by Lawe Power, by theire Decree, to pull downe & abate Ten Yards of the ſaid Cawſey? and Whether this Decree, by the Lawes & Statutes of this Realme, may & ought to be executed, or not?' 860.

This Commiſſion was grounded upon a Petition of the Citizens of Cheſter, who alledged the ſaid misfortunes to be the main occaſions of the Deſolation & Miſery they then labor'd under; being then ſo great, as to diſable them from paying even the Kings Fee-farme Rent.

64. The Caſe of the Mayor & Cittizens of Cheſter. 885.

A book in folio conſiſting of many ſingle Papers, Parchments & Tracts, long ſince ſewed or bound up together. Theſe (as thoſe of ſome of the preceding Books) relate to the Affairs tranſacted by particular Perſons and Societies within the City, County, or Countie-Palatine of Cheſter: and, by the laſt Randle Holme, is on the out-ſide thus entituled. Notes and Charters of ſeverall Companys within the Citty of Cheſter. But a more particular Account of its Contents, is this that follows.

1. The ſaid Randle Holme's Note or Table of the moſt remarkable things found herein; but without the neceſſary Numbers of the Pages. At the beginning.

2. A Quietus eſt (from the Court of Exchequer at Cheſter) to James Vaudrey & others for impoſt of Wynes, brought into Cheſter-Port, anno 9 R. Elizabethe. 730.

This is the Original written upon Parchment; the Sum due to the Queen was £. 1091. 7. 4.

3. Original Petition of William Gamull & other Vintners of Cheſter, to Charles Howard Earle of Nottingham, Lord Highe Admirall of England; againſt one Button an Inne-keeper; who having gotten a Wine-Licenſe, grew troubleſome to the other Vintners; indeavouringe to confine them within the Walles of the ſaid City; whenas they were licenſed (although at a very dear rate) to retaile Wines not only in the City, but throughout the County of the ſame. 713.

This Petition hath his Lordſhips Order thereupon, underwritten and ſubſcribed with his own Hand; whereby I ſuppoſe Button's Impertinence was ſufficiently checked.

4. Original Order of the Privy Council, dated 19th of February, 1629. 733.

This ſhews that whereas the Kings Progenitors had made divers grants to the Mayor & Cittizens of Cheſter to the vſe of the Company of Merchants there) for Tranſportation of Calue-ſkinnes from thence, the Creeke, & Members thereof; the ſaid Mayor & Citizens, upon the expiration of the laſt grant, had deputed Mr. Gamull & others, to ſolicit another to the City, for the uſe of the ſaid Merchants, as had been uſuall; the nature of which Service theſe good Men miſtaking, procured a grant to themſelves, from Mr. Maxwell his late Majeſties Patentee, &c. for tranſportation of 600 Dicker of Calve-ſkinns yearely from the Porte of Cheſter. But upon a full hearing of this Matter before their Lordſhips, it was declared by the ſaid Mr. Gamull, that the ſaid grante was by him ever intended to be for the benefitt of the ſaid Company, in generall: and therefore their Lordſhips, by this Order, took care that they ſhould have the Benefit of it, or of a new grant in lieu thereof.

5. A true Copie of his Majeſtie (K. James 1's) Licenſe granted to James Maxwelle Eſq; for the buying and Tranſportinge of Calue ſkinnes. 735.

Num. 2004.

This ſetteth forth, that as Queen Elizabeth had (in the 7th year of her Reigne) granted Free Licence to Arthur Balſano & others of his Name yearly to export 6000 Dickers of Leather of Calue-ſkinnes, accompting Ten Dozen to every Dicker, for Seaven Yeares; paying therefore 5 Shillings for euery Dicker: So he now grants to James Maxweli Eſq; Licence to export Annually 18000 ſuch Dickers of Leather and Calue-ſkinnes, during the Terme of 21 yeares: at the ſame Price or Rent of 5 Shillings per Dicker. This grant bears Teſte, 12 June anno Regni Angliæ, &c.

6. Original Bill of Complaint, exhibited to Thomas Earle of Dorcëtt Lord High Treaſurer, Sir George Höwme Kt. Baron of Barwicke, Chauncellour of the Court of Exchequer, S^r Thomas Fleminge Lord chiefe Baron of the ſame, and the reſt of the Barons; by Robert Singleton Farmour vnto his Highnes of the Impoſt & Tonnage of all French Wynes brought into the Port of Cheſter, and Members thereof, in Michaelmaſs-Terme, anno 2^do. R. Jacobi 1. 739.

This ſheweth that the ſaid King did let to farme vnto Sir John Swynnerton Knight, all Subſidyes, Tonnage, Ympoſt, & Dewtyes of all French & Reniſh Wynes to be brought into England & Wales; and that the ſaid Sir John had aſſigned part, or a Share of & in the ſaid Patent or Grant, unto him the ſaid Singleton; that is, of all ſuch Wynes as ſhould be brought into the Ports & Creeks of Cheſter, Liuerpoole, Beaumaris, Conwaye, Caernarvon, & Lancaſter: but that Randle Ince & divers others had actually brought ſuch Wynes into his Diſtrict, refuſing to pay him the Duties they were liable unto: and that another perſon, one Owen Johnes of Cheſter, Mercer, without any Warrant from him, had compounded with divers, for his Dues upon ſuch Wines, to a conſiderable value; and therefore prays that a Subpena may be directed to all the ſaid Offenders, commanding perſonally to appear in the Exchequer in Weſtminſter, and there to anſwer to the Premiſſes.

7. The joynt and ſeuerall Anſwere of Randle Ince, Randle Fernalle, & Owen Johnes, three of the Defendants to the Bill of Complaynte of Robert Singleton Complaynaunte. 748.

Here Ince & Fernalle plead that Singleton being not the Kings immediate Patentee, they think they need not anſwer Him in the Exchequer. That they are both Free Citizens of Cheſter, and conſequently not liable to pay any Dutie whatſoever for their Wines (by Virtue of divers Grants from Q. Elizabeth) eſpecially conſidering that their Veſſel had but 56 Tonnes of Wine in her, & not 66 Tonnes as was alleaged. As for Johnes, that he received not ſo much as Singleton charged him with; but that which he did receive, he wholly paid to Sir Richard Trevor, and Sir William Morris; who (he believed) might have Right enough to take it.

8. Draught of an Acte concerneing matters of Aſſurances vſed amongſt Merchants. (Anno 43 Eliz. cap. 12.) 759.

Upon the Back is this Note; I like this Law for all thinges, ſaue onely that I thinke there ought to be Fees allowed, (ſuch as the Commiſſioners for Fees ſhall ſett downe) for a Regiſter & Officer of the Court of Aſſurances.

9. Grant to Arthur Balzano and others, for Tranſporting of Calue ſkinnes. This was given under the Privie Seale, the 26 of February, anno 7 Regis Jacobi 1. 763.

In theſe papers (which contain but a ſmall part of the Grant) the Name is written Baſſano; and not as juſt above, or as in §. 5.

10. The Demurrer of Rychard Byrde, Thomas Hand, & William Parnell of the Cittye of Cheſter Merchants; to the Bill of Complaint of Sir Richard Calveley Knight, Farmour of his Majeſties Cuſtomes of Impoſt and Tonnage within his Highnes Port of Cheſter. (Termino S. Michaelis, anno 3 Regis Caroli.) 767.

Num. 2004.

The Suit was for the Impoſt, Caſtome, & Subſedye for Fifteene Tonnes (ſuppoſed to be Wines) entred for Vinegar; ſo that the Plaintiffe was not paid for the Cuſtome & Impoſt of 15 Tonn. of Wyne; which 15 Tonnes of Wyne being thereby not entred, were become forfeite to his Majeſtie. Moreover, the Defendants being chardged vppon a Penall Lawe, in regard the ſaid Cuſtomes, &c. were concealed or miſentred; the Goods ſo forfeyted were to bee recovered by Information in the Kings Exchequer, by Action of Debt. And, for that noe Perſon vppon the Breach of a Penall Lawe, is compelled to accuſe himſelf, or to bee examyned vppon Interrogatoryes, as the Complaynant prayeth; and that if the Defendants haue offended, they are anſwerable to the Lawe for the ſame: they did demurre, &c.

11. Draught of the Indenture made 24 of February 1624; Betweene Sir Richard Caulveley Knight, Gentleman-Vſher, Dayly Wayter vnto his Majeſtie of the one parte; and William Gamull, William Alderſey, Andrew Gamull, Aldermen, of Cheſter, & others, Merchants of the ſaid Cittie: Whereby Sir Richard aſſignes unto them the Kings Grant of the Cuſtomes, Impoſts, &c. of all manner of French Wines, by whatſoever meanes brought into the Port of Cheſter; for and during the Terme of Seauen Yeares. Yeilding & payinge therefore yearlie, vnto the ſaid Sir Richard, 650 Pounds, and one full Hoggeſhead of Wine. 773.

12. The ſecond Randle Holme's Copie of a Quietus eſt, from the Exchequer of Cheſter, to ſeueral Merchants of Cheſter, for the Cuſtomes & Impoſts upon Wines; annis 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, Reg. Elizabethæ. 791. b.

13. His Copie of Q. Elizabeth's Graunt for the takeing of the New Cuſtome of Impoſt-Wynes; and her forgiueing the Merchants of Cheſter their Arreares &c. anno Regni nono. 792. b.

14. 2006.

An Heraldical Book in folio, conſiſting (for the greateſt part) of large Pedegrees of particular Families, both Engliſh and Welſh, cut into ſcantlings, ſo as to be bound up together in the preſent form. They are,

1. Deſcent of Robert Harvey Alderman of Cheſter, extracted by the ſecond Randle Holme, from the Genealogie made for the Honorable Sir William Hervey Knight & Baronet, Baron Hervey of Roos in Ireland, & Lord Baron Hervey of Kidbrooke in Kent, A. D. 1638. 1. a.

2. Pedegree of Charles Lord More of Mellyfont & Viſcount Drogedagh, A. D. 1632. 1. b.

This is done by the ſaid Randle Holme; but the Armes are only traced with Black Lead.

3. Pedegree of William Molyneux Eſquier. 16. et vid. fol. 72.

This is ſigned by W. Hervy als. Clarenciculx King of Armes.

4. Pedegree of the family of Egerton, deduced by the ſaid Randle Holme to the year 1651. 22.

5. Pedegree of Alderſey, down to the year 1641. 40.

Herein there is ſome trifling about the Etymology of the name of Alderſey, which might really have been Aldredes-hai; in like manner as Alderſgate in London, in old Writings, yet remaining with the Dean & Chapter, as alſo in other Hands, is written Aldredeſ-gate.

6. Pedegree of Raven of Ellworth. 41. b.

Here the Armes are in Colors: but the Deſcent itſelf is noted to be falſe.

7. Labored Pedegree of Sir Robert Sidney Knight, (who was afterwards Earl of Leiceſter) and of all the families from whom his Lady, as well as himſelf, was deſcended; made A. D. 1598. 54.

11. The laſt Randle Holme's Table of the Names of Families mentioned in theſe Pedegrees.

pally to Cheſhire Families & Eſtates; with which ſome others relating to Staffordſhire and other Counties are accidentally, or unavoidably intermingled. It is ſaid, in two places, that it is a Copie of Mr. Vernon (a famous Antiquaries) book inſcribed P. and in the Margin follows the Numerical Order of Leaves in the ſame; to which the ſeveral Tables or Indexes hereof do likewiſe refer.

With the ſaid Extracts, are found ſome Church-Notes, Hiſtorical Obſervations, & many Tricks of the old Seals, done by Randle Holme above-mentioned. Among many things worthy of Remark, I ſhall take notice of the Notes of Mr. Egerton (afterward Lord Chancellor of England) then Council for Mr. Thomas Venables Baron of Kinderton, in order to the Trial which came on between him & Philip Oldfield learned in the Law; when, after a Critical Examination of the Old Deeds produced by both parties, the Baron of Kinderton was allowed to remain Lord of the Manor of Bradwall. Theſe Notes are ſucceeded by others, ſhewing, with what Arguments & upon what Deeds & Evidences grounded, S^r. William Brereton impugned the Old Tenures of certain Lands, at the Juries finding the Office poſt mortem Thomæ Venables Ar. anno 4 Regis Jacobi 1. The firſt of theſe may be found at No. 138; the other at No. 162. The Reader of them needs not be ſtartled at the multitude of miſtakes, which he will perceive, conſidering that the Tranſcription was done by hackney-pen-men, who are generally ignorant enough; as alſo that they are, generally, ſo plain, that the Senſe is very obvious & intelligible.

At the beginning of the Book the laſt Randle Holme hath put,

1. An Imperfect Liſt of the Names of Towns, mentioned in the following Collections.

2. Index Villarum; or, a more regular, full, and Alphabetical Table of the ſaid Towns Names.

3. Index Virorum; or, a like Table directing to the ſeveral Surnames of Families herein mentioned.

4. The Names of the ſeueral Perſons from whoſe Deeds & Evidences theſe Manuſcripts (i. e. Extracts) were taken. Sett down by the third Randle Holme, A. D. 1672.

A book in folio, like to the former; as bearing the ſame Title on the back, written by the like ignorant & careleſs Hackney-writers, and as I ſuppoſe at the ſame Randle Holme's charge; who hath putt this following Note at the beginning thereof. 'This is a Copy of Mr. William Vernons Liber H which (leg. and) is folio'd according to his booke in the margent of euery page.' It chiefly conſiſts, like that preceding, of Tranſcripts & Extracts from Deeds & other Inſtruments, illuſtrating or conducive toward the Hiſtory of Cheſhire Families & Places; and ſomewhat about other places in Staffordſhire: giving likewiſe ſome Church-Notes from Mobberley & Chedle aforeſaid; with certain Hiſtorical Obſervations of Mr. Vernon; & divers Tricks of Seals by R. Holme. Before all, is put

1. The laſt Randle Holmes account of things of moſt Note in this Collection.

As to the Collection it ſelf, I ſhall take particular notice, at this time, of no more than

Here are many Evidences concerning the antient Family of Vernon; and among the reſt, ſome particularly relating to Sir Rauffe Vernon Knight, & his Deſcendants: which Sir Rauffe was a Baſtard, and (as appears by what I find) was a vigorous man. He ſaw his Great Grandſon married, & ſettled lands upon that mariage; (vid. fol. 47. b.) and lived Seaven ſcore yeare & ten yeare; (vid. fol. 48. b. & the Cheſhire Viſitation books.) An inſtance of Longevity not commonly obſerved.

14. The above-mentioned Randle Holmes Index Locorum.

This is followed by a Liſt of thoſe who granted Charters to this City, the firſt of whom is Randulph (the third, ſurnamed Blundeville, I ſuppoſe) in one of whoſe Charters, then (& perhaps now) remaining, Randle Holme obſerveth, that the ſaid Earle granted to them their auntient Libertyes & Guild Mercatoriam ſicut hactenus vſi fuerunt. Might not a Gild Mercatory be ſett up, and other Privileges be granted by the Predeceſſors of this Earle, and in proceſs of time be loſt? Can the Exchequer of Cheſter produce regular Inrolments of all their publick Inſtruments from A.D. 1181, when this Great Man came be to Earle? or do we know of any Gild-Mercatory to have been inſtituted but by Authority? Without Grant from the Prince, or States of the Place, ſuch a Brotherhood would ſeem to be but a Rout, & an Unlawful Aſſembly, and their making Orders for their own Regulation, would be but a Combination to enrich themſelves & oppreſs their Countrymen; which one would think could not be well reliſhed by Authority; which not being applied to in ſo weighty an Affair, had no proviſion of Duties or Cuſtomes reſerved; and conſequently would, at leaſt, yield ſuch a Gild no protection, if it did not ſoon deſtroy it. Vid. fol. 12.

46. Breviats of (or Notes from) the Confirmations of the Libertyes of Cheſter, out of ſeuerall Charters. ibid.

49. Petition of William Glaſior Vice-Chamberlayne & Deputy to (Robert Dudley) Earle of Leiceſter, Chamberleyn of the County Palatine of Cheſter; to the Lords of the Priuey Councell, againſt Richard Dutton then Mayor of Cheſter; who is therein repreſented as a moſt vile perſon. 164.

Here are more Extracts from thence, ſtill relating to Cheſhire: which being added to, or conſidered with what is above mentioned at § 8 & 9. will afford a pretty good Copie of that moſt antient Record, ſo far as it relateth to this County. Which Extracts the ſaid Randle Holme the ſecond took from a Copie of Domes-dei as to this Countie, tranſcribed from the Record, from Mr. Peter Leiceſter & Mr. William Vernon, at the price of Eight Pounds, by Mr. Scipio l'Eſquier then Under-Chamberlayne of the Exchequer, and was compared with the Record itſelf by the ſame Mr. Leiceſter. 275.

Here I cannot but wiſh, that honeſt Randle had been as good a Copiſt as Scipio l'Eſquire was.

Now come ſome looſe Papers lying at the end; being

A paper Book in folio (which I ſhall not call Poetical) relating to the ſeveral Companies of the City of Cheſter; which I having partly run over, ſhall deſcribe in the following manner.

1. The Proclëmation for Whitſone Playes, made by William Newall Clarke of the Pendice, anno 24 Henr. VIII. at the beginning.

It ſets forth, that "in ould tyme, not only for the Augmentation & Increes of the Holy & Catholick faith, and to exort the minds of common people to good Deuotion & holſome Doctrine; but alſo for the Comonwealth & Proſperity of this Citty, a Play & Declaration of diuers Stories of the Bible; beginning with the Creation, & Fall of Lucifer, and ending with the generall Judgement of the World, to be declared & played in the Whitſonne weeke, was deuiſed & made by Sir Henry Frances ſometyme Mooncke there; who gat of Clement then Buſhop of Rome 1000 dayes of Pardon; and of the Buſhop of Cheſter, at that tyme, 40 dayes Pardon, to euery perſon reſorting, in peaceable maner, to heare & ſee the ſayd Playes: which were inſtituted to the Honor of God, by John Arnway then Maior of Cheſter, his Bretheren, & whole Cominalty thereof; to be brought forth, declared & played, at the Coſt & Charges of the Crafteſmen & Occupations of the ſayd Citty," &c.

Underneath the Proclamation, the Third Randal Holme hath written, that Sir John Arnway was Maior, A. D. 1327 & 1328; at which tyme theſe Playes were written by Randall Higgenett a Monk of Cheſter Abby, &c.

Num. 2013.

2. The Banes which are reade beefore the beginninge of the Playes of Cheſter, A. D. 1600.

Here, or in this Prologue, it is ſaid

"That ſome tymes ther was Mayor of this Citie Sir John Arnway Knight: who moſt worthilye contented hymſelfe to ſett out in playe
The Deviſe of one Done Rondall Moonke of Cheſter Abbey."

This Rondall might be Hikeden or Higden, for ought I know (vid. N°. 2125. fol. 272. b) and it ſeems, that his Poetry & Language being grown obſolete, the Draught was altered for the Pageants or Playes (as they are called) which were to be publickly exhibited, A. D. 1600. and then this very uncorrect Copie ſeems to have been taken by one George Bellin, who perhaps might haveacted ſome part therein. An Hiſtorical Book in ſmall folio, all written by the Hands of the ſecond & third Randle Holme's; being begun in or before the year of our Lord 1656 (as appears, in fol. 17. b.)

It is only part of a rough Draught of ſome larger work, which ſeems to be the Hiſtory of the City of Cheſter; in order to introduce which, it was thought fit to premiſe ſomewhat touching the Antient Hiſtory of Great Britain in general, & of England in particular, as may appear by the Contents of the ſeveral Chapters. They are,

Chap. i. The State of Brittaine in elder tymes; and how it is ſeated. 1.

Chap. ii. The Names by which this Iland hath bine called. 2. b.

Chap. iii. Of the Diviſion of the Ile into Provinces, States, Shires, & Hundreds, &c. 5.

Chap. iv. Of the Inhabitants of Cheſhire; and from whence they are originally deſcended. 10.

Chap. v. The continuance of the Inhabitants of Cheſhire; and the Countreys from which they are ſaid to be deſcended. 18. b.

Chap. vi. Of the Languages vſed by the people inhabiting Cheſhire; theire eſteeme of learning, and the ſeuerall wayes of Writing, & formes of Letters vſed by them. 25. b.

Chap. vii. Of the ſeuerall Habits uſed by the people inhabiting this our Citty & County. 35.

Theſe are followed by a ſhort Tract or Diſcourſe, of the firſt Foundation of Cheſter; which concludes with theſe words, "thus far of the State & Condition of this Citty of Cheſter, dureing the Roman Gouernment."

This work, notwithſtanding the marginal & other Citations, is almoſt wholly collected from Books printed in Engliſh; and tis much pitty that thoſe two induſtrious men had not Learning, Judgment, & Experience ſufficient, in the ſeuerall parts of this their Undertaking. Which if they had perſevered in to the end (notwithſtanding all its defects) might have afforded us Notices of many things, that now may not eaſily, if ever, be retrieved.

52. A View taken of Flod-yats by the Maior of Cheſter, & his Bretheren, anno 20 R. Henrici VIII. 500.

It ſeems, that theſe Flood-gates have occaſioned very much damage to the River of Dee; and have been one Cauſe of its being almoſt choaked up with Sand.

An Heraldical Book in folio, conſiſting of different Works put up together; or done by different Hands, among which, I take that of Mr. Richard Scarlate Citizen & Painter-Stayner of London to be the principal. On the Outſide it is entituled, by the third Randle Holme, "Sutes of Coates": which ſeeming to me not ſufficient, I preſume to deſcribe it in the manner following:

1. The ſaid Randle Holme's account of the Things of moſt Note within this Booke; wherein the method obſerved in the next Work, is particularly deſcribed. At the beginning.

2. An old Ordinary of Armes, roughly tricked; ſeeming seeming not only to want two Leaves at the beginning; but is otherwise imperfect, & damaged by much use. 3. 91. 98.

Num. 2021, 2022.

A great part of this, is of Mr. Scarlate's hand; and some Additions have been made thereto by the said Randle Holme and his father.

9. Armes of Scots Nobility, hastily trick'd by Scarlet above-mentioned. 148, 151, 156.

N. B. the Scots Armes seeme to be all dashed out, by a cross stroke, or diagonal line drawn through every Escocheon; which I understand not as if the said Armes are all false; but only that they were all fairly entred from hence, into some other Book.

10. An Alphabetical Table of the Names of Families whose Coates are extant in this Booke. 158.

A Book in ſmall folio, written by divers hands, and on the out-ſide thus entituled, 'Liber Tenures in Com. Ceſtrie,' etc. It was begun to be written long ago, and was in the poſſeſſion of the ſecond Randle Holme in the year 1655, who hath taken much pains in noting down the Margins, the proper Names of Perſons & Places: and hath alſo prefixed the Collectors Title to the whole Work, which ſeems to have been meant or conceived in the Words following.

1. Liber Feodorum Militum Comitatûs Palatini Ceſtrie, per Thomam Greene Feodarium ibidem diligenter collectus ex Recordis in Scaccario Ceſtrie predicte remanentibus, et alibi: et Baron. & Hundred. ſeparat. & per ſemet ipſas collocat. In turning this Collection over, I obſerve,

1. The laſt Randle Holme's Account of 'Things of moſt Note' in this Book. At the beginning.

2. His Table referring to the Lands in Cheſter & elſewhere, mentioned in this Book.

3. The Collection itſelf, which begins at fol. 9.

A Book in ſmall folio, ſeeming to have been written & tricked by the Hand of the third Randle Holme; who (in his later time) wrote this Note at the beginning thereof, 'This Book is my firſt Collections & Draughts for the Academie of Armory, Anno 1649.' Which date ſheweth that he began that laborious Work when he was very young. The Firſt Part of the Work containing Three Books, was printed at Cheſter for the Author. A. D. 1688. in folio: and (notwithſtanding honeſt Randles manifeſt want of common Literature, and the numerous Errata of the Printer,) is really a very curious and uſeful Book upon many accounts, although now ſo much neglected & worn out of memory, as to be known to few People in theſe parts. And the vile price it hath been bought at, viz. eight Shillings, being much below the prime coſts of Paper & Print, ſhew that the diligent Man muſt have been a great loſer, after ſo many Years pains.

At the end of the Contents of the Firſt Part, he hath inſerted this Note. "Thus far have I, with much Coſt & Pains, cauſed to be printed for the Publick-Benefit. What remains (and is ready for the Preſs) is as followeth in the ſucceeding Contents: which (if encouraged by liberal & free Contributors) may appear in the World; elſe will ſleep in the Bed of its Conception, and never ſee the glorious Light of the Sun." And indeed, that hath been its Fate; it is not yet printed, and perhaps never can be, a great Part of the Copy being loſt ſince the the Authors deceaſe. That the Book did not ſell, is imputed to Randles original ſin. Firſt in cauſing it to be printed at Cheſter, a great Way off; and ſecondly, for himſelf; the worſt Article of the Two. No wonder therefore, if the Bookſellers combined together (in his Caſe, as in that of many others) to damn a Book they were not concerned in.

But to return to the Manuſcript now before me; I obſerve that the greateſt Part of the Tricks or Drawings (as well as the writing) is daſhed through; by which marks I underſtand that the ſame were entered into ſome other Book or Books. Moreover, it may be remembred, that theſe Collections are looſe and disjointed, & not in the ſame Order as they are printed. Laſtly, that divers of the Drawings belong to the ſecond or unprinted part of the Work.

I know not if it may be worth while to mention an original Letter faſtened in this Book written by one John Price Vintner, and dated from Salop, 26 November 1617; wherein, amongſt other matters, he expreſſeth himſelf thus, "You ſay I take vpon me to be the Glory of the North for a Vintnour: to which I anſwer, It hath pleaſed God that I know non outt of London or Briſtoll retorne more money yearly then my ſelf: which Acount is eaſſeley to be ſene; and have don this 7 yeares, more then Too thowſend Pounds a yeare . . . . And for ane Compackt or Deſaytte, or frawdelent Combynation betwen Him & Me; Yff another man doo ſaye it, He lyes in his Throtte. I ſkorn that mind; and yff he ſay that I ame ſatisfyed, he is a velen-lyinge Raſkall." . . . . .

A Book in ſmall folio, written, tricked, and (in very many places) daſhed or croſſed like the former; being all done by the third Randle Holme; who in his later Years inſerted the following Note at the beginning. 'This Book was my ſecond Collection & Draughts for the Academy of Armory.' This is confuſed, and immethodical enough; and may contain ſome of the matters by him intended for the Second Volume.

In turning this Book over, among other Things, I obſerve toward the end,

2. Explication of divers Old Terms uſed in Blazon of Armes.

3. Deſcent of Stanley Earl of Derby, down to the laſt Earl William.

4. Deſcendants from Thomas Moſtyn; brought as an Inſtance for the Marſhalling of Coates.

5. Armes, or Atchievement of Leukenore, in Colors; as exemplified by Sir William Dethick, Garter, A. D. 1595.

6. Names of Writts uſed in our Engliſh Laws, explained.

7. Other Law-Termes explained.

Another of old Randle Holme the third's Volumes; by him thus entituled, 'The firſt Book of the Academy of Armory, which only treateth of the Honorable Ordinaries:' that is, containing only the firſt Nine Chapters of the Firſt Book, and adorned with the printed Cutts, inſtead of Trickings. It comprehendeth alſo the Index to the Firſt Book: and 'the Significations of all the Charges uſed in Herauldry, within his firſt Booke.'

Num. 2029—2035.

Another like Book in ſmall folio, written by poor old Randle Holme the third, who (in his later time) gave it the Title following, 'The Manuſcript of the Second Book of The Academy of Armory, to the Eleventh Chapter; as it was printed.' Here are no Trickings, but inſtead of them the printed Cutts are inſerted. Several of the Leaves are damnified by the Fire, that no leſs fatal than frequent conſumer of Books.

I cannot forbear remarking (and this with Aſtoniſhment) that in the Firſt Page under the Title above-mentioned, is the beginning of the Lord's Prayer, in Greek, erroneouſly written, but not by a Greek, or in what we call a Greek Hand.

Here the Third Article (if I may ſay ſo) is moſt impudently perverted thus, ὁ Πατὴρ (ſo it is written) ἡμῶν βασιλεία τῶν Ἰσραήλ; an horrible Wickedneſs, in my poor Opinion.

Another like book written by the ſame Randle Holme the third, and by him thus entituled, 'The Manuſcript of the Second Book of the Academy of Armory, as it was prepared for the Printing;' beginning with Chapter XI.

2031.

Another like book, written by the ſame Hand, and thus entituled, 'The Manuſcript of the third Book of the Academy of Armory, as it was printed to the Sixth Chapter.'

The Trickings belonging to this Volume, are inſerted into ſome of the former; and are not ſupplied by Prints. In turning the Book over, I obſerve much Writing or Matter daſhed out; which I ſuppoſe to be inſerted in Places more proper for it.

been of great Uſe, if it had been well followed; but although the Regiſter appeareth to have been well begun, the Armes being painted, the Certificate fairly copied &c. honeſt Randle Holme the firſt ſoon found thoſe laborious Articles to be unneceſſary, there being but 5 Atchievements painted: and with the ſecond Inſtance he failed as to the writing-part, there being no more of his Copies. But then in order to carry on the Regiſter, he paſted the Original Certificates (in like manner as was done by thoſe of W. A Book in folio, conſiſting of ſeveral Tracts & looſe Papers bound up together, being written by the ſecond Randle Holme, and others; on the back-ſide thus entituled, "Deeds of Abbeys & Priories," &c. wherein I find,

1. The third Randle Holmes Account of the Things of moſt Note in this Book: at the beginning,

2. Index Locorum; or an Alphabetical Table of the Naines of Places mentioned herein.

Next, follows a large Collection of Notes and Charters, with Tricks of many of their Seals; gathered from many Perſons and Places, and may be accounted for in the following manner.

3. How Hugh Lupus Earl of Cheſter gave his Eſtate in Scipena to the Abbey of Abendon, manu cultellum Altari ſuperponendo; with his Epiſtle to the Abbat Rainaldus, ſhewing upon what Terms he would part with it. Taken out of the Leiger of the Abby of Abbingdon remaineing in Cotton's Library, & noted, Claudius C. 9. 1.

4. Carta quâ Hugo cognomento Kivelioc Comes Ceſtrenſis, conceſſit Eccleſiam Bettesfordiæ Priori et Canonicis de Trentham. ibid.

This Coppy (ſays the ſame Randle) I received from Sir Simon d'Ewes: whoſe Tranſcript of it may be found in this Library, at 37 B. 13. fol. 216. b.

5. Carta quâ Ranulfus Comes Ceſtriæ, dedit Cevæ Ridel filiæ Comitis Hugonis, Draitunam, in libero Conjugio, ſicuti Comes Hugo ei in libero conjugio dedit et conceſſit. ibid.

This I receuied (quoth Randle) from Sir Simon d'Ewes, taken out of a Manuſcript in Arundell-houſe, which belonged aunciently tó the Barons of Stafford; wherein the old Charters of the Baſſets of Drayton-Baſſet were inrolled, about the time of Richard 11. (vid. 37. B. 13. fol. 248. 248. b.)

6. Copy of the Charter whereby Richard Earl of Cheſter gave an Hide of Land in Wdemundeſlai to the Monaſtery of Abendon, anno 6 Regis Henrici 1. 1. b.

This Deed comes from the Cottonian MS. beforementioned, and is alſo tranſcribed into 37. B. 13. at fol. 217. b. where a remarkable Note in the Cottonian book, is there omitted. It ſhews that this Earl "nondum militari baltheo cinctus," as being under Age, had not a Seal of his own, but uſed that of his Mother.

7. Conventio inter Comitem Ceſtriæ, et Robertum Comitem Legeceſtriæ, et finalis Pax et Concordia quæ fuit conceſſa ab eis, coram ſecundo Roberto Epiſcopo Lincolniæ, et Hominibus eorum, circa Burgum et Dominicum Caſtrum de Mount-Sorell, et Caſtrum de Ravenſtona, &c. 1. b.

Honeſt Randle found the Original of this, in Bibliotheca Cottoniana: i. e. in the book inſcribed NERO C. III. Cart. 4. where I have alſo ſeen it. vid. Smithi Catal. Bibl. Cotton. pag. 52. col. 2.

8. Old Deeds tranſcribed or extracted from the great Couchir-booke in the Duchy-Office at Grayes-Inne. London. 2. b.

They all relate to the Family of the old Earles of Cheſter.

9. Ex Clauſ. 16. Hen. III. a Writt about putting Clementia the Widow of Ranulf Earl of Cheſter, in full poſſeſſion of her Dowry. 5.

10. Conventio inter Ranulphum Comitem Ceſtrie, et Llewellinum Principem North-walliæ, de indotatione Helenæ filiæ Lewelini: quam itidem in uxorem Johanni de Scotia, Comitis nepoti, tradendam promiſit. ibid.

From the Original, in the Hands of Mr. Somerford Oldfield of Somerford in Cheſhire, A. D. 1653.

11. Extracts from two Deeds relating to the Endowment or Settlement of the Abbey of Norton in Cheſhire, which was removed thither from Runcorna. 5. b.

12. De partitione hæreditatis Ranulfi Comitis Ceſtriæ, inter tres filias ſuas. Ex Rot. Clauſ. 17. Hen. III. m. 17. ibid.

13. Extracts from the Public Records, & from the Bodleyan MS. LAVD. K. 84. concerning John le Scot Earl of Cheſter, and the Lands given to his four Siſters, as a Recompenſe for the County of Cheſter. 6.

Theſe Mr. Holme owns that he had from the then Mr. William Dugdale; & likewiſe the ſame Records from Mr. Will. Vernon.

14. Notes relating to Cheſhire, and to its antient Earls, from the ſame Bodleyan Manuſcript; and from the ſame Mr. Dugdale too, as I ſuppoſe. 6. b.

15. De Hugone & Ranulpho III. Comitibus Ceſtriæ, adnotationes binæ: ex Hiſtoria aurea Johannis Anglici ſive Tinumentenſis MS. in Bibliotheca Bodleiana. 7. A.

16. Collectanea ſuper Monaſterijs de Parco-Creendun, Parco ſuper Tamam, et de Maiden-Bradley, ex rotulo quodam dicto 'Rotulus de Crendon,' penes Decanum & Capitulum Eccleſiæ Cathedralis Oxon. 7.

17. Excerpta è Cartis quibuſdam penes Chriſtoforum Dominum Hatton, ſuper Monaſterjis de Davintre, Sandford, Hoſpitali S. Wlſtani de Wigornia, Cœnobijs de Alvingham & Nocton (ubi de Familijs de Bec. & Arci) Sireburne, (ubi plura de Familia Portorum, ſive de Sancto Johanne) Bradleia, S. Frideſwidæ Oxon. ibid.

18. Ex-

Num. 2044.

18. Extracts from the Evidences of Mr. Richard Bagod, principally relating to his Family, or to the Towne of Bromley-Bagod. 10.

These were copied from a Book of Mr. William Vernons.

19. Collectanea ex Libro Prioratus Sancti Thomæ Martyris juxta Stafford. 12.

20. Collectanea ex Libro Ecclesiæ Collegiatæ B. Mariæ de Warwic. 14.

I suspect that many of these Extracts from Deeds, included in the two last Articles, are taken from the Originals, & not from the Book abovementioned (although due Notice be not given) becaufe many have Tricks of the Family Seals, particularly that of Johanna the Relict of Sir Robert de Harley, bearing date anno 49 R. Edw. III. as at fol. 15. b. et (vid. fol. 18. b.)

21. Collectanea ex Chartis Edwardi Aston de Tixhall in Com. Stafford. 16. b.

Divers of these relate to Persons & Places in Warwick-shire, as well as others in Staffordshire.

22. Extracts from sundry old Deeds relating to divers antient Families, as Frevile, Marmion, Montfort, Walshe, &c. perhaps by Mr. William Vernon. 18. b.

23. Pars Cartæ Willelmi Comitis de Warenna, de Fundatione Ecclesiæ S. Marie de Wodkirke. 18. C.

This was a Cell to the Priory of Nostell in Yorkshire.

24. Pars Litterarum Patentium Regis . . . . . quâ concessit Henrico Wyat Militi, quod ipse fundaret Cantariam in Capella Beate Marie Virginis apud Melton juxta Gravisende in Com. Kancie. 18. C. b.

26. Collectanea ex Registro Cartarum Monasterij de Sibeton in Com. Norfolciensi. 27. b.

Notwithstanding what is above written, and also asserted in the Monasticon Anglicanum, &c. some hold the Scite of this Monastery to be within the County of Suffolk. Among these Extracts, I more particularly observe, 27. Inquisitio capta apud Sanctum Edmundum pro rationabili Auxilio levando (per Hundredum de Blithinge) de Feodis Militum, ad Filium Domini Regis primogenitum, Militem faciendum ; die Lune proximo post Festum Translationis Sancti Thome Martyris, anno R. R. Edwardi III. à Conquestu, 21. 31. b.

28. Feoda Militum cum pertinentijs ad Honorem de Eye, in diversis Comitatibus. 33.

29. Part of a Charter of Offa King of the Mercians, whereby he granted Eowengelad (vulgo Evenlade in Com. Wigorn.) Esme Comiti, Prefectoq; suo dat. A. D. 784. 34. b.

This is said to have been taken from the Original, by Edmund Langley.

30. Breve Regis Henrici v. contra eos qui in Viagijs ipsius, Arma et Tunicas Armorum vocat. Coat-Armores, in se sumserunt ; ubi nec ipsi nec eorum anteceffores, hujusmodi Armis ac tunicis Armorum, temporibus retroactis usi fuerunt . . . . . exceptis illis qui secum apud bellum de Agencourt Arma portabant (E. Rot. Clauf. 5 Henr. v. m. 15.) 35.

33. Collectanea ex Registro Abbatie de Niewham in Com. Devon. ibid.

This is wholly upon the Descent of Courtenay, from Rivers.

34. Collectanea è Cartulario Prioratûs S. Pancratij de Lewes, in pago Sussexiæ. 37.

35. Extracts from certain Deeds which I (Randle Holme the second) had from Mr. Vernon, relating to the Family of Lacy, &c. 51. b.

36. Copie of a Deed in French, whereby George Baudewyn of Brugge conveyed to John Fitz-William of the More, the Manor of Overe-Kingeshemede, with the advowson of its Chapell, &c. dat. 23 May, anno 31 R. Edw. III. 52. b.

37. Carta Fundationis Monasterij de Farley, per Humfridum de Bohun II, Comitem Herefordiæ. 53.

39. Collectanea ex Cartulario Abbathie de Salleia in pago Eboracensi, penes Dnm. Simonds D'ewes Militem et Baronettum, 30 Jan. 1647. 58. et 65.

The Chartulary here mentioned is now in this Harleyan Library, inscribed. 35. A. 13.

40. Collectanea e quodam Libro MS. in pergameno, continente Actus Curie Cantuarienfis tempore Archiepiscopatûs Roberti Winchelsey Archiepiscopi ibidem ; nunc in Bibliotheca Lamethana. 61.

41. Collectanea e publicis Recordorum Archivis, &c. ad Darceiorum Familiam spectantia. 62. b.

42. Collectanea ex Registro Abbatie de Bermundesey in Com. Surregiæ, in Custodia Dni. Simonds D'ewes Militis, 8 Jan. 1647. 66.

This Book is not a Register of Deeds, or Chartulary ; but a Chronicle, or Book of Annals of the Place, remaining now in this noble Library, inscribed 36. C. 14.

43. Collectanea ex Libro MS. in pergameno, cujus Titulus est, "Registrum sive Martirologium Prioratûs S. Trinitatis Cantuariæ, in Custodia Dni. Simonds D'ewes Militis et Baronetti, 27 Jan. 1647." 70.

I take the Custodia here, not to extend to a property, or legal Possession ; because, 1. No such book of Sir Simonds d'Ewes came hither : and 2. such a Book as this, I have perused among the Norfolcian MSS. in the Library of the Royal Society now settled in Crane Court in Fleet-street, I suppose therefore that Sir Simonds borrowed it of Thomas Howard Earl of Arundel & Surrey, or else of his son Earl Henry : in like manner as the Kings MS. of Matthew Paris's Historia Minor, is cited (in this MS. fol. 64.) as in the Custody of the same Sir Simonds, 28 August 1648. which was afterward restored to the Library from whence it was taken ; for, I myself, have divers times seen and perused it there.

44. E. Chartis in Custodia Sam. Roper Armigeri de Kirby-Monachorum in pago Warwicensi, 30 Maij 1643. fol. 82. (Most of these, relate to the Priory, or Priories, of Chalk and Repindóne in Derbyshire.) 88. b. 89.

45. A Letter of Attorney, whereby Matthewe Marston Gent. appoints Edwarde Lyttleton Gent. to take Seisyn for him of certain Lands in the Mannour of Mynton in the Parishe of Church-Stretton in the Countie of Salop. dated, 26 February, anno 14 R. Jacobi I. 83. b.

46. Short Notes relating to the Family of Mytton & Lyngene. ibid.

47. Notes from two Inquisitions touching the Family of Cornewall. ibid.

48. E quodam Cartulario Prioratûs de Merton in Com. Surr. nuper in Bibliotheca Cottoniana. 84.

This book is (or ought to be) there still ; inscribed CLEOPATRA. C. 7.

49. E Cartulario Abbatiæ de Kirkstïd. 87.

50. Ex quodam MS° penes Thomam Dïm Brudnell Baronem de Brudnell-Stanton in Comitatu Leicestrensi, 30 Januarij 1647 ; cujus Titulus, The Leiger-booke of Doddington in the County of Huntingdon. 89. b.

Here the Reader, from the word Leiger-booke, need not think that Doddington was a Monastery, as it was not : but rather, that the said Book contained Copies of that noble Lord's Evidences, touching the whole, or part of his Estate ; at least, such as related to Doddington, which he enjoyed, as being descended from Taylard, Grimbaud, Grimbaud, & Kirkeby, the Owners thereof for a very long time before.

51. A Note concerning the Lordſhipe of Great Budworth in Com. Ceſtr. half of which, was given by Warburton of Arley, to the Priory of Norton. 93.

52. Tranſcripts of Five Charters of ſo many of our antient Noble Men, that is, of the firſt William de Mandevilla, Earl of Eſſex; Henry de Laſcy, Earl of Lincoln; Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Penbroc; William de Albini, Earl of Suſſex; and Gualeran, Earl of Mellent: with Tricks of their Seals, excepting that of the laſt. 93. b.

Inſtead of the Seal of Earl Gauleran, are theſe Words, "This Seale, with its Endorſe was not drawne in Mr. Dodſworth's booke."

53. Collectanea ex Libro Cenſuali, ſive Regiſtro Prioratus de Beluero, ſubordinat. Abbatiæ Sancti Albani; tranſcripta per Thomam Baronem Brudenell. 96.

Honeſt Randle Holme the ſecond, took this Monaſtery to be that of Beverley in Yorkſhire; wherein he was widely miſtaken. For it plainly appears to be that of Belvoir in Leiceſterſhire.

54. Collectanea e Cartis diverſis, penes Thomam Baronem de Brudenell. 97. b.

55. Extracts from a few Deeds relating to the Nunnery of Blithbury in Staffordſhire. 99.

56. A large Collection of Tranſcripts, or Extracts from original Deeds, with Tricks of very many of their Seals; ſaid to be taken from one of Mr. Roger Dodſworth's Books thus marked [illegible] of which, I think I need now ſay no more, (foraſmuch as very many of the Originals, being bought of Sir Simonds D'Ewes now living, are yet remaining in this noble Library) than that they relate to the Monaſteries of Kirkeby-Monachorum, Studeley, Elleſham, Acornebury, Dora, Tunſtal, Wederhale, Berlinges, Burewelle, Hacham or Hagham, Bulington, Kirkeſtede, Sempingeham, Bordeſley, Neuhus, Grenefeld, Suwerk or Southwark, Tanregge or Tunregge, Coges, Sewardeſley, Friſetun, Alnewyke; and that from them, many good materials may be had, toward making out, or illuſtrating the Deſcents of the antient, noble & honorable Families of Mulbrai, Cantilupo, Kaynes (de Kaineto, Cheyne, or Cheney) Amundavilla, Clifford, Crevequer, Stafford, Haya, Nevilla, De Ayncurt, Kyma, Arſic, Welle, Orrebi, Taterſale, Fitz-Walter, De Arci, Bec, Monte-fixo, Marmiun, Malet, Berner, Ros, Furnivalle, Foliot, De la mare, Ruſſel, Goſſa, Laſci, Tegrave, Someri, Dan-martin, Wenlok, Blount, Monchenſy, Tybetot, Stapleton, Hoo, Bohun, Baiocis, Wake, Burgo, Port, Creun, Monte-begonis, Perci, Veſci, Wilgebi, Scoteni, Mandavilla, Ver, Gant, &c. 105.

57. Collectanea è Cartulario de Caſtel-Acre. 144.

Sir Simonds D'Ewes the Grandfather ſeems to have lent this valuable Manuſcript to the ſecond Randle Holme, not long before his deceaſe: and then honeſt Randle keeping the book as his own; no wonder it came not among the others bought of Sir Simonds D'Ewes the Grandſon. But in proceſs of a long time; that is, after the death of old Randle Holme the third, it did come into this Library, & is now inſcribed, 97 B. 2.

58. E Cartulario Prioratus S. Johannis de Pontefracto. 146.

59. E quodam ms. manu recentiori ſcripto, penes Johannem Langley Armigerum, A. D. 1649. 147.

This Manuſcript contained Copies of many curious Charters, with Tricks of the Seals; and might be of good Uſe now, if it were known where it remains.

60. E. Cartulario S. Marie de Kirkeſted. 156. 158. b.

61. Collectanea e Cartulario de Caſtel-Acre. ibid.

62. E Cartis Originalibus nonnullis in Bibliotheca Hattoniana. 160. b.

63. Collectanea ex Originalibus Cartis in Officio Armorum. ibid.

64. Ex Chartis Originalibus penes Dnm. Symonds D'Ewes Militem & Baronettum. 162. b.

65. Certificate (in old Engliſh) to encourage all that would give or ſend Gold or Siluer, Broche or Ryng, or ony othere gud to mowntens of (i. e. amounting to) a Peny by Zere, in helpyng of Mynſtre, fonded in Name & in Vyrſchype of oure Lady Seynte Mary the Vergyne, Gods Modyre, at Sothewelle, in Diocelis of Zorke. 164. b.

66. The Coppie of a Praer which her Majeſtie made her ſelfe, and ſayd it when ſhe was at the Sermon at St. Paules Croſſe 24 of November 1588. 165. b.

67. Index Virorum, i. e. An Alphabetical Table of thoſe Perſons Names, who are mentioned in this Book. At the end.

A thin Book in folio, written by the ſecond Randle Holme, and containing ſome part of his Hiſtoricall Collections, deſigned by him to be printed, and of which he himſelf gives the following Account, in his Dedicatory Epiſtle. "The Subject Matter treated off is a ſſucceſſion of the cheif Juſtices & their Aſſiſtants, Chamberleyns, high Sheriffs & Eſchetors of the County palatine of Cheſter ſince the Conqueſt as I haue collected out of good Authoritys of Records, manuſcripts, Evedences & other good notes I haue mett withall, in my employment of the Gentrey of Cheſhir conſerninge diuers pedegreys I haue made & abſtracted out of their ould deeds of graue Authority & Antiquity for other Authentique probations." But after all this, it ſeems to be no more than an heap of Materials towards an Hiſtory of the Juſtices of Cheſter, down to ann. 15 R Edw. A Book in folio, containing a great part of an Engliſh Concordance to the Bible, with an Account of the ſeveral Places mentioned therein. Written by a Perſon who mentioned Mr. Newman & Mr. Wickens; and who (notwithſtanding he ſeemed not to have a proſpect of living to publiſh theſe his Papers himſelf) hath nevertheleſs prefixed a long & pompous Title to the ſame; which I here omitt, becauſe of the tedioufneſs of it.

2050.

An Heraldical Book in folio, conſiſting of many Fragments and ſingle Papers, written by different Perſons (for the moſt part, during the Reigns of Queen Elizabeth & King Charles 1.) and now bound up together. It is, on the back, entituled "Pedegrees of ſeueral places;" but I rather chooſe to account for it in the manner following.

1. Coates & Creſts; i. e. an Alphabetical Table of the Names of Families, whoſe Armes or Creſts are to be found in this Book. At the begining.

2. Tranſcript of a Letter of Attorney, whereby Mrs. Jane Shelley (the Heireſs of Lengaine) late Wife of William Shelley Eſq; (who was attainted) did authoriſe Richard Whittington Gent. & Richard Wynter Clerk, to menage all her Affaires relating to her Rectorye & Perſonage ſonage of Taddington, & Mannours of Sutton alias Sutton-Frewne, & Weſton, in the County of Hereford. 310.

Then follows,

3. The Collection of Deſcents aforeſaid; the greateſt part of which relate to Cheſhire-Families, but put together in no manner of Order; and being, all along, intermixed with thoſe of Nobility & Gentry of other Counties. Among them, I obſerved ſome to be of the hand of Sir Henry St. George the elder, who was (in his time) Garter King of Armes; namely, at fol. 431. and in other places. Here are alſo ſome Church-Notes, and a few Extracts from old Deeds illuſtrating particular Deſcents: and others of them are continued lower, by the third Randle Holme & others.

Interſperſed among the ſaid Deſcents, I find,

4. Divers original Letters of Tenants, Servants, & Friends, to Mrs. Shelley above-mentioned (of which honorable Perſonage, much matter may be found in this Library) the principal of which, in my opinion, is that of her Cozen Hugh Walſhe, at fol. 432.

5. Some particular Matters relating to the Name & Familics of Botiler. 448.

6. An engraven Paper thus entituled, "An Exact Genealogical Line of the Family of the Talbots of Baſhall, drawne out of their owne Evidences, Records, & other Writings of vndoubted Veritie; compoſed by Mr. Roger Dodſworth in Anno 1653: and continued to A. D. 1657. 454. b.

7. An imperfect Account of our Nobility, as created by ſundry of our Kings, with their Armes in Blaſon: partly in the method of Cookes Baronage. 533. b.

8. An Alphabetical Table referring to the ſeveral Pedegrees contained in this Book. At the end.

A Book in folio, without any Title on the outſide, as moſt of Randle Holme's haue: but proves to be part of a Law-Common place-book, begun in the Reign of K. Henry VI. and enlarged afterward.

2052.

A Book in fol. written by the third Randle Holme, and may be entituled, "A Diſcourſe of the ſeuerall Religions practized by the people inhabiting this our County & Citty of Cheſter:" that is of the Religion of the Heathen Britans & Romans; the Practice of the Primitive Church Oriental & Occidental; of the Practice of the Church of England from the time of the Converſion of K. Ethelbert; the Inſtitution of the ſeveral Religious Orders who had any footing in England; the Foundation of the Cheſhire Monaſteries, &c. In this laborious Work, I believe honeſt Randal may have cited ſeveral Greek & Latin Authors at ſecond Hand; that is, without ſeeing them.

A Book in folio, conſiſting, for the moſt part, of blank Paper. That which is therein written, ſeems to have been done by the hand of ſome young Lawyer, who began to make a Collection of Precedents, for his own future Uſe. Thus he hath putt down ſome Tranſcripts or Abſtracts of Conveyances of Land, Bills of divers kinds, and other Inſtruments; which chiefly relating to Perſons and Places in Cheſhire; may, upon ſome occaſions, prove not unworthy of being conſulted.

An Heraldical Book in thin folio, on the back, by the third Randle Holme, entituled "Alphabet. Coats of ſeveral Countyes." But according to my manner, I ſhall be a little more particular, as finding therein,

1. The Names of the Countyes whoſe Coats of the Gentry are mentioned in this Book: putt down by the third Randle Holme. At the beginning.
2. Armes of the Gentry inhabiting the Biſhoprick of Durham; written by way of Alphabet in Blazon, by the ſaid Randle Holme. 1.

A thin Book in folio, on the out-ſide thus entituled by the ſecond Randle Holme, "How to finde the Records in the ſeveral Cuberts & Preſſes in the Treaſury in the City of Cheſter." Here lett not the Reader expect an exact or a fairly-written Repertory or Kalendar to the Cheſter-Records; but only ſuch looſe Notes & Scraps which the ſecond Randle Holme ſeems to have taken for his own Uſe only, when he digeſted the ſaid Records into ſome ſort of Order, A. D. 1652 & 1653, and placed the ſame into the Cup-boards & Preſſes then newly bought to receive them; after they had long layn in Confuſion, and much endamaged both by Rain & Ratts. This is obſcurely ſett down by himſelf, at fol. 1. b. together with the Orders to be obſerved by thoſe who ſhould come to peruſe the ſaid Records; tending to the preſervation of the ſame.

It is plain, that Mr. Holme as he went on in this Work, took Notes of the Names of City Officers, &c. and of the times when they ſerved, in order to compile Liſts of them; as may be ſeen at fol. 26. &c.

A Book in folio, conſiſting of many looſe papers and ſingle Tracts, written by particular Perſons, now bound up together; and, on the out-ſide, by the ſecond Randle Holme thus entituled, "The Maiors of Cheſter. This Title is not full to the purpoſe of what follows it; which is, a Narration touching the Diſſolution of the Monaſtery of St. Werburgh. & Foundation of the Cathedral Church of Chriſt, & of the Bleſſed Virgin Mary of Cheſter, by K. Henry VIII. in the premiſſes of whoſe Letters Patents, the word Ceſtrie (although afterward mentioned in the ſame) was unhappily omitted. It ſhews further, how Sir Richard Cotton Comptroller of the Kings Houſehold procured the Impriſonment of Dr Cliffe Dean of Cheſter, & of two of the Prebendaries, & by Threats obliged them, being no lawful Chapter, to grant him the Fee-Farme of the moſt part of their Poſſeſſions, at an annual Rent leſs than the Old Rent by £100 p ann. Alſo how Mr. Walker Dean Cliffe's Succeſſor proſecuted this foul matter, but died before Sentence given. Whereupon, the Cottons, perceiving their Fee-farme to be voyde in Lawe, to furniſh themſelve with Money, & to ſtrengthen their bad title with Frends, graunted the greateſt parte of the ſame to ſundry Gentlemen in Cheſhire for one or two yeares (in monney) in hande paide. Who, after ſeveral hearings, being likely to loſe their Cauſe, gave ſix yeares Rent of the ſaid Lands vnto Robert Dudley Earle of Leyceſter, & ſo got a Commiſſion out, that ſome of Q. Elizabeth's privie Counſayle might haue the hearing thereof, whereby the right courſe of Lawe was ſtopped: and then Petition was made to her Majeſtie for new Graunts of all the ſaid Lands.

In this Tract there are likewiſe Copies of divers remarkable Writings, as 1. Sergt. Popham's Opinion, to prove the Kings Patent of the Dotation, through the Omiſſion of the Word Ceſtrie, to be voyde. 2. The Judges Anſwer to the Earle of Leyceſter, who deſired their opinion in this matter: dat. 1 Decr. 1576. 3. A Deed of Purchaſe for Boſtock & Hitchcock from the Grayes, enrolled in the Chauncery, &c. 6. The Rental of all & ſingular the Mannors, Lands, & Tenements, &c. of the late Abbey of Cheſter, (except the Manour of Abbots-Cotton, Church-Lawton, & Weſton) ſurveyed by William Bolls Eſq; & John Wyſeman, menſe Junij anno 32 Hen. VIII. 7. The Commiſſion graunted to the Lords of her Majeſties privie Counſell, to hear the matter between the Dean & Chapter & the Fee-Fermors. 8. A Declaration of the Cauſe to the Commiſſioners, by the Deane & Chapter. 9. A Breife of the Cauſe declared by the Gentlemen to the Commiſſioners. 10. This is followed by divers Notes ſpecifying the Value of ſeveral other Rectories & Vicariges in Cheſhire.

38. A Noate of ſuch Lands, Tenements, Tythes, Rents, & other of the concealed Poſſeſſions of the late diſſolved Monaſterie of St Werburg, now in the poſſeſſion of the ſaid Deane & Chapter, and not conteyned in Hitchcocks Graunt. 122.

Theſe were taken either from the Originals, or from the Chartulary of Whalley, (all in the poſſeſſion of Sr Ralph Aſhton) by Mr. Roger Dodſworth, A.D. 1627. They begin with a Tract intituled De ſtatu de Blackbourneſhire, which ſheweth that ſoon after St Auguſtin of Canterbury came hither (into England) the Church of Whalley was built, and how the Rectors thereof were commonly called Deans, and were for the moſt part married men, leaving the ſaid Rectory to their Children or Relations, as in hereditary Succeſſion. Which cuſtom prevailed not only during the time of our Saxon Anceſtors, to the time of the Conqueſt, but long after, even to the time of the famous Council of Lateran (celebrated A.D. 1215, under Pope Innocent III.) by whoſe Canons, Cœlibacy was enjoyn'd to the Secular Clergy. (See further in this Catalogue Num. 2072–21.)

It may be further noted, that moſt of theſe Abſtracts have relation to the noble Family of Lacy (and from which Mr. Dodſworth made out their Deſcent, which may be ſeen at pag. 154.)

It ſeems to be part of a large Book or Volume, whereinto were entred the ſeveral Deeds or Conveyances of Houſes, as alſo the Wills made by the Citizens of Cheſter, which were inrolled in the Portmote Court there, and here copied in a ſort of Method; namely thoſe Meſuages or Tenements as were ſcituated in ſuch a Street, or in ſuch a Lane, are here putt by themſelves, under the Name of the ſaid Street or Lane, as a proper Title. Had this Work been preſerved intire, it would have been of much greater Value.

The Shortneſs of which Abſtracts ſeems to ſhew, that they were not taken to remain in that Houſe for ever, as Copies; but rather to ſerve the Abbats as Memorandums, on Occaſion.

9. Index Locorum; a like Table containing the Names of places, with proper References.

A Book in folio collected or written by ſeveral Perſons; namely by the ſecond Randle Holme & others; by one of whom it is entituled, on the out ſide "Inquiſitions from Hen. III. to Edw. IV." of which, nevertheleſs, I ſhall give the following Accompt:

1. Index Locorum: an Alphabetical Table, like that mentioned at the book above deſcribed. At the beginning.

Next after it comes,

2. Index Virorum. 8

I ſuppoſe theſe Tables not to be very exact; becauſe the third Randle Holme hath thus written with his black Lead-Pencil, 'Both Alphabets to be mended.'

3. Another Index Virorum: being perhaps Names omitted in the former. 17.

4. Then follow the Inquiſitions themſelves (that is, Abſtracts of them) collected from the Records in the Tower of London, the Treaſury at Weſtminſter, Cheſter-Caſtle, & the Exchequer in Cheſter, for the greateſt part by Mr. John Maſſy of Eggerley, ſometyme Clerke of the ſaid Exchequer.

The Collection ſeems to have been made wholly upon account of Perſons holding Lands in Cheſhire: but proceeds not regularly, ſome Leaves being tranſpoſed, and others added, at different times, by the ſecond Mr. Randle Holme.

5. His Alphabetical Table, directing to the ſeveral Abſtracts of Inquiſitions extant in this Book. 175.

6. An Index of Places, perhaps ſupplying the Defects in the firſt. 178.

A Book in folio, belonging to that laſt deſcribed, and on the out-ſide, by the third Randle Holme thus entituled, "Inquiſitions from the beginning of Richard III. to the end of Charles I." That is, Abſtracts of Inquiſitions relating to thoſe Perſons who held Lands within the County of Cheſter; collected as aforeſaid.

The Book ſeems to be written by the ſame Hands as the former, and conſiſts of theſe Tracts following:

1. The Names of all the Perſons whoſe Inquiſitions are mentioned within this Booke, collected by the ſaid Mr. Holme, A. D. 1664. At the beginning.

2. Index Virorum; as in the former book.

3. The abovementioned Abſtracts of Inquiſitions, beginning anno 1 R. Richardi III. 154.

A Book in folio, written by many different Hands and by the third Randle Holme, on the out-ſide thus entituled, "Laſt Wills and Teſtaments of ſeuerall Gentlemen in Cheſhire." It really conſiſts of divers Tracts & looſe Papers put together in the Order following:

1. An Alphabetical Table of thoſe Perſons Names whoſe Wills are either copied or abbreviated in this Book. At the beginning. Then follow,

2. Nomina Virorum: or an Alphabetical Table of Perſons Surnames. Then ſucceed,

3. The Wills abovementioned, put together promiſcuouſly, and without any order of Time or Alphabet. 1. A.

Among them, I find,

4. The Names of the Jurors (i. e. Lords aſſiſting in the Court) vpon the Araynment of Marvyn Tuchet Earle of Caſtell-haven, at Weſtminſter, 2 May A. D. 1631. 6. A.

A Book in folio written by ſeveral Hands, and by the third Randle Holme, on the out-ſide thus entituled, "Fines from the beginning of Edward I. to the end of Henry VIII." But I find in it,

2. Copies of ſome few Fines relating to Cheſhire Lands, of the time of K. Henry the third. 1.

A Book in folio, as the former, written by ſeveral Hands; and by the third Randle Holmes, thus entituled, "Deeds & other Charters of the Foundation & Donations to the Abby & Biſhoprick of Cheſter." But it is much defaced, ſlubbered, worne, & many Leaves torne out: which makes it very imperfect. But what poſſibly I could gather, I have (as neere as I can) tranſcribed for future poſterity, November 1649.

By Court-Roules above, I ſuppoſe Mr. Holme meant Plea-Rolls. This tract ſeems to be imperfect. 15. Ex-2080.

A Book in folio consisting of divers Tracts put together by the third Randle Holme, who hath also given it this Title, "Seuerall Testimonies of the Custome of Chester, concerninge the takeinge-downe of Glasse and Wainscote:" which Custome I find described in the words following; vizt. "That when, and as often as any Tenaunte haueinge an Estate for Terme of Life or Liues, or of Yeares of any Dwellinge-house or Buildinge within the said City for his owne convenient Use within the said House or Buildinge, should & did erect & sett up upon any Glasse, Wainscote, Inner Doors, Shelues, Formes, Dressers, & other such like like Neceſſaries: in ſuch caſe the Tenante, his Executors, or Aſſignes, might remoue & take away the ſame, or Sell & Diſpoſe thereof, at his or their Wills & Pleaſures, without Diſturbance of him that claymes the Reverſion of the ſaid Houſe or building." Which Cuſtom, and the Littigations occaſioned thereby have given birth, as I conceive, to many more Tracts than theſe that follow.

1. Interrogatories adminiſtred to Witneſſes produced to be examined vpon the parte & behalfe of Ellenor Alcocke Widowe. Executrix of Thomas Alcocke her Huſband deceaſed, Complainante; againſt Charles Leweſley & Anne Saluſbury Widowe, Defendantes. Looſe at the beginninge.

2. Depoſitions of Lettiſe Alcock Widowe in that Cauſe. Looſe alſo.

D. 1633. vppon the parte and behalfe of Thomas Gamull Gent. & William Fletcher Defendants, againſt Ellianor Brereton Widowe Complainant; before Edward Gregge Gent. Examiner of the ſame Court. 556.

5. Interrogatories to be adminiſtred to Witneſſes produced on the Parte and behalfe of Ellen Brereton Wydowe, Executrix of John Brereton Alderman deceaſed, Complainant; againſt Thomas Gamull Gent. & William Fletcher, Defendants. 572.

A Book in folio, conſiſting of many ſingle Tracts bound up together by the third Randle Holme, who on the back hath written this Title, "Dee-Millnes; Sutes about them." But I find therein,

1. The ſaid Mr. Holme's Liſt of the things of moſt Note in this Book. Looſe, at the beginning.

2. Atteſted Copie of Mr. Francis Gamull's Bill exhibited to the Chamberlayne of Cheſter in the Exchequer there, againſt Edward Ruſſell, & others, who had either ſett upp Wind-Mills, Water-Mills, or Horſe-Mills of their own, in or near to the City of Cheſter; or, at leaſt, carried their Corn to be ground at the ſaid Mills; in prejudice, as he aſſerts, to the Mills long before erected near Cheſter-Bridge, upon the River Dee (whereof he was then Tenant) being commonly known & called by the Name of Dee-Mylnes, and which had, time out of mind, the Right of Multure & Suit from all the Inhabitants of Cheſter, excepting only the Tenants to the Dean & Chapter, inhabiting without the North-gate. This happened about A. D. 1637. 1. vid. 158.

3. An Order of Star-Chamber (with the Seal affixed) dated, the 6 of May 1635. upon the Differences ariſen betweeen John Tyrer who had erected Water-works about 30 Years before, at Dee-Mills belonging to Mr. Francis Gamull, to the great Commodity of the Inhabitants of Cheſter; but to the prejudice of Mr. Gamull, as was aſſerted. Hereby, the Lords took care of the public Commodity of the People; and left both Parties to try out their private Matters of Complaint, in the Exchequer Court of Cheſter, according as they ſhould ſee Cauſe. 36.

4. Interrogatories to be miniſtred to Witneſſes produced to be examined on the Behalfe of Edward Whitby Eſq; Recorder of the Cittie of Cheſter, and Francis Gamull Eſquyer & Alderman of the ſaid Cittie; againſt Phillip Manwaringe Eſquyer, Robert Harvie & Thomas Alderſey Alderman, and others. 38.

It ſeems that Mr. Gamull's Grandfather, or Father, had permitted John Tyrer to erect Water-Works in and nere their Mills principally to preſerue the Right of Griſt & Multure to the ſaid Milnes; and accordingly, the ſaid Tyrer did agree that all ſuch as ſhould haue Water from the ſaid Workes, ſhould be obliged to grind their Malte & Corn at the ſaid Milnes; & that ſuch as refuſed, ſhould be debarred from haueiug of that Water, and their Pipes (if laid in) to be cutt off; which Agreement had been obſerved, and Mr. Gamull's Rent paid. That, in proceſſe of time, old Tyrer being dead, Mr. Gamull entred into Treaty with John Tyrer the Son, for buying his Intereſt in the ſaid Water-works; but before this was brought to a concluſion, Sir Randle Mainwaring late Alderman of Cheſter & the others, in Mr. Gamull's Abſence, and without his privity, purchaſed the ſame out of his hands. That Sir Randle and his Partners acknowledging the Place whereon the ſaid Workes were erected, & the Streame ſervinge the ſame, to be Mr. Gamull's Inheritance, Mr. Gamull was to make them a Leaſe thereof, at Ten Pounds ℔ annum Rent, and they to performe all ſuch Things & Covenants as the Tyrers had done. That after this, ſome of the ſaid Partners vttered & gaue-out Speeches againſt Mr. Gamull's Right of Griſt and Multure, and ſaid that it was a Slauery and Böundage that Men ſhould be bounde to grinde at any Mills; and that they would free & diſcharge the Citizens & Inhabitants of Cheſter from the ſame,

5. Original Letter of Mr. Francis Gamull, to Sir Richard Groſvenor Knight & Baronet, his Father-in-La dated from Weſtminſter, 25 May 1641. upon the publick Occurences of that Time; as alſo his own private Affairs. 91.

6. Breviatts in the Sutes between Mr. Edmund Gamull & John Hankey, touching Dee-Millnes. 93.

7. An Original Inſtrument whereby Mr. Alderman Gamull abovementioned, did ſurrender to Thomas Gamull his Sonne & Heire apparant, all his Eſtate & Intereſt in & to Dee-Milnes, & all Fiſhings upon the Water of Dee, & in a certaine Poole called the Cage, with all the Water-courſes, Flud-gates, Cawſies, Tolles, Multures, Proffits, &c. to them belonging. Given, 20 Marche, anno 44 R. Elizabethæ. 96. b.

This Inſtrument is cancelled.

8. Rough Draught of the Caſe touching the antient Cuſtome of Multure at Dee-Milles. 98. b.

Then follow ſome tranſpoſed Papers, wherein are contained,

9. A ſummary Recital of a Proceſs between Raph & Thomas Goodman, Tenants of Dee-Milles, Plaintiffes; & Margaret Bavand, & others, Defendants: for the withdrawinge Mulcture from Dee-Milnes, and carrying Corne to other Milnes. In this Suit, when honeſt Margaret happen'd to be caſt, & ſhe warned by the Court to forbear ſuch her unlawful Practices for the future: the meek-ſpirited Woman thinking no harm in being as active in the Grinding-Trade as ſhe could, unluckily fell into a Contempt of the Court; who (upon further Complaint) did on the 24th of March, anno 13 R. Elizabethæ, iſſue out an Attachment againſt poor Margery; Ordering, that att her Appearance ſhe ſhould be committed to Warde in the Caſtle of Cheſter, there to be puniſhed for the Contempt aforeſaid; and there to remaine, untill ſhe ſhould enter into Boünd, with ſufficient Süerties, to performe the Order of the Court before made againſt her; & further, to content & pay to the Plaintiffes 35 Shillings, for their Coſts & Charges in this Suite ſuſteined. fol. 109. (and ſo to be read toward the beginning of the Book.)

Then follow,

10. Some other Papers, written pro & con, relating to the Suit between Mr. Francis Gamull, & Edward Ruſſel & others Defend^{ts}: that one Dickinſon & one Denſon were in a fair way to be hampered, as ſtanding in Contempt, for Breach of ſeuerall Orders of the Court; and for fraudulent Practize to defeate the ſaid Orders. &c. Tranſpoſed. 111.

Num. 2081.

11. The ſeveral Anſweare of Jane Davenporte Widdowe, one of the Defendants, for her parte; to the Information of Sir Walter Pye Knight, his Majeſties Attorney of his Highnes Courte of Wards & Liveryes, Complainant. dated the 5th of November 1623. 120.

Here Mrs. Davenporte repreſenteth that the ſayd Information was contrived & exhibited againſt her, by the onely meanes of Edward Whitbye Eſq; (who had maried Alice the Widow of Thomas Gamull Eſq; which Alice had purchaſed the Wardſhip of her Son Francis, then an Infant) who vppon ſome cauſeleſſe Diſpleaſure by him conceived againſt her, of purpoſe to vex & trouble her, and to put her to unneceſſary Charges, without any juſt Cauſe at all. Which ſhe the rather thinketh, becauſe there are manye others named Defendants in the ſayd Information with her, yet none of them are ſerved with Proceſſe to anſweare the ſame, but only herſelf; who by Reaſon of the weake (or poor) State ſhe was left in by her Huſband, is leaſt able to defend Suite. She owns that her ſaid Huſband, for his better Advantage, did erect one Horſe-Milne for Malte upon his own Lande in Boughton within the Libertye of the Cittye of Cheſter, which he quietly held during the reſt of his Life; & did receiue the Mulcture & Tolle thereof, & cauſed Malte to be carried & recarryed into & out of the Cittie of Cheſter, as often as Occaſion required, without any Diſturbance. She further diſputes againſt the aſſertion of an Antient Cuſtome of grinding ſolely at Dee-Milles; pleading that all the other or Countrey-Milles were free for any Man; & had been ſo, time out of Memory.

12. The Examination of Jane Davenporte, Widowe, taken 22 of September 1623, by Vertue of the Kings Majeſties Writte of Commiſſion out of the Prince his Highnes Courte of Wardes & Liveryes to them (the Commiſſioners) directed, vpon the Behalfe of Francis Gamull his Majeſties Warde. 141.

Here the Widow can remember, with much ado, ſeveral Matters which ſeem to make againſt her; but in the main, keeps her Ground & her Right to the Mill, with firmneſs enough.

13. Compendium Inquiſitionis cujuſdam, ubi Juratores dicunt, quod Georgius Cotton fuit ſeiſitus in¶ Dominico ſuo ut de Feodo, de et in Grangia vocata Stanlowgrange in Com. Ceſtr. Et de & in quibuſdam Molendinis acquaticis granaticis vocatis Dee-Mills, et quadam ſeparali Piſcaria in aqua de Dee, vocata le Kings Poole, et in le Cage ibidem. Et quod predictus Georgius Cotton et quidam Robertus Bonham, 20 die Februarii anno 13 R. Elizabethe, vendiderunt Johanni Poole Armigero eandem Grangiam: reddendo inde annuatim prefato Georgio Cotton 13 Libras, 6 Solidos, et 8 Denarios. 10. The State of the Cauſe concerning the Millnes & Cawſey at Cheſter. 20.

Here it is ſhewed that Dee-Millnes & Cawſey were ſett up by Hugh Lupe, many hnndred yeares before ever any Statute of Sewers was made; and never ſince called in queſtion. That ſome Gentlemen of the partes of Wales having Milles within 4 or 5 Miles of Cheſter, & Grounds vpon the River-ſide, doe now (after 600 yeares) erneſtly labour to deſtroy the ſame. To this purpoſe they procured a Commiſſion of Sewers to themſelves & others, which (vpon pretence of ſome Annoyances ſuppoſed to be occaſioned by the ſaid Milles and Cawſey) they doe ſo vyolently proſecute, as to impannell Juries, & receaue Verdicts in forrayne Counties; that in the Cittie, which is the propper Countie (where the pretended Nuſance is) being againſt them. That the ſaid Commiſſion did not extend vnto the ſaid Milles & Cawſey. That at the laſt ſitting of the ſaid Commiſſioners, being the 17th of December, they did forbeare to make any Order; and abſolutely adjourned the Courte vntill the Saturdaie in Eaſter weeke: notwithſtanding which, ſome of the ſaid Commiſſioners of Wales, fearing a Superſedeas, verie lately, in private, mett together againe, and contrary to the expreſſe Direction of the Lord Treaſorer of England, and their owne Agreement, they made an abſolute Decree for the Deſtruction of the ſaid Cawſey & Millnes, and publiſhed the ſame. Whereby the Welſh People are ſo encouraged, as to threaten to come very ſpeedilye to Cheſter, with great Multitudes, to put the ſaid Decree in Execution. So that the Memorye of that antient Enmitye & Hoſtilitye which was ſometymes betwixt the Engliſh & the Welſh is revived, and the myndes of the peaceablie-affected, much diſquieted. 20.

Edward 1. except they have bin enhaunſed & exalted aboue their former height, and thereby made more prejudiciall and hurtfull then formerly they were. In which Caſe they are not to be pulled downe from the topp to the Bottome (as the ſaid Decree, now queſtioned, doth appoint) but to bee reformed; by taking away & abating the Exceſſe & Inhaunſment onely. 32.

And that for the obſervation of the ſaid Charter, and all their other Liberties, they had taken their Corporall Oathes. They therefore deſire leave to elect a man capable of the Office by their Charter, there being divers of the Aldermen who had done good Service to their Incorporation, and were euerie waie fitt for the Place, both for their learninge in the Lawes; their knowledge & experience of their Orders & Liberties; & their ſinceritie in true Religion. 136.

A Book in folio, conſiſting of many Tracts & ſingle Papers bound up together; and by the third Randle Holme, on the out-ſide thus entituled, "The Sutes with ſeuerall Cittyzens concerneinge their grinding of Corne at Dee-Mills, and no where elſe:" in the Deſcription of which, I ſhall proceed in the uſual manner; viz[t] I find therein,

1. Mr. Holme's Account of the Things of moſt Note in this Book. At the beginning, looſe.

2. Interrogatories to be miniſtred to Thomas Denſon, one of the Deffendants, at the Suite of Frauncis Gamull Eſq; complainant, vpon Contempt & Breach of Order. 390.

It ſeems that the Court made an Order that this Denſon & the other Defendants ſhould grind their Corn at Dee-Milnes, untill the Time that that Cauſe ſhould be fully heard and determined; but Denſon was again proſecuted by Mr. Gamull, as combining with the others to overthrow that Order, and as grinding his own Corne, in the mean time at Boughton.

3. Th'Examination of Thomas Denſon one of the Defendants, at the Suite of Francis Gamull Eſq; Complainant, taken upon his Corporall Oath, in the Courte of Exchequer at Cheſter, the 14th of June 1637. vpon Contempte and Breach of an Order. 417.

Here honeſt Mr. Denſon reapes great Advantage by a ſudden Loſs of his Memory, a ſudden Miſapprehenſion of Things & ſtupid Ignorance, join'd to a wretched Neglect in all his Servants & Friends. For, he really thought that the firſt Order (made long before) had obliged him to grind at Dee-Milnes, only 'till he ſhould have putt in his Anſwer: So he anſwered forthwith; and then ground his Corne at Boughton, as thinking himſelf fully diſcharged of the Order. That as to the next Order, no body (neither at home or abroad) had ever appriſed him of it, till within a very few days laſt paſt. Yet he had happened, in this mean time, to buy great Quantities of Malt of Mr. Edwards the Milner of Boughton, and then of his Wife; and afterwards had bought Malt of others being ready ground: and this, not to evade any Order of the Court in the leaſt: but only becauſe he conceived himſelf better uſed, by theſe People than by Mr. Gamul. As for raiſing any joint Sum, toward the overthrowing the ſaid Orders; he knows nothing of it: only, upon meeting with Richard Dickinſon accidentally, he did not conſent to give Mr. Edwards aboveſaid 20 Shillings (the other Defendants doing the like) towards his Charges to London, to endeavour that the Defendants mighte be at Libertie to grind their Corne where they pleaſed. Nor did he pay that 20 Shillings himſelf, for his Brother paid it. Finally he knows of no Combination among the Defendants, to ſtand out againſt the Order of the Court; only he is reſolved (and ſoe ſome other of the Defendants haue ſayd they are reſolved) to ſtand out againſt the Complaynant in this Suite; and to free themſelcus (if they can) from beinge tyed & bounden to grinde at the Complainants Millnes: conceivinge the ſame (if they ſhould be bounde thereunto) will be much to theire Damage.

Num. 2083.

4. The further joynt & ſeuerall Anſweres of Andrewe Mynſhull, Rychard Dickenſon, & Thomas Denſon, Three of the Defendants to the Bill of Complaint of Francis Gamull Eſq; Complainant; made unto ſeuerall Exceptions exhibited againſt Three former Anſwers on the ſaid Plaintiffes behalfe. 450.

Here they alledge, that by Edward the vith's graunting the Fee-Simple of Dee-Milnes (to Sir Richard Cotton & Dame Joan his Wife) without reſervinge any Fee-farme-Rent to the Crowne; diverſe Privileges & Rights incident to the ſaid Milnes, became to be extincte, determined, & ended; and ought not to be claymed by any Perſon or Perſons, by, from, or under them, or in their Rights. And therefore, they deny that Mr. Gamull ever was, or could be a Ward to K. James or to K. Charles, by reaſon of the ſaid Milnes. They acknowledge likewiſe, that they being Citizens of Cheſter, have, for many years, uſed to grind their Corne (except Oats) both out of & in the City, at their Pleaſure. But the Quantities of Corne by them ſo ground at other Milnes, they cannot ſpecifie, becauſe they kept no Account thereof.

5. The ſeuerall Anſwere of Thomas Weauer, (one of the Defendants) for his parte, to the Bill of Complaint of Francis Gamull Eſq; Complainant. 459.

Here honeſt Thomas denies (at once) that he euer knewe, heard, or believed, that there euer was, is, or ought to be any ſuch great Socke, Sute, or Service to Dee-Mylnes, as by the Bill is pretended; or that He, or any of the Inhabitants of Cheſter (except the Abbots Tenaunts) ought to haue uſed, tyme out of mynd of Man, to grinde all theire Corne there. For he ſayth (and ſoe hopeth yt wil be proved in the event of this Suite) that there neuer was, is, or ought to be any ſuch Cuſtome for Grinding, or payment of Tolle, Cuſtomes, & Duties, at Dee-Mylnes, as in the Bill is vntruly pretended: for all, or moſt part of the Inhabitants of Cheſter & the Liberties thereof, haue ever uſed & bine accuſtomed to grind their Corne, Mault, & Grayne where they pleaſſed, without Interruption, or Clayme, or Challenge of any ſuch pretended Cuſtome. For this Defendant ſaith, that for Three Yeares laſt paſt, he hath ground at another Milne, without any manner of Interruption or Gainſaying of the Complaynant, vntill nowe of late. But formerly, indeed, He, in curteſie, and for his beſt Conveniencye, and vpon Threats to take away the Water from him, he did grind at Dee-Mylnes, where he receaved greate Wronge & Prejudice; and had his Maulte caſt, with Shouells, awaye before his owne Face; and was otherwyſe abuſed by the Complaynants Mylners & Servants. As touching what Quantyties of Corne he hath ground awaye from Dee-Mylnes, he is not able to give any dyrecte Anſwere therevnto. And therefore prayeth to be diſmiſſed with good Coſtes, for his wrongful Vexation in this behalfe moſt vnjuſtly ſuſtayned.

Num. 2083.

6. The ſeuerall Anſwere of Elizabeth Pemberton Wyddowe, one of the Defendants, for her parte, to the Bill of Complaint of Francis Gamull Eſq; 466.

Herein is little new Matter. She denies the Cuſtome; & ſaith that aboute 40 Yeares before ſhe was Servant to John Powell an Alehouſe-keeper in Cheſter, who ground much Mault, & ſent it all to the Milnes in and about Boughton; and ſo did all the then Neighbours. That, formerly, ſhe was Tennant to the Complainant & his Predeceſſors; yet ſhe did not then grind all, or the greateſt parte of her Malte at Dee-Milnes. And ſo for ſixe Yeares & vpwards, ſhe hath ground moſt or all her Malt at other Mylnes. And that many of her Neighbours, Cittizens of Cheſter, who have ſold Ale & Beare, & vſed to grind much Malt for 20, 30, or 40 Yeares laſt paſt, have not ſent any of their Malte to the Complainants Milnes to be ground.

7. The further joynt and ſeuerall Anſweres of Elizabeth Pemberton, Henry Hazelwall, & Katherine Kinge. Three of the Defendants to the Bill of Complaint of Francis Gamull Eſq; Complaynant; made vnto ſeuerall Exceptions againſt theire former Anſweres on the ſaid Plaintiffes behalfe. 471.

This is to the ſame purpoſe, and almoſt in the ſame Words with that at N°. 4.

8. Original Letter of Thomas Corbin to Mrs. Alice Gamull, dated 18 July 1614, wherein he advertiſes her of his Maſters and his own Diligence in ſerving her, by getting a Letter & an Order from the Court of Wards againſt thoſe who withdrew their Multure from Dee-Milnes. 480.

9. Examinations taken in the Queenes Exchequer, in her Caſtell of Cheſter, on the behalfe of the Plaintiffe, the 21 of September 1570. 482.

This Plaintiffe was William Goodman then Fermor of Dee-Milnes, who ſued Margaret Bavand Widow, for grinding the Corne of the Inhabitants of Cheſter at her Water-Milne called the Bach-Milne, and at her Wind-Milne without the North Gate of Cheſter. This Copie was made & examined A.D. 1637.

Eliz.) for her ceaſing to grind the Cornes belonging to the Inhabitants of Cheſter, at either of her two Mills abovementioned; did in manifeſt Contempt of the ſaid Order, continue daily & openly the ſaid wrongful Practiſe; and by ſuch withdrawing the Multure from Dee-Milnes, took away great part of his living. 503.

And further, they were likewiſe obliged to do to Mr. Edward Dutton ſuch Services, as were due unto him by reaſon of the Houſes they held of him. 550. et 554.

33. The Examination of Richard Dickinson, taken vpon his Corporall Oathe, in the Courte of Exchequer at Chester, the 7th of June, 1637. upon the said Interrogatories. 579.

Here Dickinson owns, that hee, Thomas Denson, Andrewe Minshall, & Raphe Drinkwater (three others of the Defendants) did find themselues much agreeved that they should be tyed to grind at the Complaynants Milnes; conceyvinge the same to be much to theyre Damage. And they meetinge with John Edwards of Boughton Gent. (the owner of Boughton-milles) did intreat him to be their Solliciter, to helpe them that they might be at Libertye to grinde where they pleased. And he was contented to take paynes for them therein; and they then payd him 20 Shillinges a-peece for or towards bearinge his Charges. And he did indeed then say & resolve that hee would lye in Prison before hee would grinde at the Complaynants Milnes; and soe did some other of the Defendants say. But none of them said that hee or they would not obey the Order of this Courte, or vsed any words against this Courte. It seems this man was very stubborn; he sent his Corne to be ground at Boughton, after the order of the Court to the contrary, and was therefore attached & cast into Prison. This Examination is imperfect at the end.

As to the Multure of Dee-milnes, Mr. Gamul his Agreement with John Tyrer, to oblige his Customers to grind their Corne at the said Milnes; and the augmentation of Tirer's old Rent now insisted on by Mr. Gamul: being the private points in Question: their Lordships left them to be decided according to Justice, in the Exchequer Court at Chester. 597.

18. Draught of a Letter ſeeming to be of Mr. Alderſey's Hand, but as in the name of the Commiſſioners of Sewers; to the Lord Keeper Elleſmere; propoſing that an Hearing might be had before the Judges; in behalf of Dee-Milles, & the Cawſey. 190.

22. Copie of a Letter from the Lord Chancellor Elleſmere, to the Biſhops of Sr. Aſaph & Cheſter, Sr. Peter Warburton, & others the Commiſſioners of Sewers, appriſing them how earneſtly he had been moved by Mr. Recorder Gamull to award a Superſedeas to their Commiſſion, & what potent Sollicitations had been made in behalf of Dee Milles & the Cawſey, &c. He tells them, that in this ſo weighty a Matter they ſhould regard only & wholly the publique good. That they were to reforme all Obſtructions & Noyances in the River of Dee within the lymitts expreſſed in the Commiſſion, not ayming or pointing only or ſpecially at any particular perſon, or at any particular Place or Matter. And therefore it ought to be indifferently & equally executed, for the publique & generall good of the Countreys adjacent to the ſame River; & not to be ſtrictly or ſtreynablie extended to theis Milles & Cawſey only, or ſpecially & above all other Noyanſes in that River: nor to be remiſslye or coldlye or partially handled for any private Favour or Reſpecte of Mr. Gamull, or of any other. In a Poſtcript he adds, that This Service is of greate Importance, and therefore ought to be attended; and they ſhould ſee that Juſtice be equallye and indifferentlye done, for the generall Good: and not to abſent or withdrawe themſelves, nor to deale careleſsly or negligently, as he is informed that ſome of them have done. dated 29 November 1607. 197. A.

23. Copie of a Letter from the ſaid Commiſſioners of Sewers, to the Lords of the Privy Council; dated 4 January 1607. acquainting their Lordſhips that they had by their Decree, order'd half the New Key, and Ten Yards of the Cawſey to be pulled down, and taken away. 198.

24. Copie of a Letter from the Maior & Citizens of Cheſter, to Robert Cecil Earl of Saliſbury & Lord High Treaſurer, in the behalf of the Cawſey and Dee-Mills. dated, 31 October, 1607. 200. 373.

25. Copie of a Letter from ſuch of the Commiſſioners of Sewers, as were for the Preſervation of Dee-Milnes & Cawſey, to the Lord Chancellor Elleſmere: dated . . . January 1607. 202. 355.

Herein, with the Reaſons of their Opinion, they obſerve, that notwithſtanding their Commiſſion was in general for the Reformation of all Obſtructions in the River of Dee: yet there are dyvers other Cawſeys & Impediments, not found or mentioned at all, in any of the late Verdicts; ſome of which were verie lately erected, and are only proffitable to the particular Owners thereof.

26. Copie of a Letter from Hugh Glaſeour Maior, & the Aldermen of Cheſter; to the Lords of the Privy Councill: dated, 29 December 1602. advertiſing, that a Breach, above 20 yards broad, & 18 foot deep, had been made in the middle of the Cawſey, the laſt yeare, by the Violence of the Waters: whereby the going of Dee-Milnes was ſtopped, and all whoſe living depended on them, in a fair way to be ruined. And that Mr. Edmund Gamull Fermor of the Corne-Milles there, had, out of his own purſe, expended above £500. in repairing the ſaid Cawſey; but that it would require above £100 more to finiſh the ſame. 204.

27. Copie of a Letter from Thomas Sackvile Earl of Dorſet Lord Treaſurer, to the Commiſſioners of Sewers; requiring them to forbeare to intermeddle with Dee-Milles, or the Cawſey; not doubting but that much good maie be done to the River by other meanes, yf with Diligence & Indifferencie they be carefull to execute the Auᵭhoritie committed vnto them. 206.

28. Draught of a Letter from the Commiſſioners of Sewers (above-mentioned at No. 25) to the ſaid Lord Treaſurer, upon the ſubject of Dee-Milnes & Cawſey. But adding, that the greate Neceſſity of theiſe Mills is made more manifeſt & apparant to all that dwell in theiſe partes; there being no other Mills within Ten or Twelve Myles of Cheſter, that could grynde in this late Froſt at all in effect, by the Space of a whole Moneth together, for want of ſufficient Water. 208.

29. Draught of a Letter from Dr. George Lloyd Biſhop of Cheſter, & Firſt or Second of the Commiſſioners of Sewers, to Robert Cecil Earl of Saliſbury & Principal Secretary of State; upon the old ſubject of Dee-Mills & the Cawſey, which (he owns) ſome Gentlemen of his Country of Wales (devided from him in Opinion) doe earneſtly labour to deſtroy. And now his Lordſhip being daily more & more confirmed in his former Opinion, as well by his owne further Obſervation, & Travells in this Service, for his better Satisfaction; as by the late greate Froſt & other Accidents, whereby the Neceſſity of the ſaid Milles is made more apparant vnto all, & that the Loſſe thereof would not onely tend to the Diſheriſon of his Majeſty in the ancient Rights & Royalties of the Earldome of Cheſter, & of the Deane & Chapter there, & of divers poore Companyes, & particular Perſons; without any certayne aſſurance of any Good to enſue: but alſo to the Impoveriſhment of the whole City & Country adjoyning, which are the better ſupported, by meanes of theis Mills & Cawſy, with Bread, Cloth, Fiſh, Freſh Water, & other neceſſaries. 209.

30. Draught of a Letter from one employed for the Citty, to the ſame Earle of Saliſbury; importing, that now (after the Cauſe had been referred by the Lords of the Privy Council to the Three Lords Chiefe Juſtices, whereunto all parties then aſſented; & the Order was penned & ſigned: exception is taken by the Gentlemen on the other Side, to the Lord Cooke, as not indifferent in the Cauſe, for that he (the Writer) hath ſome Dependency upon him. Which Exception, as it is very ſtrange againſt One of his Place; ſo, it is moſt untrue. 210.

Num. 2084.

31. Original Letter of Mr. Edmund Gamull to his Sonne Thomas Gamull Recorder of Cheſter: ſhewing that his Adverſary, Sir Richard Trevour is proſecuting a Suit de Idëota probandâ againſt Mr. Puleſton's Frend; and to that purpoſe, the Feodary of Cheſhire & other Commiſſioners have taken an Office, wherein great Diſorder hath arryſen among theym. That the Courſe the Welſh Gentlemen intend to take, to abate the Mylnes to a lower Streame, to th'end the Cauſey may be ſo muche drawen the lower; which platt will do no good at all to any, except the whole were pulled downe. For nowe ther is one Walk-Mylne, and two Corne-Mylnes cannot go, for want of Water. But this Deviſe was deviſed by Mr. Juſtice Warburton & others his Neighbours of Cheſhire. 211.

32. Part of a Draught of a Letter from the King to the Judges, before whom the Cauſe of Dee-Mills & the Cawſey was to be heard: which he commendeth to their Care & Conſideration. 212. et 315. 323.

Importing, that he being named one of the Commiſſioners of Sewers in thoſe Parts; did reſolve to obſerve with all Diligence & Indifference, ſuch thinges as he ſhold perceyve moſt materiall to be conſidered in the Service. And therefore made ſome Journies along the Water-ſide downe into Wirhall & elſewhere for his better Satisfaction: and having reduced his Obſervations into ſome Order, in forme of a true Relation, he ſends them to his Lordſhip, by John Tyrer his Lordſhips Servant, one of much deſert in Cheſter, for his induſtrious endeavours. And repreſenting, that as the Matters fallen into Debate are of verey greate Importance: ſo, they are caryed on, on both parts with ſuch Fervour, as that he could wiſh, for the Good and Peace of both, that by his Lordſhips honourable Care & Wiſdome, a good & peaceable Ende may be put to theis Begynnings; and thoſe Humours allayed, which were vntymelie moved.

34. Original Letter of Mr. Thomas Crue of the Hole, to Mr. Recorder Gamull; informing him that, it had been proved before the Jurye, by credible Wytneſſes ſworne, that the ſame Night the Cauſey did breake, the Watter dyd falle 4 Foote. And another did wytnes, that wheras his Beaſtes dyd vſually drinke at Dee, beinge on the Land; the day after the Breache, the Ryver was gone ſoe ſmalle that he was dryven with Faggots to make waye for them to go to the Ryver. And that whereas the Bottes at Eaton-Boate flotting, over night, vpon the Ryver, the morning after the great Breache, they were one Land, and the Ryver did falle at Eaton-Boate, a Yarde and halffe. He therefore deſires (his own Land alſo lying on the ſame ſide, & next to the Dee, & liable to Inundations) to be excuſed from giving Evidence on Mr. Gamuls ſide, as he had promiſed; for if he ſhould be obliged to appear, he ſhould be conſtrayned to declare what he had above wrytten; whiche wold be a ſorre Evidence againſt Mr. Gamull, which he wold be lothe to doe. And that he himſelf is hatted of all the Towne like an Owle ys of Birds, becauſe he holds with Mr. Gamull. 216.

35. Copie of a Letter from the Cittie of Cheſter to the Lord Chancellor Elleſmere, dated 31 October 1607. Setting forth, that certaine Gentlemen of Wales, intending to improve the Proffitts of their owne Milles, had lately, upon a Petition, preferred in their own Names, as alſo in that of the Citty, but without the Cities privity, procured a Commiſſion of Sewers to themſelues and dyvers others; have entred into the execution thereof, and earneſtly endeavoured the Deſtruction of the Dee-Milles & Cawſey; pretending them to be the Cauſe of many great Annoyances, though farre remote & diſtant from them. Alſo that Sir Richard Trevor, one of the ſaid Commiſſioners, contrary to the mindes of diuers others preceding him in Commiſſion, hath taken vpon him to keepe the ſaid Commiſſion; whereby, he and his Aſſociats are enabled to meete together, and to make Lawes and Orders at their pleaſures, for the Deſtruction of the ſaid Milles & Cawſey. They therefore give Reaſons to induce his Lordſhip to give Direction for a Superſedeas to be graunted, to diſcharge the ſaid Commiſſion or elſe to exclude all ſuch from intermedling therein as Judges, which haue any Grounds vpon the River-ſide, or are otherwiſe interreſſed in the Cauſe, on either parte. 218.

Num. 2084.

36. Opinions of ſeveral very eminent Lawyers, that the abovementioned Commiſſioners of Sewers, had not power to pull down, or proſtrate the Cawſey; for the Reaſons they give. 219. 321. 352.

If ſix Commiſſioners of Sewers make Orders for the pulling downe of any Weare; and afterwards ſix other of the Commiſſioners doe order that the ſame ſhall be mainteyned: Are the firſte Lawes repealed by the ſecond? or what maie the Owner doe, yf any Attempt be made to pull it downe? 227. et 290. 338.

1. An Alphabetical Table to the Pedegrees conteyned in this Booke. At the beginning.

2. The third Randle Holme's Table, pointing to the ſeveral Coats of Armes tricked in this Book. 1.

4. The Viſitation of the Countie of Lancaſtre made by William Flower Eſquire, alias Norroy King of Armes, anno Domini 1567. 7.

This is all neatly written and tricked by the elaborate Hand of Robert Glover Somerſet-Herald: who alſo aſſiſted his Father in Law Norroy, at the ſaid Viſitation; as may appear by a little Note in fol. 12. b. And this fine Copie is alſo the better for certain Additions and Continuations inſerted by other Hands.

5. A Table of all the Names & Sur-names contained in the Matches of the ſeuerall Pedegrees within this Booke. At the end.

A Book in folio, on the back entituled "Inquiſitions, &c." wherein I find,

1. An Account of the Five ſorts of Inquiſitions iſſuable, after the Death of the Kings Tenants: being in the Hand of Robert Glover Somerſet-Herald. At the beginning.

2. Nomina eorum qui de Rege tenuerunt in Capite, per Servitium Militare; aut in Socagio, ad terminum Vitæ, per Magnam Serjantiam, Parvam Serjantiam, vel in Burgagio: a tempore R. Henrici III. uſque ad annum 14 R. Edwardi IV. incluſive.

This whole work is thought to be of the Hand-writing alſo of Mr. Robert Glover abovementioned; who hath likewiſe tricked the Armes of many Families in the Margins.

3. Index Virorum: or an Alphabetical Table directing to the ſeveral Surnames of Families mentioned in this Book.

A like Table for the Names of Places was deſigned to have been put at the beginning; but it was not done.

An Heraldical Book in a thin folio; wherein I find only theſe few matters that follow, viz.

1. The Names of the Knights & Gentlemen of Cheſhire, and their Coate Armors (in Blaſon) who, as it ſholde ſeeme, liued about King Richard II. and later tymes. Copied verbatim out of an old Record found with Mr. Puleſdon. At the beginning,

2. Cheſhire Coates of Armes, of euery Hundreth; painted. 1.

This Tract goes through with only the Hundred of Macclesfield, & part of that of Bucklow: but then the Names of Families in other Hundreds are ſett down, and many of their Armes begun to be traced out with Black Lead.

Num. 2088, 2089.

3. The beginning or deſign of an Alphabet of the Cheſhire Gentries Armes, to have been painted within printed Eſchocheons, like the former. 15.

This deſign proved abortive, for the Names of the ſeveral Families go no further than the Letter I; as to their Armes there are none putt down.

4. The Order of the Proceeding of her Majeſtie from Somerſet-Houſe to the Cathedrall-Church of S^t. Pawle in London; 24 Novembris, 1588. 49.

This Book ſeems to have been done (ſo far as it goes) by Thomas Chaloner, Ulſter King of Armes about the year 1590.

A Book in folio, written (for the greateſt part) by Mr. Thomas Chaloner abovementioned; wherein I find,

1. Fifteen different Coats of Armes, borne by the Name of Molyneux; haſtily tricked by the firſt Randle Holme, who cauſed this Book to be bound A. D. 1634. & his Name to be ſtamped on the out-ſide, with gilded Letters. fol. 1. b. looking for the Number of Leaves at the bottom of the ſame, till further warning. 1. b.

2. Armes of Quarterings of Sir John Spenſer, & Sir Charles Fox, haſtily tricked. ibid.

3. Armes in Blaſon, of Engliſh auncient Earles. 2.

Among theſe, are ſome put down, that are neither Engliſh, nor belonging to Earles.

4. Armes in Blazon of many Kinges, Princes, & Countreys. 3.

Among theſe I am affraid that ſome may be looked upon as fabulous.

5. Arma Civitatum; that is, of ſome few Citties in England; & of a few places abroad. 4. b.

6. Series priſcorum Ceſtrie Comitum. 5.

7. Armes of the Nine Worthyes. ibid.

Here, inſtead of Godfrey of Bullen, I meet with Gwy Earle of Warwick, to whom are given thoſe Armes which are ſaid to bee borne by Thomas de Newburgh, who was made Earl of Warwick, about A. D. 1229.

Then follows, a large Alphabet in Blaſon, to which the following Title which is put to the beginning of the Book doth peculiarly belong, "Coates Alphabet-wiſe in England, Ireland, & Wales; colected by Thomas Chaloner of Cheſter Gentleman, in 1588 May 1°. and in other Yeares after, by the ſaid Thomas Chaloner, aliàs Ulveſter principal Herehaught & Kinge of Armes for the Realme of Irelande. After, continued by Randle Holme of the Citty of Cheſter Alderman, Maior of the ſaid Citty 1633. and by Randle his Sonne, alſo Maior of Cheſter 1643. To whom, I make bold to add the third Randle Holme: becauſe I diſcern his Hand-Writing in ſundry places of the Book.

To this Alphabet, the running Numbers of the Leaves are regularly putt at the Top, as in other Books.

As to the Alphabet itſelf, it is a very large one, and fit to be conſulted upon Occaſion; but then it is ſo very irregularly put down, by Mr. Chaloner's making but one Letter of V. & W. and by his & the Holme's entring words or Names beginning with the ſame Letters in many different Places of the Book, that the Deſign of the Alphabet is thereby, in a manner deſtroyed, and the Search after a Name rendred too tedious & irkſome. I ſhall therefore make a ſort of a Table to it, by which I hope it may ſoon become capable of being uſed, and thoſe Eie-ſores a little palliated.

The Table.

A Book in folio, conſiſting of many looſe Tracts & ſingle Papers bound up together without any Order; and, by the third Randle Holme, on the back entituled Deeds of Cheſhire: as to which, purſuing my wonted Method, I ſhall give a more particular Account, as finding therein,

1. The ſaid Randle Holmes Account of the Things of moſt Note in this Book. At the beginning.

Then follows a Collection of Papers, put up together, indeed, but all in disorder; and relating to that important Affair of the Ship-money leavied by K. Charles 1. And here we find Sir Thomas Aston Baronet, Farmer of the Impосts of the French Wines brought into the Port of Chester, very angry at his being rated by the City of Chester for his said Place, and blowing up a Quarrel between the County and the City of Chester; wherein he was suppo.ted by Sir Thomas Delves then the High-Sheriffe, Sir William Brereton, & other Gentlemen, some of whom afterward, in the Civil Wars ensuing, revenged themselves both upon the City & upon the King too. This matter being therefore so remarkable, I have thought it for the best to describe the said Papers not in the Confusion they now are in, but rather somewhat toward their Order of time, whereby the chiefest parts of that Transaction, may be the more easily gathered up, & retained. These Papers are, Indifferencie, to leavie the Money, by the Pooll, upon the Inhabitants.

63. Original Letter of Sir Thomas Aston, to Francis Gamull Esq; Maior of Chester, dated 17 Sept. 1635. 137.

Desiring him to submitt to the Lords Instructions, and not to expect to rate Men for their Lands lying in the County. The said Instructions, in that point, being so expresse, that he durst not admitt his Condition to exempt his Lands in the Countrey, in the Assessment of the County: it being of present prejudice to the Inhabitants of the Countrey, & of dangerous president to the Kings Service in all the Countries of the Kingdome, wherein there are anie Townes Corporate, or Owners of Lands living out of the County.

64. Original Certificate of the Maior & Aldermen of Chester, dated 7 February 1634. 102.

Testifying that Edward Whitby Esq; Recorder of Chester had paid £1 : 6 : 8. being his Rate toward the Ship-money, and therefore ought not to be charged in any other Place for that Service.

65. Original Letter of S^r Thomas Aston, to the Mayor, Recorder & Aldermen of Chester, dated 28 Sept^r 1635. 139.

This is objurgatory; & here Sir Thomas avers that the Gentlemen of the Countrey affirme that he justly stated the Case to them (viz. the Maior, &c.) in chardging them not to submitt to the Kings Writ, nor to the Lords Instructions. That the Differences arising between the Country & the City, from the various Interpretations of them, were, de Quanto, De Ubi, & De Modo. For the Quantum, they will not trust him the Sheriffe to sett the Sum; but helpe themselves by the Instructions, they being favorable for the Sum of 300 pounds. As to the Ubi, He was, according to the Instructions, to assesse all the Houses & Lands throughout the whole County: but that they having Houses & Lands lying therein, liked not the Instructions, but returned to the Writt, because of an Abbreviation therein, whereby they would interpret Terras tenentes in Civitate & in membris ejusdem; into Terrarum Tenentes, or Landholders: in which sense, if they lived in the Citty, they would rate them as to their said Lands, to pay with the Citizens, to the Countrey's losse. That this they would make good, by raising the third Difference, De Modo, of the Manner of this Assessment, which they would have to be a personall, not a locall Charge; at which Sir Thomas is very angry, as being contrary to both the Writ & Instructions, as he indeavours to shew, at length. Concluding, that if they conceiue the Lords haue prescribed a wrong Course, they would doe well to certifie them so much, that they may alter the Instructions throughout the the Kingdom. Adding further, for doubtleſſe, all other Corporations may plead the ſame Priuiledge to exempt theyr Lands in the County, as well as you ; which if it were graunted, in what Caſe would the Kings Service be when noe Sheriffe could begin his Aſſeſſment till all the Corporations had aſſeſſed, leuyed, & certified, what Lands they would exempt, &c.

66. A Copie of the ſame Letter. 127.

67. Original Letter of the Lords of the Privy Council to the Mayor & Magiſtrates of the Citty of Cheſter ; dated the 10th of October 1635. 135.

Acquainting them, that the High Sheriff (Sir Thomas Aſton) had tranſmitted to them, two of their (the Cities) Certificates in the behalfe of Sir Thomas Smith Kt. & of William Allen Gent. wherein they took the bouldnes to declare that noe perſon, though hauing Lands & Eſtate in ſeuerall places within the County, ought to be charged but according to the Eſtate only which he hath in the Place where he reſides. Under Colour whereof, they took upon them to protect others, for their owne Ends ; though to the diſſervice of the King. Which Indiſcretion & Preſumption as they could not but exceedingly marvell at, & ſharply reproue: ſo if they (the City) ſhould perſiſt therein, for that which ſhould concerne themſelves, or miſ-leade others by ſuch their Conceyte & Example: their Lordſhips would call them to a more ſeuere Account, as well for their paſt as future di[ſ]ervice occaſioned thereby.

68. A Copie of the ſame Letter. 156.

69. Original Letter of the Lords of the Privy Council to the Mayor & Alderman of the Citty & County of Cheſter : dated, 25 January 1635. 129.

Putting them in mind, that whereas that Board was very carefull to recommend, that the Cleargie in their Taxations & Aſſeſſements for Shipping, might receiue all due Reſpect, both to their Perſons & calling. It is now required that they ſhould examine & make Certificate vnto their Lordſhips, with convenient Expedition, what the Cleargie hath been aſſeſſed at, within the Citty, for the Shipping Money charged this laſt Yeare.

70. Original Letter from Sir Thomas Aſton, to Mr. Knowles Mayor of Cheſter; dated 27 January 1635. 153.

Requiring the Citty to ſend to him ſpeedily, the 300 Pounds charged upon them, he being to make up his Accounts. And whereas they had charged him with Five Pounds, as Farmer of the Kings Cuſtomes in Cheſter: he ſays, he houlds by Pattent from the King, diſcharged from any manner of Taxe, Chardge, or Impoſition, other then the Rent reſerued to his Majeſtie ; with Power of Defalcation of any Taxe whatſoeuer, that ſhall be impoſed upon the ſame. So, that what they ſhould impoſe, or he pay, in this kind, muſt be deducted out of the Kings Rent ; who then would be paid with his own Money : and himſelf ſhould be thought an ill Tennant, to permitt the Kings Cuſtomes to become contributary to their Charges. Therefore deſires them to revoke that Aſſeſſment, that he be not conſtrayned to complayne of ſuch Injuſtice, as is neither offred to the Grand Farmers there (whoe reape much more benefitt then he does) nor to the Farmers of his Majeſties Cuſtomes, in any Port of England.

71. Original Letter of the Lords of the Privy Councill, to the Mayor & Alderman of the Citty of Cheſter; dated the 8th of February 1635. 133.

Acquainting them, that Sir Thomas Aſton had complayned to the Board, that he hauing noe Houſe nor Lands at all within the Juriſdiction of the Cittie of Cheſter, was (out of particular Indiſpoſition towards him) lately aſſeſs'd at Five Pounds, towards the Shipp money, vnder pretence that he is Farmor of his Majeſties Cuſtomes of French Wynes in the Northerne Ports, which he holds by Letters Pattents, &c. (as above in the laſt Letter) and that neverthelefſe, they, in a diſgraceful manner, ſent their Common Sergiants to leauy the ſame vpon him. But the Board finding cauſe to diſlike their proceeding, both for the manner & matter : and being ſatisfied that the Petitioner ought not to be charged in Relation to the farming the ſaid Cuſtomes, did Will & require them to diſcharge him of the ſaid Somme, & to Leauie the ſame otherwiſe.

72. A Copie of the ſame Letter. 143.

73. Original Letter from the Lords of the Privy Council, to the Maior & Alderman of the Citty of Cheſter ; dated the 23 February 1635. 131.

Shewing that they had conſidered the Cities Letter of the 8th preſent, and approve theire Care & good Endeavors, in the buſineſs of Shipp-money, and would repreſent the ſame to his Majeſtie, vpon any good Occaſion. Thir Lordſhips require them to purſue their laſt Directions, touching Sir Thomas Aſton. And ſhewing that concerning the Refuſall of Sir William Brereton or his Tenants to pay their Aſſeſſments ; they needed not to haue troubled the Board : conſidering the Authoritie giuen them by his Majeſties Writt, to leauye the ſame by Diſtreſſe, or otherwiſe.

74. Original Letter of the Maior & Alderman of Cheſter to Thomas Bauand Eſq; & Mr. William Edwards : dated the 25 of March 1636. 90.

Thanking them for their great Care & Paines taken, & encouraging them to proceed. That they conceive the Farmors Certificate differs much from Sir Thomas Aſton's Caſe. For they knowe not the Farmers Receipts, nor whether they gaine or looſe by their Places. But that the cleare gaine Sir Thomas Aſton receaues in that Citty, might be demonſtrated ; and thence they took their Computation for his Aſſeſſment. Nor doe they conceiue anie Difference : but that Sir Thomas ys as well lyable to the Aſſeſſment, for his cleare gaines there for his Farme (being for certaine Yeares) as the King's Tennants or Farmours of his Mannours or Lands are.

75. Original Letter of Mr. Will. Edwards, to Mr. Recorder Whitby: dated from London, 4 April 1636. 92.

Shewing the Trouble that he had met with in this their Difference with Sir Thomas Aſton ; againſt whom the Lords of the Council would receive no more of their Petitions. That however, he had deliver'd one, kneeling, to the Lord Keeper who ſaid that he and the reſt of the Lords would mooue the King vppon Sunday ; when he attended, and found means to proffer another to his Majeſtie, and procured this Anſwer, that Sir Thomas Aſton muſt pay the Five Pounds aſſeſſed on him (nolens volens,) in Engliſh, againſt his great Hart. That Sir Thomas, when he could avoyd yt noe longer, petitioned againſt him ; upon which, the Lords appointed Sir William Beecher, & Mr. Nicolas to examine his Profe. For at a meeting with Sir Thomas, when Mr. Bauand was preſent, he ſaid theſe Words without Paſſion, viz. Sir Thomas, yt were better all the Houſes in Cheſter were in the Riuer, then the Kings Service ſhould be neglected.

76. Copie of Sir Thomas Aſton's Petition to the Lords of the Privy Council, againſt Mr. Edwards, written by him, & incloſed in the Letter laſt abovementioned. 94. A.

Shewing that he being, by ſeuerall Orders, diſcharged from an Aſſeſſment putt vppon him by the Citizens of Cheſter ; and that after being by them required to pay the ſame, he did it to Mr. Secretary Windebanke. But that ſince, his Majeſtie being ſatisfied that noe Farmers of his Cuſtomes in England, haue been aſſeſſed in any Port where they liue not, only the Petitioner, was pleaſed to cauſe the Money to be reſtored. Yet ſuch is the Malice of Will. Edwards Merchant, Sollicitor for the Cittizens, that he giveth out, he will ſtay this Seaven Yeres but he will haue yt. That he will follow the Petitioner cloſſe at the Heeles, and neuer leaue him, but will haue yt. That he had rather ſee the Citty, Houſes, Walles, & all in yt, downe the Riuer, then he would goe home without yt. Together with ſome Complaints againſt the Magiſtrates, as proſecuting him out of Spleene, &c.

77. Original Order of Council, made, the King being preſent, 3 April 1636. & ſealed with the Council-Seale. 148.

Importing, that whereas two Petitions were then read, the one of Sir Thomas Aſton, and the other of the Maior & Citizens of Cheſter, concerning the Payment of Five Pounds aſſeſſed upon Sir Thomas, towards Shipp-money, as Farmer of the Impoſts of French Wines within the Port of Cheſter: it was ordered, after a long & ſerious Debate & Conſideration, in full Councell; that not only Sir Thomas ſhould forthwith pay the ſaid 5 pounds: but that all others his Majeſties Farmers ought to be aſſeſſed for the Valewes of their Farmes for the Shipping-money, both at this time, or at any time hereafter. With a Clauſe for the Clerkes of the Council to call Mr. Edwards before them, and to examine him touching the offenſive Speeches complained of by Sir Thomas Aſton.

This is ſigned by Sir William Beecher one of thoſe Clerkes: who wrote underneath, "Aprill the laſt 1636; vpon Report made to their Lordſhips of this buſineſſe, theyr Lordſhipps did not think fitt to make any further Order therein."

78. A Copie of the ſame Paper. 110.

79. Draught of the Petition of the Maior & Citizens of Cheſter, to K. Charles I. 147.

Setting forth, that where Sir Thomas Aſton, Farmer (by Leaſe, for above 25 yeares to come) of the Impoſts of French Wines, within the Port of Cheſter, at a certain Rent; was (vpon full hearinge befor the Lords of the Privie Councell) directed to pay £5. aſſeſſed vpon him in the ſaid Citty, towards the Ship-money: yet neuertheleſs, he refuſeth to pay the ſame. Whereby, diuers Officers within that Cittie, whoe haue willinglie made payment of their Aſſeſſments, doe conceaue themſelues to haue bene vnduly aſſeſſed; and may hereafter refuſe to pay the like Aſſeſſments. They therefore pray that Sir Thomas may forthwith make payment of the ſaid Five Pounds Aſſeſſment.

80. Copie of the Letter from the Lords of the Privy Council, to the High Sheriffe of the County of Cheſter, dated the firſt of October, 1636. 158.

In this Letter are contained the Advices and Inſtructions, which he was preſentlie to communicate with the Head Officer of the Corporate Townes, in that County. The County Palatine was to provide one Shipp of Three Hundred Tonnes, furniſhed with Men, Tackle, Munition, Victuals, &c the charge whereof their Lordſhips conceived, would amount to 3000 Pounds; of which Sum they thought the Citty of Cheſter might well beare 260 Pounds. That ſuch wealthy Men as had little Land, ſhould be particularly taxed; in order to eaſe ſuch as having Lands, were of weaker Eſtate. Here are ample Directions, how to make the Aſſeſſment eaſy & equal to all: but then, if any ſhould refuſe or neglect to make payment: the Kings Writ, ſent with theſe Inſtructions, was to be executed upon him. That it was to be particularly expreſſed how much euerie Clergie-Man is rated at, for his meere Eccleſiaſtical Poſſeſſions; and what for his temporall & perſonall Eſtate. That foraſmuch as the Privileges of the Clergie were not certainly declared; his Majeſtie is pleaſed, that for the preſent, they ſhould be taxed, & make payment, as his other Subjects: but then, a due Reſpecte muſt be borne both to their Perſons & Callinge, not ſufferinge any Inequallities or Preſſures to be putt vpon them. His Majeſtie reſolving that theſe Aſſeſſments & Proceedings ſhall not be prejudiciall, in the future, to them, or to any of their Rights & Priviledges, which vpon further Search, ſhall be found due vnto them. Here are alſo, other plain Inſtructions for the leauying the Money; and divers Caſes which had happened in the former Years, to the hindrance of the Service, are here ſpecified & obviated.

81. Copie of a Letter from the Magiſtrates of Cheſter to the Lords of the Privy Council; . . . Dec. 1636. 169.

Complaining of Sir William Brereton, who protected his Tenant in his diſobedience to the Kings Proclamation, by refuſing to contribute toward the public Watches; and further, becauſe Sir William had refuſed to paie his Aſſeſſment for the late Shipp-money (although he was rated very low) by reaſon whereof diverſe others who have promiſed payment, are vnwillinge to give any Satisfaction, vntill Courſe be taken with Sir William.

82. Copie of a Letter from Sir Thomas Delves the Sheriffe & many of the Juſtices of the Peace of the County-Palatine of Cheſter, to the Lords of the Privy Council: dated, 28 December, 1636. 162.

Complaining, that Sir Thomas Aſton beinge aſſeſs'd by the Countie toward the preſent Service of Shippeinge for his Farme of the impoſt of French Wynes brought into the Countie & Port of Cheſter, &c. and having paid accordingly: the Citizens of Cheſter doe pretend to aſcribe & draw to themſelves the eaſe & benefitt of this Aſſeſſment, intending againe to taxe him in the Summe of Fiue Pounds, in affront for the Seruice hee did when he was Sheriffe, and by way of quittance with the Countrey, who would not ſuffer them to diſcharge their Lands in the County. Theſe Gentlemen do therefore aſſure themſelues that their Lordſhips would not haue his Majeſties Seruice diſturbed with ſuch differences, nor the Countrey diſcontented by ſuch an injury, who doe already conceiue themſelues ouercharged, in reſpect of their Neighbour-Counties.

83. Copie of a Letter from K. Charles I. to Sir John Bramſton Chief Juſtice of the Kings Bench, and all the other Judges: given, 2 of February, 1636. 172.

Setting forth the Reaſons inducing him to haue a Royal Navie provided, of force & power ſufficient to protect and defend this Realme. And that for preventing of Errors he had thought fit to have their Adviſe as to the Queſtion incloſed. The Sum of the Queſtion was whether he was not the ſole Judge of any Danger impending upon this Realm, and of the Means of preventing it: and whether he could not command all his Subjects to contribute toward their common Defence, by writt under the Great Seale.

85. Authentic Copie of an Order of the Lords of the Privy Council: dated, 17 February 1636. 106.

Here, his Majeſtie being preſent, it was ordered, upon the Petition of Sir Thomas Aſton, & the Certificate of the High Sheriffe of Cheſhire, that the difference between Sir Thomas & the City of Cheſter ſhould be heard at the board, the 7th of May next: and in the mean while, the Cities Aſſeſſment upon the Petitioner, to be ſuſpended.

86. Copie of a Letter from Sir Thomas Delves Sheriffe of Cheſhire, to the Maior of Cheſter, 6 March 1636. 108.

Concerning the Notice he had given to the Cittie of the Order abovementioned: and that there were yet other differences betwixt the County & the Cittye: viz, about the Cities clayme of Glouers ſtonne, being exempted in the Citties Charter; their buyeinge of the old Shirehall, which they had made a Common Hall of. Their Aſſeſſment of the Lord Buſhopp of Cheſter; beſides the particular Greeuance of Sir William Brereton. That for the Glouers Stone, Sir Thomas Aſton, & the Clergie, he would ſeeke to protect them; and therefore deſires for the aſſeſſing of the Clergie they would pleaſe to forbeare: otherwiſe he muſt complayne of the Countreys wronge, as likewiſe of the Clergies ſufferings.

87. Original Letter from Sir Thomas Delves, to Mr. Recorder Whitby. dated 6 March, 1636. 173.

Here he enlarges upon the particular matters by him ſpecified in his Letter to the Maior; withall giving his Reaſons for the Counties Claim to the Glouers

Num. 2093.

Glouers ſtone, & to the old Shire-hall: with a deſire that Peace might be between the Countie & the City; and alſo between Sir William Brereton & them.

88. Draught of an Anſwer from Mr. William Edwards Maior of Cheſter to Sir Thomas Delves High Sheriffe of the County of Cheſhire: dated, 9 March 1636. 167.

Importing, that the Citty knew noe difference betwixt the County & them. That as to Sir Thomas Alſton his Oppoſition to their Aſſeſſment, drew the Queſtion to the Privy Council-board; where, after many hearings, it was ordered (his Majeſtye then ſittinge in Counſell) that hee ought to paie the ſaid Aſſeſſment, and did pay the ſame accordinglie: which the City had reaſon to thinke had made a final Determination. That for the Aſſeſſement of the Inhabitants at & about Glouers Stonne: they formerly paid Subſidies with the Cittie, contributed to the Royall Loane, and were aſſeſſed vpon the two firſt Wrytts for the Shipp-moneye, & paid accordingly; and are now againe by them aſſeſſed vpon the laſt Wrytt. But theſe being priuate & particuler Mens Caſes, one of Sir Thomas Alſton, who is little Reſident in the County; the other of Sir Gilbert Ireland & his ſucceſſours, who are Inhabitants in another Countye; they knowe not how they ſhould be made Cauſes concerneinge the Countye, being not before ſo taken by any former High-Sheriffe. As for their Aſſeſſment of the Clergy, they conceive they were directed ſo to do, and did ſo, & haue leuyed the Money, and will be accomptable to the Lords for their Doeinges. As for Sir William Brereton, they finde him, in his Diſpoſition, inclyned to Suits againſt them. As for Peace, they deſire it with all men: and if he (Sir Thomas) can take courſe to ſettle theſe matters in the ſame ſtate wherein he found them: they ſhall readily giue way to any ſittinge Courſe for accommodation.

89. Mr. Recorder Whitbies firſt Draught of an Anſwer to Sir Thomas Delves's Letter. 164.

Herein he defends the Citties Right as to the matters of the Glovers Stone, & the old Shire-hall.

90. Mr. Recorder Whitbies ſecond Draught of an Anſwer to the ſame Letter. dat 10 March 1636. 166.

Here, thoſe two matters are omitted.

91. A Note of Mr. Recorder Whitbie's hand, ſhewing when the 3 Writts for Ship-money came out; the Sums charged upon the County of Cheſter; & upon the City & Liberties thereof. And that by the third Writ, the County was not charged ſo high by £460. as it was by the ſecond. 101. b.

92. Authentic Order of the Privy Council, made, (his Majeſtie being preſent) 14 May, 1637. 145.

Here Sir Thomas Alſton's Caſe (who was aſſeſſed by the High-Sheriffe, for his Farme at £.16. 13. 4. and by the City of Cheſter, for the ſame Farme, at £3. 6. 8. being taken into conſideration: vpon a full hearing or Councell on both ſides, & ſerious Debate, & conſideration, it was ordered, that in regard the Cuſtome-houſe, is ſcituate within the Liberty of the ſaid Cittie, Sir Thomas ſhould forthwith pay the £3. 6. 8. vnto the Maior of the ſame. And that the High Sheriffe of the County do take off from him the £6. 13. 4. and lay it elſewhere. And that henceforth, Sir Thomas & his Succeſſors, Farmers in that Port, ſhall always be aſſeſſed, and pay, in that Cittie.

93. A Copie of the preceding Order of Council. 113.

94. Copie of a Letter to the Lords of the Privy Council, ſubſcribed by many of the beſt Gentry of the County, againſt the City of Cheſter. 117.

Here they complain very heavily of the Counties being injured by the Incroachment of the Citizens vpon their Rights, in the Caſes of the Biſhop of Cheſter, who being aſſeſſed by a Committee of the Clergie, in the Countie; and alſo in Lancaſhire, where he reſided: was nevertheleſs rated by the City at 20 Nobles, where all he received was but 40 Shillings per annum, which (becauſe the Biſhop had paid, with ſome Addition) theſe Citizens would make a Preſident of. In the buſineſs of the Glovers-ſtone; though they allow the Inhabitants to pay with the Citizens the Church-duties, Poors Rate, and other Layes which concerne not the Countrey; yet they inſiſt upon their holding one of their Quarter-Seſſions there, which if it be part of the County of the City, many of their Acts were void, as being done extra Comitatum. But they were informed, that in a Caſe of like nature, concerning part of the Countie, within the Cittie of Wincheſter: their Lordſhips expreſsly ordered the Inhabitants to pay with the Countie, & not with the Cittie. That as to Sir Thomas Aſton, his Caſe was peculiar; noe other Farmer of his Majeſties Cuſtomes, in any Port of England, being aſſeſſ'd but only where they live. Therefore they conceive this to be done in Spleene & Affront, for his Service done when he was Sheriffe, and by way of quittance with the Countrey, becauſe their Lands were not excuſed. With further Inſinuations on their own behalf, and againſt the Citizens:

96. Copie of an Order of the Privy Council, made, (the King being preſent) 29 October, 1637. 115.

This is upon Reading the Letter abovementioned appointing a Copie thereof to be delivered to ſome of the cheefe Magiſtrates of Cheſter; and reſolving to giue a Hearing to both Parties, by their Councell, the 4th of February next, ſauing thoſe Poynts as haue bin already ſettled, vpon full Hearing of both ſides.

97. Another Copie of the ſame Order. 94.

98. Original Letter of Sir Thomas Delues, to the Maior & Aldermen of Cheſter; dated, 21 December, 1637. 98.

Herewith, he ſent the Copie of the Gentries Letter againſt them, and the Order of Council laſt abovementioned.

99. Copie of a Letter from the Maior & Aldermen of Cheſter to the Lords of the Privy Council; dated the 13th Day of Januarye, 1637. 100.

Shewing, that their Lordſhips having twice ordered (his Majeſty ſitting in Counſell both tymes) that Sir Thomas Alſton ſhould pay with the Citty: They cõld not expect that hee, or any other, wõld haue taken that boldneſſe to haue certified their Honors, that they ſtill doe conceiue he ought not to pay with the Citty. For the other two matters complayned of, they conceiue they were but added to accompany Sir Thomas's Complaint; who not only drew the Letter, but alſo by himſelfe & ſervants laboured & ſolicited for Hands vnto it. Wherein, for what concernes the Glouers ſtone, They deny it to be excepted out of their Charter; or that any Quarter-Seſſions of the County are holden there. That the Inhabitants there doe pay Church-Dutyes, Releefe for the Poore, & other Layes with the City; and have heretofore likewiſe payd with the Citty Subſidies, the Roiall Loane, & Shipp-money vpon the two firſt Writts; vntill about the time Sir Thomas raiſed the Queſtion concerning himſelfe, the Difference was likewiſe raiſed concerning the Glouers Stone, whoſe Inhabitants were aſſeſſed by the Sheriffe, att no more than 15s. 2d. That as to the Biſhop of Cheſter, they had proceeded reſpectfully towards him, and according to the Power given them, they had aſſeſſed Him, upon the two former Writts, & he had paid both the Aſſeſſments; and have now aſſeſſed his Lordſhip, upon the laſt Writ, as they conceiue they may lawfully doe; haueing made noe Complaint againſt him, nor knowing of any he had made againſt them. As for the Spleen & Affront to Sir Thomas; the Injuries, Incroachments, & Abuſes to the Countrey, & Diſſervice to his Majeſty, they deny all; and ſhew that Sir Thomas's Good Services were nothing worth: that when he was firſt aſſeſſed in the Citty, he made the Caſe for Himſelfe, and all his Majeſties Farmers of England; and being ouer-ruled therein, he raiſes the Queſtion, that he ought to pay with the Countrey & not with the City; whereby he he putt them to great Charge & Trouble, which he ought to reimburſe. And they pray that they may execute the Writt vpon him for his Aſſeſſment, he hauing noe Cauſe of Complaint at being aſſeſſed Five Pounds for that, which he hath long clearly gayned £1000 ℔ annum by; and for the preſent yeare, will gaine £1500 aboue his Majeſties Rent. Laſtly, they humbly pray to be diſcharged of Attendance att the Board, vntill their Lordſhips ſhall be certified what the Earle of Derbie and the Judges ſhall doe (at the Aſſizes) vppon their Lordſhipps former Reference of theſe matters to them.

100. Copie of an Order of the Privy Council, made, (his Majeſtie being preſent) 27 May 1638. 123.

Here, when the Gentries Petition or Certificate againſt the City was taken into Conſideration, & the freſh matters heard on both ſides: they came to that part relating to Sir Thomas Aſton; whoſe cauſe having been twice before heard at that Board & determined, his Majeſtie being both Tymes preſent: It was more expreſsly ordered by his Majeſtie and their Lordſhips, that the ſaid Sir Thomas Aſton ſhal be required to obſerue the ſaid former Orders in that behalf, and that he ſhall not henceforth preſume to trouble his Majeſtie or the Board any more with the ſaid Buſineſs or Differences: and hereof the ſaid Sir Thomas to take Notice, and to conforme himſelf accordingly.

101. Sir Thomas Aſtons Anſwere to Mr. Richard Litler Clerke of the Penrice, vppon the Demand of the 20 Nobles aſſeſſed vppon him for Ship moneys, within the Citty of Cheſter (Written by Mr. Litler) 4 Junij 1638. 119.

That the Lords having order'd him the Money back, which he had payed to the County; he hoped he ſhould not pay this, before he receiued that. And likewiſe hoped it was not the Lords Meaning that he ſhould pay it to the City there; but here (in the County) where he was aſſeſſed. And if his Anſweare liked us (the City) not, We (the City) might take the Beneſitt of the Writt, or what other courſe we thought fitt: for he was a Subject.

102. Original Letter of Sir Thomas Aſton to Mr. Litler; dated, 4 June 1638. 121.

Giving his Anſwer in Writing to the Meſſage or Demand abovementioned; the Subſtance of it being that he does not diſobey the Orders of the Privy Council, but (as farr as in him lyes, hath conformed himſelfe to them; as he ſhall make manifeſt to their Lordſhips, if they pleaſe to call him to any further Anſweare. As to the Five Markes impoſed vpon him by the Mayor of Cheſter; He ſays he will not oppoſe any power given Mr. Mayor by the Writt: but wiſhes he may take Satisfaction at Cheſter, according to the Direction of that Writt.

103. Authentic Order of Council, made, (his Majeſty being preſent) 15 July 1638. 141.

Upon the Petition of the Mayor & Citizens of Cheſter, ſhewing that Sir Thomas Aſton hath not hitherto payed the ſeverall Aſſeſſments for Shippe-money charged vpon him, notwithſtanding that the ſame hath bene ſeverall times demaunded, according to three ſeverall Orders formerly made: his Majeſty & the Board having conſidered of the ſaid Complaint, do ſtraightly charge & require the ſaid Sir Thomas, forthwith to pay to the Mayor of Cheſter the ſaid Aſſeſſments, without further Delay, as he will aunſwere the contrary at his perill.

104. Copie of Mr. Recorder of Cheſter's Letter to Mr. Bavand, ſans date; concerning a Letter of Attorney to be ſent by the City, empowering him & Mr Walker to receive Sir Thomas Aſton's Shipp-money, with Directions how to make the previous Demand upon Sir Thomas (ſince Mr. Litler had made ſome blunder in the buſineſs) and how to uſe the ſaid Letter, in caſe of Sir Thomas's Refuſal. 111.

Num. 2093.

105. Original Letter of Sir Thomas Aſton, to M. Walker, ſans date. 125.

He is ſorry to have been abſent, when Mr. Walker came to ſhew him the Lords laſt Order for his Payment of the Money. But hauing ſeene a Coppy of the Cittyes Petition, wheervpon it is grounded (which he finds ſuitable to the reſt of theyr allegations againſt him, malitious & untrue) and knowing that the Kings Seruice is not concerned, (his Money being all payd) he has not oppos'd the three Orders, as is falſely ſuggeſted. Nor does he deny the legal Power of his Majeſties Writt, but wiſh'd Mr. Mayor to take ſatisfaction at Cheſter. And hauing already ſatisfied the Writt by paying a greater Proportion in another place which cannot be repayd: he muſt, in this Caſe putt him ſelfe vpon the Juſtice of the Board, & humbly refer him ſelfe to theyr Lordſhips Cenſure.

106. An open Note, without date, written by Sir Thomas Aſton to Mr. Walker: deſiring him to leaue a Noate of the Date of his Letter of Atturney, and the times of the two Aſſeſſments, as expreſſed in the ſame; that he might drawe an Acquittance accordingly; and the whole Money ſhould be paid. 125. 9. Original Articles of Agreement made & concluded vpon between Richard Kellie of London, Gent. and William Felles of Arrowe, Yoman; 10 May 1609. 9.

For a Lease of the Manor-house & Parke, &c. of Bidstone in Wirral, which Kelly held of the Earl of Derby; for which, Felles was to pay Kelly 140l. per annum; and a chief Rent to the said Earle of £38. 5. 8. Felles was bound in a Bond of 1000l. for performance of the Covenants. Here are also two original Instruments of the same Mr. Kelley; by the former, bearing date 12 July 1610. he appoints Thomas Gamull Esq; Recorder of Chester to receive his Rent. And by the other, upon Mr. Recorders decease, he appoints William Gamull Alderman of Chester, to do the same.

10. Papers relating to the vexatious Affaire of the Lease of Bidstone abovementioned, which William Earle of Derby, & Margaret the old Countesse his Mother, had granted to Lusher. But Sir John Egerton coveting the Premisses, did, (at length) by very undue meanes, procure another Lease of the same to himselfe, having promised to procure Lusher's Lease, which he could never effect. 13.

The Lease which Sir John procured, was signed & sealed, but not deliver'd, being by the Earle committed to the Care of Mr. Ireland his Servant, untill Lusher's Lease should be produced, and this of Sir John's amended in certain material Points. But Sir John sueing Ireland for the same, gott it out of his Hands; and stood all tryals at Law (against Christofer Themilthorpe, to whom Lusher lett it; against his Widow & Executrix after his decease; & against Anthony Randle her second Husband, for full eleven years together, and to the impoverishment of the Plaintiffes. And when, at last, after all his Arts used for Delaies, he could hold it no longer:

Num. 2095.

he leased out the same to the Earles of Oxford & Salisbury, who seem to have made no great matter of it, since it was in Kellies hands so soon as A. D. 1609. It seems, that Sir John had attempted to invalidate Lusher's Lease, as not good, for some reasons; the Plaintiffes Counsel therefore observed, among other particulars, that the Lease it self, was under the Countesse & Earles Hands & Seales of Armes: which were enoughe without Witnesses. For euery Earle is a Prince, and his Deed a Patent; Teste meipso might suffize.

58. Sir Peter Leiceſter's opinion (delivered in his Book. fol. 37. a.) concerning Amicia, daughter of Hugh de Cyvelioc. 533.

Namely, that ſhe being illegitimate, could not be a Coheir: and conſequently, that Sir Randle Mainwaringe (Sir Peters own Grandfather by the Mothers ſide) had no right to quarter the Armes of the old Earls of Cheſter, although this Amicia was married to his Anceſtor, and Sir Randle deſcended from her.

59. Anſwer of Sir Thomas Mainwaring to Sir Peter Leiceſter. ibid.

Here Sir Thomas is pretty warm; and proves that ſince what Hugh Kevelioc gave with this Amicia to Ranulph Mainwaringe, was giuen in freemarriage (in libero Maritagio) it certainly proves that Amicia was lawfull: becauſe a Baſtard is not capable to receive any thing that way: with other Arguments: moſt of which are as ſtrong for Geva the Daughter of Hugh Lupus: whom Sir Thomas owns to be illegitimately begotten, & whoſe Cauſe Sir Simond Dewes defends. vid (38. C. 8. fol. 30.)

ler, anno Regni 19; about the partition of an Eſtate in Little Mancott, within the County of Flint; with the Inquiſition taken thereupon. 561.

An Heraldical Book in folio, on the outſide, by the third Randle Holme, thus entituled, "Pedegrees of ſeueral Familyes, with the Quartered Coates." It is rather a Rhaplody of Heraldical matters, mangled & in bad condition, for the greateſt part, done by ſeveral perſons; and of which I think no more need be ſaid than this that follows,

1. Pedegree of the Royal Family of England, deduced from Adam to K. James 1. by ſome Welſhman perhaps. 1. b.

Intermixed with this, I find,

2. The Pedegree & Armes, with Quarterings of Langford, as I take it; by the ſecond Randle Holme. 6. A.

3. Divers Welſh Pedegrees, ſett down by the ſame, and elſewhere in this book. 7. A.

6. Pedegree of Edwyn. 10. A.

7. Pedegree of Coll. Robert Soutly, who died 5 Sept. 1653. 13. A.

8. Deſcent of Heaton of Heaton in Llevenny. 13. b.

9. Pedegree of John Broughton, made by the ſecond Randle Holme, A. D. 1651. 15.

10. Pedegree of Mr. Hugh Nanny of Merioneth Shire made by the ſame. 17.

11. Armes Quarterable by Gerard; collected for the Lord Gerard's ſiſter by the ſame. A. D. 1636. 19. A.

Then follows,

12. The Genealogie or Pedegree of the honorable Charles Worſley, Major-Generall, &c. to Oliver Cromwell; collected, as well out of the auntient Family of the Worſleys of Worſley, in the County Palatine of Lancaſter, as out of other authentic Records & Collections of diuers Pedegrees of noble & worſhipfull Howſes in ſeueral Countyes; and contynued: by the ſame Randle Holme. (with this I find.) 32.

13. Pedegree &c. of Legh of Eaſt-hall. 32. b.

14. Pedegree & Quarterings of Rowland Hill of Soulton Eſq; & of Rowland Hill of Hawkeſtone Gent. tranſcribed or collected by John Saluſbury de Gebyſteck A. D. 1667. for Mr. Holme. looſe. 35. A.

Mr. Saluſbury ſays that he tranſcribed this Deſcent out of the Bookes of Owen Saluſbury of Rûg Eſq; Robert Davyes of Gwyſaney Eſq; Peter Ellis of Wrexam, Arthur Kynaſton of Sant Gent. & George Owen Harries booke of the Genealogie of K. James in Print, a° 1604. and out of the Books and Collections of the ancient Welſh Bards.

15. Pedegree & Quarterings of Mr. John Lee of Lee; by the ſaid Randle Holme. 40. b.

Worſleys Pedegree is followed by

16. The Pedegree of Härbert, Wynne, & Vaughan of Lloddyard: by another hand. 46.

17. Pedegree of Piers Davies of Cheſter Linen-draper; truely collected, gathered & ſett downe according to the auncient Records of Wales, and the bookes of the beſt approved Authors of the Britiſhe Genealogies, by Evan Lloid of Paley in the Com. of Merioneth, Gent. alias, Evan Lloid Jeffrey, A. D. 1634. 58.

It ſeems very hard that ſo many Crowns, Coronets, royal & noble Names as adorn this true Pedegree (forſooth!) at the beginning, ſhould dwindle into a Linen-Draper in the end.

Num. 2100, 2101.

18. Pedegree of James Phillips of London, with the Armes. 68.

This is of the ſame honeſt Randle's drawing up, and is thus ſubſcribed by him, "This Pedegrey was collected out of auntient Records & warrantable Authores by Randle Holme of the City of Cheſter Eſquire, Deputy to the Office of Armes, anno 1633. June 28."

19. The third Randle Holmes Alphabetical Table of the Pedegrees extant in this book: at the end.

50. Three Draughts of a Letter from many of the Aldermen & Common-Council of Cheſter, to the Lord Keeper, amended, & ſent away from Cheſter, the 8th of February 160:. 392.

This is in arraigning the Proceedings of Mr. John Radcliffe the then Maior, who made Mr. Robert Whitby Clerk of the Pentice, againſt their Conſent. (vid. infra No. 98.)

51. Inſtructions in my Caſe, when the ſame is to be determined in the Aſſemblie at Cheſter. 400.

This ſeems to relate either to Mr. Recorder Whitby, or to his Predeceſſor Mr. Thomas Gamull; who fell into the Diſpleaſure of ſome humorous Maior, that alleaged he did not riſe up to do him Reverence, once when he came into the Church; nor was, at another time, 'preſent at the bynding of the Ale-howſes:' and therefore ought to be putt out of his Place. Mr. Recorder has drawn up this Paper very artfully; and has ſhewn that he would not be thruſt from his Office, upon every vain fancy of a Maior brim full of pride & ill nature.

52. Draught of the bill of Complaint exhibited to William Earle of Derby & James Lord Strange, Chamberlen of Cheſter, by the Maior & Citizens of the Citty of Cheſter, againſt Euan Jones & Richard Warmiſham. 402.

It ſeems that when the Accompt of William Fiſher late one of the Sheriffes of Cheſter, was audited, he was found Debtor to the City in the Sum of £4 4 1½. which Sum he promiſed to pay, but died before he did ſo; leaving Jane his Wife his Executrix. The Widow likewiſe promiſes to pay, but obtains a Term of Forbearance and deceaſes, leaving the Defendants her Executors. They, at firſt, faithfully promiſe to pay; but perceiving that the Citty had not ſuch preciſe proof of the particulars of the ſaid Accompt, & other Circumſtances which would be neceſſary to convict them at the Common Law, fly off, and oblige the City to have recourſe to Equity.

53. Draught of a bill of Complaint to the ſame Chamberlayne of Cheſter (ſigned by Robert Brerewood Eſq; who afterwards ſucceeded Mr. Whitby in the Recordership of Cheſter; was knighted, & made a Serjeant at Law) made for Jane Penny, who claimed an Houſe in Cheſter, as heireſſe to her brother Jerome; which he enjoyed as heir to his brother Rauffe, the eldeſt Son of their Father William, who entred into it, upon the deceaſe of his father, long before. The Bill is againſt Thomas Eaton & one Welſh; who having gotten the Writings into their hands, entred into the Premiſſes, pretending to have bought the ſame of the Complainants Fathers ſiſters. This was A. D. 1634. 405.

54. The Demurrer, Anſwere, & Aide-praier of Thomas Eaton Defendant, to the Bill of Complaint of Jane Penny Spinſter: Sworn to, 23 Febr. 1634. 407.

This is ſigned by Mr. Recorder Whitby; and alleages matters directly contrary to the former Bill.

55. Original Submiſſion of William Teſh, an Officer in the Court of Yorke, who had reviled Mr. Maior of Cheſter, Mr. Recorder, &c. and was therefore committed to Ward, A. D. 1637. (vid. infra N°. 86.) 411.

He alleages, that coming (drunk) from ſome Company along the Rowe, ſome of the Shuemakes & Cardmakers abuſeſſing him, rought ſuche a Confuſſyon or Diſtemperature in his Brayne, that they made him halfe mad (yet more drunk) in ſoe muche that he was not his owne man.

56. Mr. Recorder Whitbies Draught of a Petition, to the Marquis of Buckingham, in the name of his Father Robert & Brother Thomas, Clerkes of the Pentice, who were accuſed of ſome Crimes & Miſdemeanors committed in that Office; for which, they were afterward putt out. 413.

Herein it is prayed that they might have an indifferent Trial; that they might have the Liberty of bringing in their Witneſſes; & that their Accuſers might not be their Judges. Indeed, I find elſewhere, that their Pride, as well as their Extortion, brought a general Odium upon them.

57. Mr. Recorder Whitbies Draught of another Petition, to Prince Charles, as Earle of Cheſter, in the Names of his ſaid Father & Brother. 2117.

A Book in ſmall folio, written by divers wands, but moſtly by the ſecond Randle Holme & his ſon; who, on the out-ſide, has thus entituled it, "York-ſhire Deedes, &c." which being ſomewhat too general; I ſhall deſcribe it a little more particularly, as in the following manner,

1. Index Locorum; or an Alphabetical Table of the Names of Places mentioned in this Book. At the beginning.

2. The Names of the Townes of Yorkſhire, with the ſeverall Liberties & Weapontackes wherein they ſtand. 212.

3. Abbreviationes de Terris in Comitatu Eboracenſi; ex Libro de Domeſday in Scaccario. 227.

To this Tract is prefix'd an Original Letter of Dr. Richard Keurden (perhaps, to the ſecond Randle Holme) ſhewing that he and M[r] T. (whom I take to be M[r] Towneley) were taking great pains in collecting the Pedegrees of Cheſhire-Families, &c. To which end he had peruſed the Book of Domeſday; and hoped likewiſe to borrow ſome Volumes of Mr. Dodſworth's Collections of the Lord Fairfax: perhaps, by the meane of M[r] Tilleyſon, who is here mentioned.

4. Abſtracts of Nine Deeds relating to the Priory of Drax, or to the Church of Bingley; made from the Originals in the poſſeſſion of the third Randle Holme, by himſelf, A. D. 1667. 266.

5. Abſtracts of old Deeds relating to Yorkſhire, collected by the ſecond Randle Holme from M[r] Roger Dodſworth's Book marked AA. 269.

In this Tract I likewiſe find,

6. The Names of ſundry Fryeryes, Guldes, Chantryes, in & adjoyning to the Citty of Yorke, in former Ages. 274.

7. Nomina quorundam Abbatum Monaſterij S[te] Marie Ebor. 274. b.

Then follow,

8. Like Extracts from old Deeds, entred into Mr. Dodſworth's Book BB. 293.

It ſeems that theſe were firſt collected by St. Lo Kniveton Eſq; & then copied by Richard Gaſcoigne Eſq.

Num. 2117, 2118.

Esq; and do concern many other Counties as well as that of Yorkshire; being also taken from Books, and other Records, in part.

9. Collectanea ex Libro composito de Inquisitionibus de Officio captis in Scaccario, ex parte Rememoratoris Regis. 309.

10. Abstracts of Pleas, out of MSS. now in the hands of Mr. Roger Dodsworth, 24 May 1632; being in Paper in folio, with this marke Δ in dorso. 314.

11. Abstracts of Pleas, taken from that book of Mr. Dodsworth's above-mentioned at § 8. 320. b.

Among these Abstracts of Pleas, several might have been particularly noted in this short Catalogue, had not these Abstracts been too concise, or too erroneously written. However, I take leave, by the by, to just mention two or three Trials vizt.

12. That held at the Halymote of Colne, anno 35. R. Henrici VI. before Richard Nevil Earl of Salisbury, then Steward of the Court: where it was pleaded (upon a Claim of an Estate) how Agnes the Widow of John Banastre of York, dicto Johanni viro suo nequiter, perversè, et non feminè dispositа, sed calide & subtiliter imaginans qualiter Causam quomodo a Consortio dicti Johannis separari poterit, adquireret: ita quod per legem Ecclesiasticam, a Mensa & Thoro suis divorciari poterit: She imposed upon John Bishop of the Isle, by procuring him to receive & accept of herself a Commater, at his confirming of her Daughter (whereby, she contracted another Relation to her Husband.) 319.

13. That held anno 34 R. Edw. I. when William the Son of John del Heith lost his Estate to his Unkle, quia convictus est per Assisam istam, quod predictus Johannes del Heith nunquam disponsavit predictam Katherinam in facie Ecclesie; per quod sequitur, quod predictus Willelmus nihil Juris clamare potest in predictis Tenementis. Yet a sort of Marriage had been celebrated between them, for John being sick, the Vicar of Plumstede advised him, for his Souls health, to marry the said Katherine his Concubine, by whom he had two Daughters: whereupon this John in his own House, coram Vicario, predictam Katerinam spontanea Voluntate sua affidavit, et Annulum digito ipsius Katherine imposuit, et verba consueta ad Matrimonium contrahendum, absq; Misse celebratione, pronuntiavit; eo quod, propter debilitatem, ad Ecclesiam accedere non potuit; et ipsam ex tunc, ad totam Vitam ipsius Katherine, pro Uxore tenuit; et postea procreavit filium, nomine Willelmum, de ipsa Katherina. 339.

The last I shall now mention, Is

14. That of John Devereux, who (anno 29 R. Edwardi I.) would not be compelled by Margery the Daughter of Philip de la Walles, to marry her, against his own Will. 341.

2118.

An Heraldical Book in small folio, written by divers Hands, during the Reign of K. Charles I. as it seems to me; and by the third Randle Holme, on the back, entituled "Yorkshire-Pedegrees:" wherein I find.

1. A Collection of Pedegrees of Yorkshire-Families, which are ranged together in Alphabetical Order, (as the Heralds & Armes-painters understand it) that is regarding only the first Letter of their Sur-names. 1.

2. A like Collection of Pedegrees of good Families residing within the Bishoprick of Durham. 35. b.

3. Yorkshire Descents, Alphabetically: that is, a larger and different Collection from the former, ranged in the like Order. 48.

It may be observed that the said Randle Holme has made divers Additions & Continuations to each of these Tracts; and has brought down some of the Pedegrees as low as the time of the Restoration, or lower.

Num. 2119.

A Book in small folio, consisting of Papers as well loose; as bound; written by many Hands, and on the outside, by the third Randle Holme, entituled "Cheshire Pedegrees &c. which Title, although it might give a notion of the subject-matter treated of therein, in the general; I shall, nevertheless, endeavour to describe the same some-what more particularly, in the manner that followeth. As,

1. Notes touching the several Heraldical Visitations of Cheshire; when made, & by whom. 1. b. & 6.

2. List of such Gentlemen whose Descents seem to have been registered Gratis, at the Visitation of Shropshire, A. D. 1663. according to my new Numeration with black Lead; as are all that follow. 2.

3. List of some of those Persons names who were concerned with the Lord Cobham against K. James I. and in the Gun-powder-Treason-plot. 2. b.

4. The Names of such Esquires as entred their Descents & Armes, in the Visitation of Shropshire taken anno 1663 (by William Dugdale Norroy) some of them having that Title, as Justices of Peace. 3.

This is begun by Sir William Dugdale's own hand; and continued by that of another.

5. The Names of such Esquires as did enter their Names and Armes, in the Visitation of Cheshire (made by the same Norroy, & by Mr. Elias Ashmole Windsor-Herald, his Son in Law) anno 1663; some of them having that Title as Justices of Peace. 3. b.

This is written & continued by the same Hands as the former.

6. List of some Cheshire-Gentlemens Names; like that above-mentioned at No. 2. & by the same Hand. 4.

7. Alphabetical Table containing the Sur-names of those Families whose Pedegrees were described in certain Rolls belonging to the third Randle Holme of Chester. 8.

8. Pedegrees written within several of the said Mr. Holmes Books of Deeds. 15.

Then follows

9. The main Collection of Cheshire-Pedegrees, begun by the second Randle Holme, and carried on by divers others; with Continuations to late Years by Randle Holme the third. 18.

Among which, I observe,

10. The Names of the Manors, Lordships, Townes, & Lands, which Sir Geffrey Sonne of Adam de Dutton gave away among his Gentlemen, Yeomen, &c. 19. b.

This was on the back-side of Duttons Pedegree, which the second Randle Holme had of Sir Thomas Aston.

11. A Descent of Dutton, noted to be very false, though it was confirmed by William Flower Norroy, & by Chester Harauld his Marshall. 20. b.

12. Original Letter of Henry Travers to the third Randle Holme, or his Son, dated 16 November 1699. and exhorting him to be just to his young Nephew George. 29.

13. Copie of the said Mr. Holme's Certificate touching the Truth of Alderseys Pedegrees; 11 Jan. 1699. 29. b.

14. Copie of the Patent of Laurence Dalton Norroy, granted to Sir Thomas Venables Knight Baron of Kinderton, whereby the Armes (with the Augmentation of a Dragon) and the Crest, being a Demy-Dragon, were confirmed to him & his Family: 2 November, 1560: 36.

Here it is fabled, that "in the time of Thomas Venables of Golborne in the County of Chester Gentleman, hitt chancyd a terrible Dragon to remayne & make his abode in the Lordshippe of Moston in the County of Chester; where he devowred all such persons as he layd hold on. Which the said Venables hearinge tell of, consyderinge the pittyfull and dayly destruction of the people without without recouery (in following the example of the valiant Romaynes, & other worthy men; not regarding his own Life, in compariſon of the Commodity & Safegarde of his Count.cy-men) did in his one perſon valiantly & couragiouſly ſet-on the ſaid Dragon. Where firſt he ſhott him throw with an Arrow, and afterward, with othere Weapons, manfully ſlew him: at which inſtant tyme, the ſaid Dragon was devowringe of a Child. For which worthy & valiant Act, was giuen him the Lordſhip of Moſton, by the Aunceſtors of the Earle of Oxford, Lord of the Fee there. And alſo euer ſince, the ſaid Thomas Venables & his Heires, in remembrance thereof, haue uſed to beare as well in his Armes, & in theire Creſt, a Dragon."—

Upon occaſion of this Story, I beg leave to make one Reflection; which is, that ſundry Families of great Antiquity & Splendor, & well known to have been in chief rank in their ſeveral Counties, for many Generations; with which Glory their Poſterity might have been well contented: have, nevertheleſs, attempted to outſhine their Neighbours, by adding a gliſtring & falſe Light to their native Luſtre, borrowed from Ignorance & Impoſture; and which upon the firſt attentive view of any judicious Perſon, not only diſappears, but leaves a ſort of miſty doubtfulneſs, upon what was before apparent, granted, & reſpected: as in the Caſe before us of Venables & his Dragon. Which I ſhall endeavour to match by another Dragon-quelling Story, which is too groſs to need any Confutation. I find it in the MS. No. 2118. at fol. 39. and it is in the words following: "Sir Jo. Conyers de Stockburne Knt. whoe ſlew the monſtrous venom'd, & poyſon'd Wiverne, Aſk, (Aſp?) or Worme, which overthrew & devour'd many People in Fight. For the Scent of the Poyſon was ſo ſtrong, that noe Perſon was able to abide it. Yet he (by the Providence of God) overthrew it; and lyes buried at Stockburne, before the Conqueſt. But before he did enterpriſe it (haueing but one Child) he went to Church in compleate Armour; and offer'd up his Sonne to the Holy Ghoſt. Which Monument is yet to ſee; and the place where the Serpent lay, is called Grayſtone."—Thus, in the ſame MS. at fol. 34. the Family of Welby is ſaid to have been derived from "Jo: dñs Cayſton alias Welby, who took part with Iptney Earle de Reilvoir contra Willelmum Conq. anno Domini 1066."—Thus in the Narrative Pedegree of Hamden of Hamden, (to be found in the Viſitation-books of Buckinghamſhire) I find theſe words at the beginning, "hit was ſoe that there was a Commiſſion at Hampden, directed to Hampden as a Commiſſioner, to helpe to putt out the Danys"—Thus, the Family of Aſhburnham derive themſelves from one Bertram de Aſhburnham, who they pretend to have been King Harold's General of the Horſe, againſt William the Conqueror; and cauſed a Print, as of his Effigies, to be inſerted into Blome's Edition of Gwyllim's Diſplay of Heraldry, which came out A. D. 16.. where this valiant Bertram is repreſented in Armor, with a Scarf upon it, and a ſort of Collar-Band; all as uſually worn in the Reign of K. Charles the Firſt. I could mention ſeveral other Pedegrees remarkable in this way, (without examining into the Roll of Battel-Abbey) but think what is now remarked, may ſuffice.

15. Original Letter of George Hyde to the third Randle Holme, concerning his own Family & that of Venables. 36.

16. Some Deſcents noted to be falſe, and to have been made by one Sankey a Contriver of Falſe Pedegrees; who, at length, fled into Portugal. 39. 39. b. 43. b.

The Whitſun playes were playd openly in pageants by the Cittizens of Cheſter in the Whitſun Weeke. perfixed this Title to the whole, "Seuerall Letters from the Citty of Cheſter & from the Lords; Gentry, &c: to them dureing the Warrs betwixt the King & Parliament, 1641: 1642: &c." They are;

1. His Majeſties Letter to the Maior & Aldermen of Cheſter; given, at Oxford, 7 November 1643, being ſigned by His Majeſty, & counter-ſigned by the Lord George Digbye. At the begining without a Number:

Hereby, he gave them, or any foure or more of them (the ſecond Randle Holme then Maior being of the Quorum) full Power & Authority, from time to time to ſeaſe & take the Lands & Hereditaments, as alſo the Goods & Chattells of Sir William Bereretон & William Jolly, and all others in actuall Rebellion againſt him; or adhering or contributing to the Rebells, within the County of the Citty of Cheſter. or elſewhere in Cheſhire; within Five Miles of the ſaid Citty; and all Arrearages of Rents due for the ſame Lands. As alſoe to receive all ſuch Summes of Money as are due to Citizens of London as are Rebells, or to others in Rebellion; or adhering or contributing to the Rebells. All which Moneys they were required to diſpoſe & diſtribute to & for the maintainance of his Garriſon in the Citty and Caſtle of Cheſter; and likewiſe towards the Entertainment of Sir Abraham Shipman Knight, Commander there.

2. Original Letter of the Lord Digby (as it ſeemes; for his Name is not ſubſcribed) to the ſame Mr. Holme, Maior of Cheſter, dated from Oxford; 9 November 1643.

Shewing that the Kings entruſting them with the whole diſpoſing of the Eſtates of diſaffected Perſons; was a thing of ſo much conſequence, that if it were well huſbanded, it would very farre exceede the ordinary Pay & Charges of the Garriſon. And that His Majeſty had ſaid that he (Mr. Holme) who was Treaſurer ſo well for the City laſt Yeare; muſt needs be a good Treaſurer for him & the City this yeare.

That, upon the approach of the Rebells, he had giuen Order to Sir Abraham Shipman to command in Chief there. That for their relief, he had deſigned conſiderable & preſent force, which he hoped would be tymly with them from ſeuerall parts; not doubting but that they would take Courſe by all waies to defend the Citty; and that their owne Obſervation had taught them that it had bin coſtly & diſadvantagious to thoſe Cities, who hauing bin loſt, haue (vppon neceſſity of the Place) bin regained by him.

4. Original Letter of James Butler Earle of Ormonde, & Lord Lieutenant of Ireland: given at the Caſtle of Dublin, the 3d of February 1643, to the ſame Maior of Cheſter. 1.

Complaining of the heavy Burden lying upon the Citizens by the Free-billeting of 1000 Souldiers upon them. That the Nobility, Gentry, & Clergy, utterly refuſe to contribute toward the maintainance of the Garriſon; that the Iriſh Strangers are excuſed; that the meaner Sort being now grown unable; and the forfeited Eſtates producing little; the burden lay upon the remaining Citizens, who likewiſe would be ſoon undone. That as to the Commiſſioners, ſome utterly refuſed to act; others others were abſent: Mr. Maior ſick; and the daily Execution of the Commiſſion devolved upon four of them, who therefore were obliged to neglect their own Affairs. For which reaſon, the Cittizens deſired to be eaſed as to the free Quartering of Souldiers upon them; and that a new Commiſſion might be iſſued out, and a greater Number of Commiſſioners appointed.

It may be observed that the said Mr. Holme hath not only added much fresh matter upon the vacant leaves or places of this White book, but hath also pasted to, or inserted other Papers between divers of the Leaves of it: among which I shall mention those only, which I take to be of the more material, vizt.

An Heraldical Book in folio, almost wholly written & tricked by the third Randle Holme, who on the back hath entituled it "Cheshire Monuments." Indeed here is a large Collection of Armes, Epitaphs, and other Inscriptions found in Cheshire, many of which may now be lost & perished. Part of these Mr. Holme copied from the Books of Mr. Sampson Erdeswike & others; the rest he added from his own eie-sight, as occasions offered. I shall say no further of it, than that it contains,

1. His Observation or Division of Tombs into sundry Ranks or Classes; taken from the Cutts of them in printed books, such as Dugdales Warwickshire, & St. Pauls, Thoroton's Nottingham-shire, Wright's Rutlandshire, &c. within the first Cover.

2. His Table or List of the severall Churches, which have afforded notes to this Collection. At the beginning.

An Heraldical Book in folio, written by divers hands, and (by the third Randle Holme) on the back entituled, "Pedegrees:" wherein I find,

1. An Alphabetical Table to the Pedegrees entred within this book; made anno 1669. At the beginning.

This Alphabet would have been better, if it had taken in all the Surnames of Families mentioned herein; thus, in fol. 410. b. I find mention of Sir Robert de Harley, anno 17 Edw. III. and of Malculin de Harley, anno 29 of the same Reign, both being witnesses; yet the name of this noble Family is not in the Table abovementioned.

Then follows,

2. The

Num. 2152—2154.

2. The Names of the Heads of many Welſh Families, with their Armes in blaſou; with a ſhorr acc ount of their Deſcendants, and where they have ſettled; as in other Books of this ſort. 260.

Intermingled with theſe, and alſo ſucceeding them, I find,

3. The Collection of Pedegrees mentioned before, being of Families both Welſh & Engliſh, though ſeeming to have been written by a Welſh-man. As to thoſe of Engliſh Families, they are principally of Herefordſhire & Shropſhire; with a ſprinkling of others in Worceſterſhire, Cheſhire, & Staffordſhire all jumbled together. 260. b.

Among theſe are ſome Church-notes; and a few Copies or Extracts from old Deeds.

4. Among theſe Pedegrees, namely at fol. 340. I find a note relating to natural Hiſtory, & not to Heraldry. It is a ſhort Account of a Tree that grew in Aſhperton-Parke in the County of Hereford; which was 60 foot before it had any Bough. Then one Bough grew out ſo longe that a man that ſtood vpon the Ground might touch the end of it with his hande. Then it was fifteene Foot & halfe before it had any more Boughes. The body was 3 Fadomes in compaſs, and it grew very upright, &c.

The Pedegrees are ſucceeded by

5. The ſaid Randle Holme's Alphabetical Table to the Coates of the cheife Houſes in Wales, as contained in this Booke; which he made anno 1669. 413. b.

6. Another Table directing to the Coates & Creſts. At the end.

An Heraldical Book in folio, written (for the far greater part) by the ſecond Randle Holme; and by his ſon, on the out-ſide thus entituled, "Pedegrees of ſeueral Places." Herein I find,

1. The third Randle Holme's Alphabetical Table directing to the ſaid Pedegrees. At the beginning.

2. The Collection itſelf, which is large & numerous, and both adorned & juſtified with tricks of Armes & Seals many Extracts from old Deeds & other Writings, and ſome Church notes. Moreover, it may be obſerved, that the third Randle hath enriched the ſame with many Additions, Emendations, & Continuations; in ſome places, down to the year 1703. 13.

In this Collection of Pedegrees, which although it be mixed, yet chiefly relates to Cheſhire-Families, I take notice of

3. Confirmation of Coate & Creſt to William Allen of Brudley in Com. Ceſtr. by Rich, St. George Norroy, dat. the 22 day of Auguſt 1613. 26.

4. Original Letter of Thom. Heape an Armes-painter, to the third Randle Holme as Deputy to Norroy, dat. 15 Oct. 1660. 49. A.

Offering his Service, to act under him within the Hundreds of Salford, Derby, & Blakeburne in Lancaſhire.

5. A Deſcent of Broſter, ſett down by Sir William Dugdale, A. D. 1663. 55. c.

6. Grant of a Creſt to Sir George Beverley Kt. by Daniel Molyneux Ulſter Kinge of Armes of Ireland. dat. 20 of January, anno 2 R. Jacobi 1. 83. b.

Here is a pretty diſtinct Trick of Ulſter's Seal of Office.

7. Grant of a Creſt to John Cranach Gent. by Rich. St. George Eſq; Norroy. dat 22 Auguſt 1626. 124. b.

8. The third Randle Holmes Alphabetical Table of the Names of Places mentioned in the preceding Collection. At the end.

A Book in folio, written by different hands, upon the outſide of which, the third Randle Holme hath put this erroneous Title: "Creation of Nobility; Robert Cooke, Glover Somerſett, & Jacob Chaloner Authores," &c. In it find,

Num. 2054.

1. A Coppey of Robert Cooke al's Clarencyeux Roy de Armes his Booke. 1.

This is that which is called Cookes Baronage. The preſent Copie is but indifferently written, & the Armes as indifferently painted; but yet, over & above, emblaſoned. The ſecond Randle Holme hath corrected or noted it in many places; and perhaps the whole Tract may have been written by him when he was a lad or youth.

Then follow,

2. Creations of Dukes from temp. R. Edwardi III. and of Marquiſes from Rich. II. Earls from the time of William the Conqueror; Viſcounts a tempore Regis Johannis; and Barons from the time of the ſaid Conqueror; with their Armes in Blaſon. 59.

This Tract may be of the hand-writing of Thomas Chaloner, who was Ulſter King of Armes.

3. His Notes about K. William the Conqueror; Sir Geoffroy Charney & Sir Amerye de Pavie; with the Armes in Blaſon of the Douglas of Scotland. 116.

4. His breeſſe Noats out of Polichronicon, touching our Nobility. 117.

5. His Succeſſion of Engliſh Earls, according to their Counties, partly in alphabetical Order; written A. D. 1585. 127.

29. The Kings Letter to the Lord Maior of Yorke. Given, 2 July 1637. 16.

Prynne, when he was at Cheſter (who was juſtly cenſured for a ſchiſmatical perſon) but ſaw him only to obſerve the perſon of him; and others who ſaw him not at all; to the great diſquiet and expence of many, and to the ſubverſion & vndoinge of others.

31. Order of the King & Council, made the 6th of June 1636. ibid.

Commanding the Lord Maior & Citizens of Yorke to ſurrender up their new Charter; by pretence whereof they excluded the Deane & Chapter there from many antient privileges, and prejudiced many of his Majeſties tenants in order to the paſſing of another Charter to them, whereby what might be fitt ſhould be granted to them.

32. Another, made 13 March 1636. 17.

Upon hearing the Cauſe between the City of Wincheſter, & the Dean & Chapter there, it was reſolved by his Majeſty, that the Cathedral Church, the Biſhops Palace at Wolveſey, the Church-yard, and the Cloſe of the ſaid Church, are & ought to be exempted from all Juriſdiction, Power, & Authority of the ſaid Citty: and the Maior to be reſtrayned from carrying up his Regalia in the Choir or any other part of the Cathedral Church; but to have leave to beare thoſe Enſignes of Authority in any part of the Precinctes or Lyberties therof.

Randle Holme obſerves thus, 'This was ſent for the Maior of Cheſter to peruſe & follow; but to no purpoſe: for our privileges are far beyond theirs. For we do, as of old, aſſeſs the Clergy; and haue power to come with our ſword vpright before the Maior in any part of the Church.'

Upon the full hearing which their Cauſes had before the King & Councill, where they found ſo many & great Enemies, that had not his Majeſties moſt gratious Favour been toward the City, and the Lord Keeper & Privie Seale proved its nole & faſt-Friends, all had been loſt. That the matter of the Biſhop & Deane & Chapter of Cheſter, whether they ſhould be aſſeſſed as belonging to the County-Palatine, or to the County of the City, is to be referred to the hearing of the Earle of Derby and two Judges. That the Cauſe touching the Gloverſtone is loſt; it now being to be noe parte of the County of the Cittie. A Book in ſmall folio, being all upon the Subject of Heraldry, as containing,

1. A large Collection of Funeral-Certificates; being an original Book, begun by the firſt Randle Holme in the Year 1616. and carried on (but not without ſeveral Interruptions) by his Son and Grandſon to A. D. 1680. The Intent of the Certificates was to preſerve the Memory of the Name & Family of every Perſon who bore Armes within the Limits of their Deputation, viz. Cheſhire, Lancaſhire, & North-Wales; the time of their Deceaſe, their Matches, Poſterity, &c. A matter of very good Uſe; undertaken by direction from the Office of Armes, and fit to be for ever continued. But how it happened I know not, (perhaps by the unwillingneſs of people to pay a ſmall Fee, when their own Buſineſs is tranſacting, or by negligence, or both) very many of the Armes are not painted with Colors, but only tricked with the Pen, others only traced with Lead, and many wholly omitted. In many Certificates, likewiſe, the Original Hands of thoſe Relations who gave the Information touching their reſpective Families, have not been putt; and ſeveral others are plainly Copies: yet this Collection is valuable, and fitt to be conſulted, upon occaſion. 1.

Herein I find.

2. The Order of Mr. Hugh Leighs Funerall; by the ſecond Randle Holme. 125. b.
3. The Order of the Funerall of Humphrey Chetam of Cleyton, Eſq; by the ſame. 126.

This Collection of Certificates is ſucceeded by ſome Papers moſtly written upon certain ſquabbles happening between ſome Cheſter-Gentry, or their haughty Wives, about taking place one of another; being

4. The Anſwer of Sir William Segar Garter to a Queſtion propounded touching the point of Precedency between an Alderman of Cheſter, in Cheſter, and a private Gentleman A. D. 1619. 137.

Here Mr. Garter gives his Opinion for the Aldermen, but not for their Wives.

Num. 2180.

5. Opinion of Sir Richard St. George Norroy, in the ſame Affair; dated 18 July 1619. 137. b.

That Mr. Roger Hurleſton had been too forward in affronting Alderman William Gamull.

6. His Opinion about their Wives taking place dated the 21 of February 1619. 138.

Clearly for Mrs. Hurleſton in reſpect of her Husbands Gentility.

7. An Order of both the Kings abovementioned: given the 29th of May 1620. 138. b.

That Mr. Hurleſton & all Gentlemen of his Ranke ſhould, within the City, give place to an Alderman: and that Mr. Gamull having proved his Pedegree for thirteen Deſcents, and ſhewed a Deed of the time of K. Edward II. ſealed by his Auncеſter with a Seale of Armes of the ſame Coate, which now he beareth; and his Brother and himſelf enjoying the ſame Lands which their paternal Anceſtors enjoyed in the tyme of K. Henry III. Mr. Hurleſton ſhould produce his Pedegree and Proofes, or they would give Mr. Gamull precedency of Gentry before him.

8. The ſaid Norroy's Order to Mr. Hurleſton, to make no further Queſtion or Conteſtation in that matter; he having omitted the making proof of his Pedegree, dated the 21 of Auguſt 1620. 139.

About ſerving him & others with Monitions from the Earl Marſhalls Court for not making the Certificate aboveſaid.

Here is alſo a printed Black Ticket, iſſued upon ſuch Occaſions.

12. Original Letter of Sir Richard St. George Norroy, to the firſt Randle Holme, dated the 31 July 1619. 143.

Importing, that he had receaued Mr. Gamulls kind token, without half a hundreth Waight of Cheſhire Cheſes. That as to the Queſtion between him & Mr. Hurleſton, he had given his Opinion, under his hand to Sir Thomas Savage. But concerning Aldermen & Juſtice of Peaces Wifes, he could ſay no more but that Offices & Places of Majeſtracy can give no place to their Wiues. A thin Book in folio, at the beginning whereof, I read this following Title. "The maner and method to true Mortification: by the godly Father Henry Harp; as F. William Peryn Bachelour in Divinity ſayeth in his Spirituall Exerciſes & Ghoſtly Meditations."

I am affraid that Father Peryn is ſomewhat out in his conjecture: 1. Becauſe Mr. Wharton (in Append. ad Cavæi Hiſt. Litt. pag. 149.) ſhews that Henry Harph the Franciſcan (born at Herp or Erp in Brabant) died A. D. 1478. without mentioning this Treatiſe among his other Works. 2. The Preface alludes to Queen Elizabeth more than once, eſpecially in pag. 2, where are theſe Words,—"I doubt nothing her departure; but I doubt that God will not lett England have her ſo long as ſhe is worthey to raigne. And yett this farr I dare ſay, that ſhe ſhe hath no farther Charter of her Life then had her noble Father, her noble Brother, her noble Siſter."—— 3. This Author was no Roman Catholic; for he impugnes the Doctrines of that Church in ſeveral places of his Work; one of which I find at 42. a. toward the bottom of which page, & in the next, I obſerve theſe Words,—" Inſomoche, that ſom thinck to be browghte to the perfyghte medytacyon & memoryalle of Chryſt by having hym pictoured, graven, or paynted with the moſt bewtyfulle phiſnomye that kan be devyſed. Sum thincke ytt avauncethe moche ther Contemplacyone to have Chryſt pictured or paynted in the moſt pituos faſchyon that kan be. Som agayne thincke ytt reyſithe vp ther mynds more depely in knowlage of God, to have the Trinitie pictured or paynted with 3 faces in oon. Theis men that ſett ther affects & pleaſur vpon theis forſayde things ſpende moche labur in waſt: for they might ſuerlye ſee Chryſt in the acts of his lyſſe, in hes gloryous words, in hes blyſſed converſation, by reding, & conſydering the holie Goſpells," &c.

Theſe are,

1. A Letter written by ſome of the Lords of the Councell to the King, A. D. 1608. touching meanes to advance the Kings revenues by vnvſuall meanes; ſo as the King would take the Act vppon himſelfe, & be their protection. 2.

This looking ſomewhat extraordinary, I ſoon run this Letter over, & perceive that theſe noble Lords acting by ſpeciall Commiſſion from his Majeſty (who by his continual & exceſſive Bounties to every begging Courtier, had run himſelf into great Debts & Want) had looked into every Branch of his Revenue that yet remained; & deliberated upon means of improving the ſame, ſo that his Dignity & Family might be kept & maintained in their due ſplendor. Yet, in the mean time, they inſinuate their Adviſe, that he would hold his too bounteous hand for the preſent.

12. The Cauſe betweene the Maſter of the Rolls, & the Six Clerks. 157.

Subjects general Grievance: for which they were found fruitie by the Commiſſioners, & complained of in Starre-Chamber. 18. A Recital of the Cæleſtiall Apparitions of this preſent Trigon, now in being: vizt. A. D. 1619. 192.

Here the Author ſeems to be a German Calviniſt, deſcribes, Aſtronomically, the Appearance of the new Star, A. D. 1604. together with the ſeveral Comets which appeared afterward, to that great one in A. D. 1618. The Signification of all which he largely deſcribes as an Aſtrologer; and venting his Notions & Wiſhes as Certainties and Prophecies from God: he ſtands guilty of many falſities; and theſe his idle Dreams are now worthy of no more regard than to be heeded as Land-marks, & cautions to deterre others from attempting to ſett themſelves up as privy to the ſecret Councils of the moſt High.

2. Another Collection of Armes, mixed; nine in a page. 187.

As to theſe Armes, I know not well what to ſay. Some of them ſeem to have been taken from Viſitation-books of Counties, & others from Grants of the Kings of Armes, but here they are; and, ſome of them ſuch as, perhaps, may not eaſily be found elſewhere.

3. Part of an Alphabetical Table to theſe Armes; ending after the Letter E. 255. b.

This Table ſhould be completed; & others made or finiſhed, for other good Heraldical MSS. in this noble Library; but then by reaſon of the barbarous ſpelling uſed by Apprentices & other ignorant Perſons, who have been ſett upon works of this kind, which require much Experience, Care, & Accuracy: they ought all, (beforehand) to be over-looked, & corrected with Judgement.

It would not have been troubleſome for me to have putt down ſome of the more remarkable Caſes at ſufficient length: but when I conſidered that the Collector, who amaſſed theſe Proceedings together, looked not upon them as an Hiſtorian, but intended only to make uſe of them occaſionally as Precedents; & hath therefore, almoſt wholly omitted the Names of Perſons & Places; or only mentioned them by their initial Letters: I thought it better to omitt them; eſpecially ſince there is

A Book in folio, written by divers hands ; that is, either by the command, or by the hand of John Robarts Earl of Radnor, Lord Privy Seal, &c. wherein are contained, Theſe Materials are not taken juſt as they lay in the Journal, but are putt ſomewhat regularly together ; and his Lordſhip hath often added his own Notes or Obſervations ; which, perhaps, may be met with no where elſe.

That this Collection was not made by his Lordſhips Father Richard Robarts Baron of Truro, who ſided with the Parliament (& from whom to them is a Letter, at fol. 66. b.) appears by the Lord Privy Seals hand (which is well known in this Library) appearing in many places of this Book : but that it was done after the Reſtauration,

"Earl Northumberland, who was the great Inſtrument of the New Modell, & compli'd wholly with the Independant party, about this Time : and who, very honorably, after the ſaid Houſe of Peers was ſhutt-up with a Padlock, by the Republicans ; & when the Lord Robarts was ſent for out of Cornwall, by Meſſengers from them, and by that Power was confined to the County of Eſſex : the ſaid Earl of Northumberland did (in open terms) at the Chancery-bar, voluntarily come & take the Commonwealth-Engagement, in the Sight of all the People, viz^t. 'I will be true & faithfull to the Commonwealth of England, without a King & Houſe of Lords.' Yet, upon the Reſtitution of his Majeſty, this Earle was made a Privy Councellour, & Lord Lieutenant of the Countys of Suſſex & Northumberland ; whether for thoſe honorable Atchievements, or for what other Cauſe, men may inquire."

A Book in folio, being an antient Copy of a Treatiſe thus entituled,

"The Monarchie of Man: a Treatiſe Philoſophicall & Morall; wherein ſome Queſtions of the Politicks are obviouſly diſcuſt: by Sir John Elliot K^t. Priſoner in the Tower."

This Gentleman not having his ambitious Demands gratified to the full, turned to be a moſt bitter & implacable Enemy to his Sovereign K. Charles 1. againſt whom this work ſeems to be moſt eſpecially written. Thus, in his Paragraph (pag. 31.) "Whether Lawes have an Influence upon Princes?" he ſays it is a "Queſtion involved in Difficulties, as lying within that Miſterie, the Prerogative of Kings: Which is a Point ſo tender, as it will hardly bear a mention. We may not therefore handle it with any roughneſſe, leaſt it reflect ſome new Beame of Terrour on our Selves, but with what Caution we may, yet without prejudice to Trueth—ſafely render the Opinion which we have, without Suſpect of Flattery." And in the next Page, thus: "For theſe Lawes & Priviledges (which wee ſhall joyne together, makeing but one joynt ſubject of this queſtion) the Diſcuſſion will be eaſier, if we turn our Diſquiſition, & thus ſtate it; What Power the King has upon them? Wherein there is ſuch a Confluence of Flatterie, conduceing to our Prejudice; ſuch Labour to make a Monarchie vnlimited, an Abſoluteneſs of Government without Rule; ſoe much Affection, or Corruption rather, ſpecified; ſuch Diſtorſion & Perverſion of Authorities to that end; Learning made proſtitute to Fallacie; Religion turn'd to Pollicie; Heaven brought down to Earth; Light transform'd to darkneſs; as to attempt againſt it is now to row againſt the Tide, againſt the Streame and Current of theſe Tymes to ſeeke a Paſſage vnto Trueth." I omitt what is written further, in pag. 38. &c.

This Sir John Elliot, as I have heard, in Confederacy with Sir Henry Vane, Mr. Hamden, Mr. Pym, & another; out of private Malice & Reuenge, did contrive the Civil War before the calling of that Long Parliament; and by the Concurrence of Men as deſperately wicked as themſelves, gained their point.

An Heraldical Book in folio, written & tricked by ſome old Painter-Stainer, in the Reign of K. James 1. wherein is contained,

1. A numerous Collection of Armes (with many of their Creſts) borne by our Nobles & Gentry of England & Wales, putt down promiſcuouſly.

It may be noted, that although the Collectors deſign was to amaſs together a great Number of Armes, as he could come by them, without any Order: yet he that will look into this Book will eaſily find ſome of them diſpoſed together according to their Charges, as by way of Ordinary, others putt together whoſe Owners Names begin with the ſame Letter, as an Alphabet; Others, borne by perſons of the ſame, or a like Name; & others borne by thoſe who lived together in the ſame Community. Of this laſt kind, an Inſtance may be ſeen in fol. 35. where you have the Armes of Mr. Camden, Ralf Broke or Brokeſmouth, & of ſeveral other Officers then living.

Num. 2229, 2230.

2. At the beginning & end is an Alphabetical Table to the Armes abovementioned, but imperfect; for the firſt Letter A is wanting.

2230.

An Heraldical Book in folio, conſiſting of many little Tracts now bound together in the following Order.

1. Armes of Buckinghamſhire Families, taken out of an old Viſitation. 1.

2. Armes, with ſome Diſcents; taken from the Viſitation of this County. A. D. 1634. 2.

3. Armes, with ſome Deſcents, taken from the Viſitation of Cambridgeſhire. A. D. 1619. 10.

4. Armes of Cheſhire-Families etched in Copper Plates; perhaps by Daniel King. 18.

Note, the firſt Leaf being wanting; thoſe Armes are ſupplied by Pen & Ink.

5. Many Cheſhire-Armes, with ſome Deſcents, from the Viſitation of A. D. 1580. 28.

6. Armes of the Corniſh Families. 36.

7. Armes of Derbyſhire Families taken from the Viſitations of A. D. 1569, & 1663. 46.

8. Armes, with ſome Deſcents, of Devonſhire Families, taken from the Viſitation of A.D. 1564. 54. & 65.

9. More Devonſhire-Armes & Deſcents; taken from another Book. 59.

10. Armes of Dorſet-ſhire Families, with ſome Deſcents, taken (as this Collector, Mr. Kimbell the Armes Painter, or whoſoever he was, ſays) from the Viſitation of this County, made by Robert Treſwell Blew Mantell: He ſhould have ſaid by Henry St. George Richmond, & Sampſon Lennard Blue-mantell: i. e. A. D. 1623. 70.

11. Armes, with ſome Diſcents entred Narratively (as all thoſe above-mentioned are) of the Gentry inhabiting within the County of Durham, as they were regiſtered at the Viſitation thereof, taken A. D. 1615. 79.

Herein I find,

12. A Note of ſuch Perſons (i. e. a Liſt of their Names) as were Diſclaymed at that Viſitation. 88.

13. Armes of Ralph Carr Gent. as they were entred at New-caſtle upon Tine, 25 Auguſt, 1666. in the Viſitation of the County of Northumberland, by William Dugdale Norroy. 91.

14. Armes of Glouceſterſhire Families (with ſome Deſcents) as they were entred at the Viſitation of this County, taken A. D. 1569. 92.

15. Armes, with ſome Deſcents, of Hampſhire Families, as they were regiſtered at the Viſitation of this County, taken A. D. 1575. 103.

16. Armes, with ſome Deſcents, of Herefordſhire-Families; ſeeming to have been extracted from the Viſitation-book of this County, as the ſame was taken A. D. 1634. 110.

17. Armes & Deſcents of Kentiſh Families, ſeeming to be chiefly taken from the Viſitation of A. D. 1619. yet ſome are continued to A. D. 1663. when another Viſitation was begun by Sir Edw. Byſshe. Clarenc^x. 122.

18. Fragment of an Alphabet of Kentiſh Armes in Trick. 139. b.

19. Fragment of an Alphabet of Kentiſh Armes in Blaſon; by another hand. 140.

20. Armes, with ſome Deſcents, extracted from a Viſitation of London; perhaps that of A. D. 1633. 146.

21. Armes, with Deſcents of Norfolk Families ſaid to be extracted from a Viſitation of this County taken A. D. 1594. when Dr. Parkhurſt was (as the Writer thought) Biſhop of Norwich. 154.

This is but random talk. I do not find that there was any Viſitation of this County, in A. D. 1594. As for Bp. Parkhurſt, he died long before; namely in A. D. 1575; but was Biſhop of that Dioceſe, when Clarencieux Hervey viſited this County. Probably therefore the Viſitation meant, might be that taken in or about the Year 1589. by Robert Cooke Clarencieux.

Num. 2230—2232.

22. Armes of Norfolk Families taken from an old Book concerning that County. 167.

23. Armes of Northamptonſhire Families, copied A. D. 1621. probably from the Viſitation made by Auguſtin Vincent Rouge Roſe, A. D. 1618. 169. 183.

24. Alphabet in Blaſon of Northamptonſhire Families; copied from a book written by Mr. Gough the Painter-Stayner. 177. b.

25. Armes of ſome old Families reſiding in that County; taken out of an ould Viſitation of Com. Northampton. 187.

26. Armes, with ſome Deſcents of Somerſetſhire Families; from that Counties Viſitation, taken A. D. 1573. 188.

27. Armes taken from an ould Viſitation, of Suffolk. 197.

28. Armes, with ſome Deſcents, extracted from the Viſitation of Suffolk, taken A. D. 1561. 196. 198.

29. Armes, with ſome Deſcents, extracted from the Viſitation of Warwickſhire, made A D. 1619. 207.

30. Armes, with Deſcents, extracted from the Viſitation of Wiltſhire, made A D. 1565. and, perhaps augmented from that of A. D 1623. 220.

31. Armes of Wiltſhire Families, tricked within printed Escocheons. 231.

32. Armes, with ſome Deſcents, of Worceſterſhire Families; taken from the Viſitation-book of A. D. 1569. 233.

33. Armes, with ſome Deſcents, of Yorkſhire Families; extracted from the Viſitation book of that County, made A. D. 1584. & 1585. 239. 258.

Herein I likewiſe find,

34. Nomina et Arma illorum Equitum de Comitatu Eboracenſi, qui cum Rege Edwardo I. ſtipendia merebant in Scotia, et alibi. 252.

35. Armes found in Yorkſhire Churches & Houſes. 255. b.

It may be obſerved that the moſt part of the Armes & Deſcents now contained in this Volume, are very haſtily tricked & ſett down, for the Collectors own Uſe; his Originals being probably borrowed, & ſoon to be reſtored.

as may be ſeen in Dr. Hydes Catal. Libb. Bibl. Bodl. under the Title HISPANIA. Mine old Acquaintance Mr. Anthony a'Wood hath not aſcribed it to Sir Henry, yet owns that Sir Henry wrote more things than he accounts for. My notion of Sir Henrys being the Author, proceeds from the ſimilitude of a few Circumſtances, as of his long Experience in State Affairs, & by comparing ſome Expreſſions of the 2d Paragraph in pag. 38. with his Letter at the beginning of the book.

Was this Treatiſe compoſed by Sir Henry Wotton? to Charles Prince of Wales. 38.

30. A Letter to K. James from Francis Phelipps Eſq; ſueing for his Brothers (Sir Robert Phelipps) Libertie out of the Tower. 69.

But it appears alſo, that Sir Robert & this Writer had ſpoken words againſt his Majeſty; & that their father died in the Kings diſpleaſure.

A Book in folio, conſiſting of ſundry Treatiſes relating to Parliamentary Affairs, now bound up together, in the following order.

1. A Treatiſe entituled "Notes of the Orders, Proceedings, Puniſhments, & Priuiledges of the Lower-Houſe of Parliament." 1.

As to the Author, I cannot find him out for certain, although I have taken ſome pains to inform myſelf concerning him; who makes no further diſcovery of himſelf, than in fol. 7. where I read theſe words, "Three of the Privie Councell (whereof Sir Edward Rogers the Comptroller was one) deliuered to the howſe her Majeſties expreſs Commandement, that they ſhould proceed noe farther with their Suite; which was (in a ſorte) moved to be reiterated, by a Speeche of this Writer W. L.——

Num. 2234.

Might not this W. L. be William Lambard Recorder of London? The freſheſt Inſtance or Precedent given by this Writer, is anno 29 Eliz. when (if I remember rightly) Mr. Lambard was alive.

2. Advice to the Members of the Lower Houſe of Parliament; directed to the Authors noble Friends of that Houſe: probably that which ſat in 1628. 18.

As to the Author of this Tract, he ſeemeth in ſeveral points to blame the Adminiſtration both of King Charles, & of his father, in ſeveral points; and is a profeſſed Enemy to the then Duke of Buckingham; he ſaith at the beginning, that he had miſſed of his Election to that Parliament, although he had ſerved in ſundry other Parliaments; that he was no military man. fol. 32. b. complains, fol. 43. amongſt other things, of Judges being removed; and is reſolved to diſtreſs the Court, as far as in him lies. Qu. whether this Tract may be attributed to Sir Edward Coke?

3. A true Relation of everie Daies Proceedings in the Parliament, ſince the beginninge thereof, beeinge the 20th of January 1628. 47.

Herein is alſo contained, a Supplication of the Lords Spiritual & Temporal to his Majeſtie, upon this point, that divers of the naturall borne Subjects of this Kingdome, where both themſelves & their Families do reſide; have of late beene created, ſome Barons, ſome Viſcounts & ſome Earles, within his Kingdomes of Scotland & Ireland; & doe, by reaſon thereof, clame as of Right, to take place & have Precedencie of the Peeres & Nobilitie of England, & theire Children, within this Realme.

4. Sir Dudley Diggs his Introduction to the Conference between both Houſes upon the point of the Liberty of the perſon of the Subject. 105.

5. The Speech and Argument of Mr. John Selden, before a Committee of both Houſes, at the firſt conference with the Lords, out of Prëſidents of Records, & Reſolutions of Judges, in former tymes; touchinge the Libertie of the Perſon of euerie Freeman. 131.

6. The Subſtance of the Objections made by Mr. Attorney General, before a Committee of both Howſes, to that Argument; and the Anſweares & Replies then preſently made by the Houſe of Commons to thoſe Objections. 133. b.

A Book in folio, conſiſting moſtly of blank Paper; but wherein are contained,

1. A Letter from K. Charles II. to the then Duke of York his brother: dat. 28 Febr. 1678-9. 1.

Deſiring him to abſent himſelf for ſome tyme beyond Sea.

2. A Journal of the Cominons Houſe of Parliament, or an Abſtract from it, from its meeting the 7th of March, A. D. 1678-9. to the Prorogation thereof on the 27th of May 1679. 2.

I ſuppoſe this to have been written only for private Uſe.

2237.

A Book in folio, haſtily written in a bad hand; wherein are contained,

Extracts from the Journals of the Houſe of Peers, from the ſecond of May 1648. to the ſixth of February 1648-9.

Whether the original Journal be yet remaining, I know not; but I perceive that herein is an account of the Treaty made with the King at Newport in the Iſle of Wight, which I believe had never yet been publiſhed; beſides many other remarkable matters.

This book ſeems to have been written for the uſe of John Robarts Earl of Radnor, & Lord Privy Seal to K. Charles II, which Noble Lord hath putt down certain Notes therein, eſpecially at the end, with his own hand.

A Book in folio, for the greateſt part, written by him who wrote moſt of that laſt deſcribed; & containing,

Extracts from the Journal of the Lords Houſe of Parliament from the 10th of July 1646. to the 25th (or 28th) of April, A. D. 1648. both incluſive. This book likewiſe belonged to the above-mentioned Earl of Radnor, Lord Privy Seal; and gives ſundry private Remarks & Obſervations; eſpecially, thoſe relating to, & in vindication of his Father the Lord Robarts, written & inſerted by ſeveral hands: ſome of them (as it ſeems to me) by the Father, as others by the Son.

Codex chartaceus in folio, diverſis manibus ſcriptus; in quo continentur,

Irrotulationes Actorum in Viſibus Franci Plegij & Curiæ Baronis apud Ely Barton, à ſexto die Aprilis, A. D. 1619 uſque ad ſecundum diem Octobris, A. D. 1637. nempe temporibus Nicolai Felton, Johannis Buckeridge, & Franciſci White Epiſcoporum Elienſium.

2240.

A thin Book in folio; wherein I find,

1. The Names of Noble-men, having Eſtates within the County of Eſſex. 1. b.

2. Nomina Juſticiariorum Pacis in Comitatu Eſſexiæ, circa A. D. 1633. 2.

3. Nomina Ballivorum Hundredorum & Libertatum infra Comitatum prædictum. 3.

4. Nomina Hundredorum infra Comitatum prædictum, 5.

5. The Names of the Free-holders, at that time, within the ſeveral Towns, Villages, & Hamlets belonging to the ſaid Hundreds; upon whoſe Lands Iſſues might be levied. 6.

This is the original Book: & hath received the proper Alterations & Amendments.

Num. 2241, 2242.

2241.

Another thin Book in folio; wherein are contained,

1. An account of the Induction of Peregin Bartye Lord Willoughby of Ereſbye, for the taking of his Place in the Upper Houſe of Parliament, the 16th daye of Januarye, A. D. 1580.

2. The Title of Richard Bartye Eſq; (Father to the Lord Peregrin above-mentioned) to the Stile of Lord Willughby of Willughbye and of Ereſbye, in the right of the Lady Katherin Duchels of Suffolk, his wife; debated before the Commiſſioners by her Majeſtie appointed to hear the ſame. 1. b.

Then follows, there is alſoe, in the end, added a Reſolution of certain Queſtions; although none of them were objected before the Commiſſioners.

Alſoe, it is not to be conceived that euery thing was ſo amply recited as here ſett downe; but onely the moſt material Arguments. (fol. 22. b.) being Anſweres to the Lord Latimers Reaſons.

It is not to be wondered at that Mr. Bartie was ſo modeſt as not to make the moſt of his Cauſe, if what I find fol. 22. b. was true; vizt.——"for the Cauſe why he deſired an hearing of his Right & Intereſt was ſpecially, to deliuer her Majeſtie from Error, that ſhee (by wrong Information had conceived) that there was noe ſuch Right: and partely to conſerue the Right to his Sonne (whom he oppoſed) and to averre the Clayme, though he vſed not the Stile of Dignitie."

However he concludes thus,——"there is therefore noething left to impugne it, but Wilfulnes, Malice or Ignorence; and to them, (becauſe, in theire nature, they are all infamous) I take Excepcon, and ſoe this may ſuffice for this matter."

A Book in folio written by the hand of Mr. John Bowyer the elder; and containing the following Pieces tranſlated by himſelf: vizt.

1. The Hiſtorie of the vnhappie Succeſſe of Philippa a Woman of Catanea, cheife Governeſſe of Naples; tranſlated (as it ſeems) from the French Edition of P. Matthieu: And corrected by another hand. 1.

This Matthieu owns that the Story is taken from the end of Boccas de Caſibus Virorum illuſtrium, who received the former part of it from two credible perſons, & was himſelf a witneſs of the Cataſtrophe of her Tragedy.

Matthieu further intimate, that he had ſeen an old French Manuſcript of this part of Boccaces Works. On this occaſion, I take leaue to add that in this noble Library, the ſaid Work appears not only in Latin, (which hath been printed ſeveral times) but alſo in old French; as likewiſe in old Engliſh, being tranſlated from the French, by Dan John Lidgate Monk of Bury-St. Edmund, by the command of Humfrey Duke of Glouceſter, into old Engliſh Verſe, which Tranſlation I do not remember that I have hitherto ſeen in Print. Lidgate calls this wretched Woman Phylipot. This Story, as related by P. Matthieu, has loſt nothing by him, being vaſtly longer than it is in Boccace; and enlarged from other Books, beſides his own Notes.

2. The Catholicke Statſman; or elſe, a Political Diſcörſe of the Confederacies of the moſte Chriſtian Kinge, againſte the forged accuſations of the enimies to his State. Dedicated to the Kinge by the Lorde of Ferrier. In Parigi. 27.

3. A Treatiſe of the Uſurpation of the King of Spaine ouer the Croune of France, ſince the Raigne of King Charles the 8th. With a Diſcours of the begining, continuing, declyninge, & leſſning of the Monarchie of France; the Reaſons & Pretenſes the Chriſtian King hath to the Right of the Empier: by Chriſtopher Balthaſard. 1605. 100.

This Tranſlation Mr. Bowyer inſcribes "To his moſte worthy worthy and beſt approued Nephew Sir Richard Anderſon Knight.

4. The Meetinge, in traueling into the othere World, of Monſig^r. Ludouico Seruino Attornie Generall to the Chriſtian Kinge Henry 4th. and of Padre Pietro Cottone a Jeſuite. 1626. 128.

5. A Diſcourſe of Father Giouanni Mariana a Jeſuit of Spaine, conſerning the greate Errors which be in the Jeſuits Forme of Gouerment. Tranſlated out of Spaniſh into French, and out of French into Italian. Printed at Bordeos, 1625. 134.

6. Of the Soueraigne Giuriſdiction of Kings ouer the Gouerment of the Church; againſt certaine poynts helde by the Biſhope of Angiers; in the Controuerſie betwen him & the Conuocation-houſe of the Cathedrall Church. 174.

7. A moſt humble Remonſtrance made by the Jeſuits to the Chriſtian Kinge & his Counſell. 252.

This is ſubſcribed by P. Cotton; and is written againſt the Univerſity of Paris, which had long and loudly declaimed againſt the Jeſuitical Doctrines.

8. The Anſwer of the Rectors, Deacons, & Scollers of the Vniuerſity of Paris, to that Remonſtrance. 253.

9. Abridgment of the Relation of the State of the Greate Duke of Toſcanie, as it ſtood in the time of Coſimo the ſecoũnd, the 20th of Aprill 1622. 254.

Much blank Paper remains at the end.

A Book in folio, looſely written by the Direction or Influence, or by the hand of John Robarts Earl of Radnor, ſometime Lord Privy Seal; ſeeming to contain many of his Notes & Obſervations upon the Rules, Uſages & Cuſtomes of our Engliſh Parliaments; among which, I ſhall briefly mention theſe which follow.

20. Of the Arraignment & Condemnation of George Duke of Clarence, in full Parliament; anno 18 Regis Edwardi IV. of which, noe Memoriall is to be found, in the Records of Parliament. 36.

It is added, But this way of Proceedinge, it ſeems diſpleaſed the Commons, in that the King ſhould inforce either Article or Teſtimony againſt the Delinquent, in a capitall Cauſe.

21. Whether the Lords in Parliament, can giue power to any Committee or Referees, to examine Witneſſes upon Oath? 37.

22. For what Cauſes a Peere of this Realme may be impriſoned, dureing the Sittinge of Parliament. 39.

This Article containeth the whole Proceedings in the Houſe of Peers, with relation to Thomas Howard Earl of Arundell & Surrey, who was impriſoned by the King for a perſonal Miſdemeanor.

23. Whether, upon an Impeachment of the Houſe of Commons, of Treaſon in generall, without alleadgeing any particular Treaſon: a Peer ſo impeached, ought to be committed? 56.

This is conſidered upon the Lord Chancellor Clarendon's Caſe, who was accuſed by the Commons 11 November 1667. of High Treaſon & High Crimes & Miſdemeanors, in generall: and here, likewiſe, moſt of the Proceedings in the Lords Houſe againſt his Lordſhip, are particularly related.

This Queſtion is not diſcuſſed; but only Paper left Blank, whereupon the Conſideration of it was to be entered.

25. An Order of the Houſe of Peers, made the 19th of June 1628, obliging the Muſcovia Company to pay-off their Creditors; and regulating certain of their Affairs, in Order thereunto. 71.

This was occaſioned by a generall Protection granted from the King & Councell to that Company, in reſpect of their being decayed by greate Loſſes, &c.

Though our Author was not the moſt learned Doctor of the Age wherein he lived, nor always happy in his Etymologies: yet as to this he may be excuſed, becauſe it is none of his own; but taken from the Interpretation of the Scriptural proper Names (commonly aſcribed to Remigius) which is generally added to the Vulgar Latin Bibles, eſpecially to thoſe written about 500 years agoe, or later.

A parchment-Book in small folio; wherein is contained,

The Chronicle of Brute, whose Prologue beginneth with these Words, "In the noble Land of Surrye ther was a noble Kyng & mighty, and a man of gret renom that men called Dioclycian." But the work it self gives the following Exordium, "In the noble Cite of gret Troye, ther was a noble Knyght & myghty, & a man of gret power, that Men called Eneas." This Chronicle ends in the sixth year of our King Henry VI. upon his taking the City of Roan.

In this Exemplar, the last Quaternio, save one, is wanting; which may easily be supplied from other Copies here & elsewhere. It may be noted, that if any hereafter shall endeavour to publish an accurate Edition of this Chronicle, or of the later part of it; he would do well to collate as many Copies as he can any where find, because of the great Differences between them, which will be soon percieved.

A Paper-book in ſmall folio, bought (many years agoe) of Mr. Richard Jones ſince deceaſed. It ſeems to have been written by the hand of one Shirley, and afterwards to have come into the poſſeſſion of Mr. John Stowe the Hiſtorian, & is now imperfect, and otherwiſe damaged. However, it yet contains a great Collection of Ditties (as they were then called) Ballads, & other Poems of John Lidgate the famous Monk of Bury St. Edmund, and of ſome few other Authors, in the following Order.

Beginn. "Al hayle Mary, ful of Grace!"

3. A ſhort Poem upon the Lives of our Kings, from William the Conqueror, to Edward IV. both incluſive. I perceive that Pits will have Lidgate to have died A. D. 1440; and indeed, the Stanza relating to K. Henry VI. looks as if it were written in that Kings proſperity; but then, here is another Stanza added to it, in favour of K. Edward IV. by the ſame hand; and Pits owns that he did receive Information that our Author died A. D. 1482; i. e a little ſooner then the King laſt mentioned.

Beginn. "This mighti William Duke of Normandye." 2. b.

15. Another, applyed to the bleſſed Virgin; whoſe Burden ſeems to have been (for the end is wanting) "Veni coronaberis." 18.

Beginn. "Surge mea Sponſa ſo ſwete in Sighte."

16. The end of a Dite (whoſe beginning is wanting, by reaſon of the loſs of a Leaf) ſeeming to have been a Satire upon the manners of the Times then preſent; whoſe burden is, "Conueyede by Lyne, righte as a Rammeshorn." 20.

33. Le Pleyntefe countre Fortune, with her Anſwers. 46.

Beginn. "This wrechid Worldis tranſmutacioune."

This ſeems to have been tranſlated out of French: and in the Lenvoye our Author complains of his Loſs of Memory by reaſon of old Age; and of the difficulty it then was to compoſe in Engliſh, ſo curiouſly, as they did in France.

34. "A Demawnde by Lydgate ———Whiche of the two, by juſt Compariſoune, Love or Money in valew dothe exceede?"

"In the yere of our Lorde a M. by reckoning, CCCXL. and VII. yere following."

whereas, in the preſent MS, it ſtands thus,

"In the yere ofe God a M. by rekenynge Foure hundrede fifty, and IX. yere folwynge."

Num. 2251.

Here is a difference of 112 yeares, the laſt of which falls in Lidgates time; to whom alſo the Language ſeems more ſuitable. I need not omitt, that at the end of this Copy is a Lenvoy of three Stanzas, which are not in the printed Edition abovementioned.

38. Fabula duorum Mercatorum, de & ſuper geſtis Romanorum. 56.

Beginn. "In Egipt whilom, as I rede & fynde."

This Poem is upon the faſt Friendſhip that was eſtabliſhed between theſe two Merchants, as was between thoſe memorable Friends of Antiquity, Pylades & Orreſtes, or Damon & Pythias. The Fable is plainly taken from the anonymous Monkiſh Tract called Geſta Romanorum; of which, ſeveral written Copies are extant in this noble Library; where the two Friends paſs all along as Knights and not as Merchants.

39. A Ditty or ballad upon Dan Joos a Monk who had long continued to practice particular Devotions toward the Virgin Mary; particularly in reciting certain Pſalms or Hymns remarkable for her name. Whereupon when this Monk died ſuddenly, he was found with a fine red Roſe ſpringing out of his mouth, two others from his Eies, & two more from his Ears: with the name "MARIA ful fayre i-graven" vpon them, "in lettris of bournede Golde." 71. b.

This is the Prioreſſes Prologue & Tale in Chaucer; and in our preſent MS. the laſt Stanza is purpoſely omitted.

41. Two Stanzas exciting to the Love of St. Anne mother to the bleſſed Virgin. 77. b.

Beginn. "He that intendithe in his Herte to ſeke."

The Author promiſeth "a devoute Oreyſon in honour of hir oonly;" but it is omitted.

105. Cautions for Youth to beware of deceitful Women. 154. b.
Beginn. "Loke wele aboute, ye that Lovers be."

At the end of this Poem, the Copiſte mentioneth Dane Johan Lydegate as the Author: yet this is printed as Chaucer's, in the laſt Edition at pag. 558.

106. A Ballad of good Counſell, 156.
Beginn. "Conſidre wele withe euery Circumſtaunce."

This is printed (with Lidgates name as the Author) in the fore-mentioned Edition of Chaucers Works, at pag. 549. and furniſheth us with a Stanza more than is here printed.

107. A Tranſlation of four Latin Diſtichs, ſetting forth the general Degeneracy of Mankind, and Diſſolution of Manners. 158.
Beginn. "Yifte is made Domes man."
108. Querela Senis, (Aſcribed to Henry Scogan, in the laſt Edition of Chaucer, at pag. 546.) 158. b.

Num. 2251.

Beginn. "My noble Sones and eke my Lordis dere."

Here the Author inciteth them to the practice of Virtue in their Youth; and quoteth Chaucer more than once.

109. A Ditty tranſlated from the French of John .... by our John Lidgate (vid. fol. 172.) and inſcribed to Margaret Queen of K. Henry VI. as it ſeems. It is grounded upon many Latin ſcriptural and other Sentences. 161. b.
Beginn. "The tyme approchede, ofe Neceſſite."
110. A Ditty upon Prudence, Juſtice, Temperance, &c. 173.
Beginn. "By Sapience tempre thy Corage."
111. A ſhort Ditty entituled Cato in minori; written for one of our Tranſlators Scholars. 174.
Beginn. "Whanne I aduerte to my Remembraunce."
112. A larger, entituled, Liber magni Catonis. 175.
Beginn. "For thate God is, inwardly the Wite."

Perhaps this may have been tranſlated for the uſe of the ſame Perſon.

115. The two firſt Stanzas of a moral Poem tranſlated from Latin, as thoſe above. ibid.
Beginn. "No (leg. Lo.) whate Wighte thate liſtithe hym for to rede."

Now after a great Chaſm; follow,

116. A Poem explaining the Office of the Maſs; which Pitſeus entituleth De audienda Miſſa. 204.
Beginn. "Ye thate bethe ofe goode Deuocyoune."

At the end is this ſhorte Note, "Explicit quod Lidegate; Amen."

117. The Treatiſe De Regimine Principum, or Secretum Secretorum, commonly aſcribed to Ariſtotle. 214. b.
Beginn. "God almyghti ſave & conferme oure Kynge."

This Work was of mighty repute in days of yore; and is pretended to have been tranſlated out of Greek into Arabic or Chaldee, by one John a Spaniard; & from thence into Latin, by Philipp a Frenchman; & ſo into Engliſh Verſe (with many Interpolations & Omiſſions) by Lidgate, at the Requeſt of K. Edward IV. as it may ſeem; becauſe Dan John lived not to finiſh his Taſk. This appears by a Marginal Note which I find at fol. 236. in the Words following, "Here deyde the Tranſlatour, a noble Poete Dane Johne Lydgate; and his followere gan his Prologe in this wiſe; per Benedictum Burghe. This Prologue to the Continuation do's thus"

Beginn. "Where Flowre ofe Knyghthode the Batel dothe refuce."

Pitſeus maketh no mention of this Continuator; but (according to his Cuſtom) ſplitteth this Treatiſe into two.

118. Proceſſioune of Corpus Criſti, by Lydgate, 250. b.

119. Examples of Kings and Princes unfortunate. 254.
Beginn. "Beholde this grete Prynce Edward the Secunde."

This ſeems to be unfiniſhed.

Num. 2251.

plainly of the hand-writing of Mr. John Stow the Annaliſt)

255.

Beginn. " In June when Titan was in Crabbes hede."

This is alſo imperfect, as appeareth by the Tranſcribers Note, " Of this Balade, Dan Johan Lydgate made no more."

121. A Ditty to the bleſſed Virgin. 260. b.

Beginn. " Be gladde Mayde, Moder of Jheſu."

122. Another, to our Lord Jeſus 261. b.

126. A Ballad, or Fable, of two Beaſts called Bycorne & Chichevache; whereof, that was monſtrouſly fat, as eating up all Huſbands who were tractable & complacent to their Wives: & this was poor and lean, being aſſigned to live upon nothing but patient and obedient Wives; of which ſort, but one had been found in many year's time.

270. b.

Beginn. " O prudente folkes, takithe Heede."

127. A Ditty upon the unhappineſs & inſtability of all worldly affairs. 272. b.

Beginn. " Lyfte vp the ieen ofe your aduertence."

The Author (who ſeems to be Lidgate) mentions the unfortunate ends of our King Henry V. & other Engliſh: and ſaith that he took his Refreyde, or Burden from his Mayſter Chaucier, " who wrote ful yore agoo;" which Burden is, " How this World is a Thurgh-fare ful ofe Woo."

128. A Ballad accompanying an Eagle preſented to our King Henry V. & his Queen, on the Day of their Eſpouſals. 275. b.

Beginn. " This hardy Fowle, this Bridde victorious."

129. Complaint of a Lady who had ſettled her inviolable Affection upon a noble Knight, with whom ſhe had been bred-up; but he knew not of it. 276. b.

132. A Paraphraſtical Tranſlation of Seaven of Iſopes Fabules. 283.

Beginn. " Wyſdom is more of pris than Golde in Coffres."

That this is Dan John's Work, is plain from the laſt Verſe ſave one in this page, where he ſaith " I was born in Lydegate." It may be alſo noted, that fol. 287 being wanting, Mr. John Stowe abovementioned, hath added the firſt five Verſes that were therein to the bottom of fol. 286. b. and omitted in the reſt; unleſs they were inſerted in a looſe Paper now loſt.

133. A Complaint to an empty Purſe. 298.

Num. 2251, 2252.

Beginn. " To yow, my Purſe, and to non other Wighte."

The three firſt Stanzas of this Poem are aſcribed to Chaucer (I believe rightly) and, as his, are printed in pag. 549. of the laſt Edition of his Works. But in the preſent MS. here are no leſs than 20 Stanzas more, upon another and greater ſubject of Complaint; in my poor Opinion, much more ſuitable to Chaucer's circumſtances in the latter time of his Life than thoſe of Lydgate. For here the Poet complains of the mutability of Fortune; the Loſs of his Wealth; his being kept poor in Priſon upon falſe Accuſations; the baſeneſs of his pretended Friends, not one of whom now gave him the leaſt Relief, in his Diſtreſs, or had made him any Viſit, though they all adored him in his Proſperity, while he could do them good Turns; with his want of proſpect of ever getting out: He therefore prepares himſelf to die, and implores the Aid of Jeſus Chriſt and his Mother.

134. For this reaſon I account this as a freſh Poem of that great Man Geffrey Chaucer; and as thus, 298.

Beginning,

" Allas! Fortune, alas! whate have I gilte,
" In Priſon thus to lye here deſolate."

135. A Ballad, wherein the Author enumerateth many Sorts of Fools; and feigneth a Convent or Fraternity of 63 ſuch. 303.

Beginn. " The Order of Foles, ful yore ago bigonne."

136. The Fable of the Horſe, Gooſe, & Sheep, pleading their reſpective deſerts before the Lion & the Eagle, who ſate as Judges. 306.

Beginn. " Contrauerſies, Plees, and al Diſcorde."

137. The Moralite of the Hors, the Gooſe, & the Sheepe; tranſlated bi Dan Johan Lidgate. 314. b.

Beginn. " Of this Fable conteynethe this Sentence."

138. An Allegorical Poem, chiefly upon the Fall of Adam (imperfect at the end) 316. b.

Beginn. " Alle buſy ſwymmynge in the ſtormy Floode."

Here ſeems to be ſome notable Confuſion; for at fol. 318. &c. the firſt four Stanzas of Chaucers Ballad beginning with " O Merciful, & oo merciable," are inſerted properly, as part of the Poem; which may be Chaucers for ought I now know to the contrary. Whereas what follows in the ſaid Ballad, printed in the laſt Edition of Chaucer, at pag. 556. is a mere Love-Song, foreign to the preceding matter, and beginning thus, " The Cauſe, " at this time, of my Writing."

2252.

This I take to be tranſlated from the French *

* Francois de la Croix-du Maine, in his Bibliotheque of French Writers, ſaith that Chreſtien de Troye, a Poet, born at Troye in Champagne, & who flouriſhed A. D. 1168, compoſed divers Romances in French verſe, as, The Knight of the Sword; Perſeval; The Romance of the Charette, which mentions Lancelot, and was finiſhed by Geoffrey de Ligny, who flouriſhed A. D. 1209; Lancelot du Lac; The Graal; & The Knight of the Lion.

Num. 2252.

Romance of K. Arthur, which ſeemeth to have been invented by the Armorican Britans: and this is to be taken from only one part of that large Work. At the beginning, it is propoſed to treat of the great Adventures of K. Arthur, his Knights of the Round Table, the Sangrayle, &c. but the Work itſelf does not anſwer thereunto. Here, Sir Launcelot du Lake King of Benwike is the principal Hero, & his Intrigues with Q. Gaynoure, K. Arthur's Wife, his refuſal of the Earl of Aſcalots fair Daughter, who died for his Love, & others of his Adventures, are fully related. But toward the end, mention is made of the War which broke-out between Mordreite the Uſurper & K. Arthur, who ſlew each other; and partly concludes with the Repentance of Q. Gaynoure & Sir Lancelot, who having taken upon themſelves the Habit of Religion, ended their Lives in pious manner.

I know not who this Poet was, but gueſs that he lived about the the time of K. Henry vii. and that he might have been a Northern man. He uſeth many Saxon or obſolete Words; and very often delighted himſelf (as did the Author of Piers Plowman) in the Chime of words beginning with the ſame Letter, as (that I may give one example) "For welle the wiſte withouten wene." fol. 117. b. I ſuppoſe he enlarged upon the Story (which was too large before) in that he mentioneth the Tower of London, Syr Lucan de Botellere, &c.

50. An Ænigma, ſeeming to deſcribe mans proneneſs to Sin & Evil, notwithſtanding all his Reſolutions againſt it. 133. c.

Beginn. "Thowghe I be bonde, yette ame I free."

Now follow many Poems compoſed by John Skelton Poet Lanreat to K. Henry viii. vizt.

Beginn. "My name ys Parott a Byrde of Paradyſe."

53. A Poem containing Prognoſtications for the whole enſuing Year, according to the Day of the Week wherein the Calends of January do happen to fall; taken from a book falſely aſcribed to Ezechyel the Prophete. 141.

Beginn. "Ye Men that Wyſdome wylle lerne."

54. The Crafte of Lymnynge, i. e. of illuminating Books. 142.

55. Quis reſurgat ad Malyngnantes? aut quis ſtabit mecum adverſus operantes Iniquitatem? Nemo Domine: being an Invective againſt the Clergy of all ſorts and degrees; with ſome Strokes, as I take it, againſt Cardinal Wolſey in particular. 147.

Beginn. "Whate can hyt avayle."

The Author of this Libell, ſeveral times calleth himſelf Colyne Clowte: and at the end, I find the following Note, which, I ſuppoſe, was meant for Witt. "Quod Collyne Clowte in opere imperfecto; in opere ſemper perfecto, et in opere pluſquam perfecto." But, a little lower, the true name is ſet down; Quod Scelton yus Lawreatus, this by John Colyns who made the Collection.

56. Some Latin Verſes of this Skeltons, inaccurately tranſcribed. 153. b.

Beginn. "Colinus Cloutus quanquam mori carmina multis."

Beginn. "In a freſhe mornynge, amonge the Flowrys."

By the Falcon, is meant Queen Anne Boleyne, it being her Device; by the Mountain, England; and by the Lion, K. Henry VIII. to be ſure.

61. A Poem of the Cardinalle Wolſe. 156.

Beginn. "God ſave Kynge Herry owr nobulle Kynge."

This I take to be one of Skelton's ſcurrilous Libells.

62. A Poem, not finiſhed, whoſe Author gives good Advices. ſed vide infra No. 66. 157.

Beginn. "O Mortal Man, by grete Exaltacione."

A parchment Book in ſmall folio, written by ſeveral hands, upon ſeveral Subjects; partly in old French, partly in Latin, and partly in old Engliſh; partly in Verſe, & partly in Proſe; and of whoſe ſeveral Tracts, I ſhall give this following Account.

1. Vitas Patrum. 1.

This is an old French Poem, taken from the Legendary Book ſo called; as that was chiefly collected from St. Hierome & Joannes Caſſianus. This without declaring its Authors name, doth thus Beginn. "En l'onur de damue de le omnipotent,

E de Marie ſa dulce mere enſement,

Num. 2253.

E de tuz Seinz & Seintes communement,

3. A Tract in Proſe, with this Title, "De la paſſioun Jheſu." 33. b.

This is conformable to the Treatiſe commonly called "Pſeudo-Evangelium Nichodemi;" which in days of yore obtained much; and was tranſlated into divers Languages.

4. De S. Johan le Ewangel. 41. b.

Beginn. "Le ſecunt travaus as Criſtiens aprõf Nerun l'Emperur, fud Domicien l'Emperur, qui apres lui regna. E il fiſt amener Sain Johan le Evaungeliſte devant ſei: ſi li demanda, parki conge il feſeit edifier les Egliſes de Effeſie & aillurs, e en qui nun?"

Beginn. "Apres Neron Ceſar eſteient a Rome les dous fidels maiſtres as Criſtiens, Sein Pere e Sant Pol les Apoſtres; par les queles la fei noſtre Seignur Jhu Criſt fut eſhalcie en Rome."

Hitherto, all is written in a round Text Hand; perhaps by ſome religious Perſon; what follows is in an Engliſh Law hand as old as the Reign of K. Edward II. or of his Father.

8. A Song in Praiſe of Women. 49.

Beginn. "Quy a la Dame de Parays deyvent foy e leaute,
Ore entendent a mes Dis vers Femme par man(u) eſte.

De corteyſie ſoit for-banys ou haſtivement ſoit redreſſe.
Quar il pert ſa noreture certes que femme deceit." } a dreyt.

It goes on in this kind of Stanza; including alſo, as many beginning Alphabetically, as then made out the French Alphabet.

9. A Poem, upon the Contention between the Somer & the Winter. 51.

Beginn. "Un graunt Eſtrif oy Vantrer

Of a mody mon Hithe Maximion } Soþ wiþoute Les.
Clerc he was ful god, So moni mon vnderſtod: } Nou herkne hou it wes."

If we may here ſuppoſe that the Poet deſcribes himſelf; he was willing to be thought to have been endowed with all the deſirable Bleſſings of Body, Mind, Eſtate, & Friends; but by living Sixty years too long; he could not but bitterly lament the total Change he now experienced in every particular.

69. A Ditty to the bleſſed Lady, upon our Saviors Paſſion: partly in Engliſh, & partly in French. 83.

Beginn. "Mayden, Moder milde, oiez cel orcyſoun,

Ant Godylt his gode Quene | no feyrore myhte bene.
Ant huere Sone hihte Horn | feyrore child ne myhte be born."

This is a Romance; rude enough, as the Age then was. It feigns how Mury King of Saracens or Pagans, landed ſuddenly in the Kingdome of Suddene, where he ſlew King Alloſ; and Queen Godylt having eſcaped, he putt her Son Horn, (who, afterward, proved the moſt handſome and moſt valiant Knight in the world) into a Galley, with two of his play-fellows; which being driven into the Kingdom of Weſtneſſe, he was found by K. Aylmar, brought to Court, & deliver'd to Athelbrus his Steward to be educated. Here the Princeſs Rymenild fell in Love with him, declares her Paſſion, and is betrothed. Horn, hereupon, leaves her for Seaven years, in order by ſeeking & ending great Adventures, to demonſtrate that he deſerved her; at the end whereof, he having before killed K. Mury, recovered his own Countrey, & done many other great Exploits; regains his Rymenild from the Hands of his treacherous Knight Fykenyld, leads her home, & lives long with her in great Joy & Proſperity.

D'une Purveaunce qe purveu eſt en la Terre.
Mieux valſit vncore que la choſe fuſt a feie,

Herein, the Author ſays, that he ſerved his Lord the King both in Peace & War, in Flanders, Scotland & Gaſcoign; but wanted to return into his own Countrey. He names ſome of the Commiſſioners or Judges (who are not ſo particularly mentioned in every Chronicle) in the follwing Verſes or Rymes,

"Ly Martyn, & ly Knoville ſunt gent de piete,
E prient pur les povres, qu'il eyent ſauvete.
Spigurnel, e Belflour, ſunt gent de cruelte."

The laſt Stanza ſhewes the privacy wherein it was written; in theſe Words,

"Ceſt Rym fuſt fet al Bois, deſouz vn Lorer;
La chaunte Merle, Ruſſinole, a eyre l'Eſperver.
Eſcrit eſtoit en perchemyn per mout remenbrer;

Here, the Author who called himſelf Gawein, or Gaweyn (as, I think he did once before) feigns, that he being, by the perſuaſions of his married Friends) likely to be drawn into the matrimonial Nooſe, with a very lovely Girl to whom he bare the greateſt Affection, was delivered by the Interpoſition of three Angels (I ſuppoſe Authors) named Pieres de Corbloi, Laurence, & Johan En la bouche d'Or.

Here the Poet feigns his new Order to conſiſt of the greateſt People of both Sexes, who lived in Houſes promiſcuouſly; none being excluded but thoſe of low Degree. That they were bound to lead their Lives in all manner of Exceſs & Luxury; fetching ſeveral Points or Articles of their Practice from the Monaſteries of Sympringham in Lincolnſhire, Beverley in Yorkſhire; from the Knights Hoſpitalers, and moſt of the other Religious Orders then ſettled in England; whoſe Lives thereby are plainly carped at.

Beginn. "Aventures e Enſeignment
Fount Solas molt ſovent;
E Solas ſet Releggement,
Ce dit Gwaryn qe ne ment."

This, perhaps, may be but an Epitome; and Claude Fauchet in his Account of this Gwaryn (or Garin as he calls him) gives a different Exordium to this non-ſenſical Performance; whoſe twelfth Line, according to him, varies not much from the fourth of the preſent Copie, being "Ce dit Garin qui pas ne ment." Claude gives this Character of it, "Ceſt un Conte de lourd Menſonge, & dont je fay mention ſeulement pour Monſtrer à quoy de ce temps-la on prenoit; et quelles inventions eſtoyent eſtimées, & plus agreables.

Here the Author taxeth the King with leaving England, upon his own will only, to make War in foreign parts; of oppreſſing his people by levying a Fifteenth, and taxing their Wool, &c. half of the produce of which did not come into his Coffers, but was imbezzeled by the Officers who collected it.

The Advice is peſtilent enough; but at the 8th Stanza it is quite contradicted, and there beginn the "Verba Tranſlator," which make 8 Stanzas more; ſo that the former part only ſeems to have been taken from the Latin.

2. Another upon the mutability of human Affairs. 3. b.

But the late Reverend & Learned Dr. Matthew Hutton, in his more accurate Tables, now preſerved in this Library, ſhewes that Abbat Curteys was not ſo untill A. D. 1429; and that he died not until A. "Fond ther no Clauſis, but Scrowys al to-rent,

32. Another, upon Letabundus, or a Sequence formerly uſed in the Public ſervice, upon the feſtivals of the Virgin Mary, and upon New Years day 120

Beginn. " Grounde take in Vertu by Patriarkys olde."

After the end, is the uſual Note written in the Margin, " Explicit, quod Lidgate."

33. Another upon flyttyng Fortune. 12 6.b.

Beginn. " Toward Aurora, in the monyth ofe Decembre."

The Burden is " Experience ſheweth, The world is varyable."

After the end, is the uſual Note, " Explicit, quod Lydgate."

34. Another, vpon wourldly Mutabilite. 128. b.

Beginn. " So as I lay this othir Nyght."

The Burden is, " Timor Mortis conturbat me."

35. Advices for people to keep a guard over their Tongues. 131 b.

Beginn. " Svm man goth ſtille, of Wyſdam & Reſoun."

The Burden is odd enough,

" Alle goo we ſtille, the Cock hath lowe Shoon."

At the end is the uſual marginal Note, " Explicit, quod Lydgate."

36. A Ditty upon the bleſſed Virgin; wherein, Compariſons taken from the heavenly Jeruſalem, and from its Twelve Gems, are applied to her. 135.

Beginn. " On hooly Hillys, moot famous of Renoun."

The Burden is, " Gloryous thynges be ſeid and ſonge of the."

At the end, is the uſual marginal Note, " Explicit, quod Lydgate."

37. Another, to her Praiſe, applying the ſuppoſed Virtues of Gems unto her; and thrice anagrammatizing upon her Name MARIA. 140.

Beginn. " Heyl vertuous Jaſpe moſt ſtedfaſt, and our Feith."

The Burden is " Ave Jeſſe virgula."

At the end, is the uſual marginal Note, " Explicit, quod Lydgate."

38. Another upon Benedictus Deus in donis ſuis. 142.

Beginn. " God departith his Gyfftis dyverſly."

The Burden for the moſt part, is In al his Gyfftys Lord bleſſyd muſt he be.

And here, at the end, is the uſual marginal Note, " Explicit quod Lydgate."

39. Another, upon Meaſure; in reſpect both of Mediocrity, and of Juſtice. 143. b.

Beginn. " Men wryte of oold, how Meſour is Treſour."

At the end, the uſual Note, " Explicit, quad Lydgate," is ſeen in the Margin.

40. A Paraphraſe upon the Pſalm Deus in nomine tuo (i. e. Pſalm 53 of the Vulgate;) & upon the Gloria Patri. 146. b.

Beginn. " God, in thy name thou make me ſauffe & ſounde."

At the end comes the old Note, " Explicit quod Lydgate."

41. A Ditty upon almighty God's merciful and all-ſufficient help. 148.

Beginn.

Num 2255—2257.

Beginn. " God is myn Helpere, and ay ſhal be."

Here our Author ſhews that he had been a Travellor (I ſuppoſe upon the affairs of his Monaſtery) in this Stanza,

" I have been offte in dyvers Londys,
And in many dyvers Regiouns;
Have eſkapyd fro my Foois hondys
In Citees, Caſtellys and in Touns,
Among Folk ofe ſundry Naciouns
Wente aye forthe, and took noon hede:
I aſkyd no manere Proteccious;
God was myn Helpe, ageyn al Drede."

And at the end, is his Name in this marginal Note, " Explicit, quod Lydgate."

42. Another, upon his feigned Viſion of the everbleſſed Trinity, &c. 150. b.

Beginn. " Undir a Park full prudently pyght;" here the ſubject being grand, ſeveral words do often beginn with the ſame Letter; and the Burden is " Benedicta ſit ſancta Trinitas."

A Leaf being torn out, the end of this, and the beginning of the next Ditty, are wanting. However, without the help of a Note at the Concluſion, I believe that this alſo was of Dan John's Compoſition.

43. The next (as I obſerve juſt now) is imperfect; but is plainly a Prayer to St. Edmund II. King of the Eaſt Angles & Martyr, the tutelar Saint of his Monaſtery & Ban-leuca (or Franchiſe) at Bury; the place where our pious Author was profeſſed and reſided. 152.

The firſt Stanza which now remains, beginneth thus, " Our Helpe our Socour, our Mediatour, moſt cheefe."

And at the end is the uſual Note in the Margin " Explicit, quod Lydgate."

44. The Poets Satyrical deſcription of his Miſtreſs's Perſon. 153. b.

Beginn. " My fayr Lady ſo freſshe. ofe hew."

At the end is the uſual Note, " Explicit, quod Lydgate."

45. The Concluſion of ſome Ditty (not now eaſily to be found out) in three Stanzas. 157.

Beginn. " Put out his Hed lyſt nat for to dare."

Theſe Stanzas plainly ſet forth the Puniſhment inflicted upon thieviſh Millers & Bakers; by putting them not only into the Tumbrell, as of old; but into Wooden Baſtile. as Hudibras ſays; by which, in this place, is not to be underſtood the Stocks, but a Superior & more Conſpicious Machine, Called the Pillory.

Our Author concludes——

" They may cleme, be juſt auctorite,
Upon that Baſtile to make an Ende.
" Explicit quod Lydgate"

2256.

A Book in ſmall folio, written partly upon Paper, and partly upon Parchment (that is, every Quarternio is guarded by Parchment Leaves) wherein is contained,

The old Chronicle commonly called Brute; beginning thus, " In the Nobul Londe of Surre."

It endeth in the 8th Year of K. Henry VI. upon the taking of Johan d'Arc, otherwiſe called La pucelle d'Orleans.

An imperfect Book (for it wants eight Leaves at the beginning, & one at the end;) in large 4to. upon both Paper and Parchment; four Leaves being included in, or guarded by two of Parchment. It contains,

The far greateſt part of an old Latin Dictionary, many of whoſe words are alſo explained in Engliſh. In the inſide of its preſent Cover, the learned Mr. Samuel Knot (who ſometimes wrote himſelf Canutus) hath putt down this Note, " Iſte Liber videtur eſſe Medulla Grammaticæ Galfridi, ſed auctior; et quædam verba omittuntur invicem: but whether it may not better agree with the "Ortus vocabulorum," printed by Wynkyn de Worde, I cannot now ſay, having not the Book at hand to peruſe.

A Book in ſmall folio, written upon Paper, & chiefly relating to our Engliſh Hiſtory; wherein I find,

1. An Alphabetical Table directing to the principal Matters rehearſed in the enſuing Work. 1.

2. The Epiſtle of Pilate to Tibery th'Emperour, concerning our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt; from the Speculum Hiſtoriale of Vincentius Belvacenſis: likewiſe, at the end, Ricardus de Sto. Victore is named, perhaps by Vincentius. 31.

3. A Narration concerning St. Patricke, & his Purgatore: from the ſame Vincentius. 31. b.

4. Of oure Lady Sent Mare Virgynes goynge to Egipte: from the ſeide Vyncent. 32.

5. The Genealogy from Adam to Ciprus, & ſo to the Trojans, &c. 33. b. & 34.

6. The Genology of Sent Kateryne Virgine & Martir. 33. b.

7. Notes from Johne Hardynge touchinge the origin of the Scotts, & their Subjection to England. ibid.

8. The Piſtelle of Corneli, that he wrote out of Greke ynto Latyne, vnto Criſpum Saluſt, of t'Hiſtory ofe Troy wretyne by Dare Friges. 35.

Now follows the main work entituled,

9. A Brevyat ofe the Cronacles of the Ile or Realme ofe Gret Bretayne, nowe callyde Ynglande: tranſlatyde out of Latyne ynto Inglyſhe, out of the Hiſtoryens bokes, St. Gildas the Abbot; Geffrey Monmouthe; Rich. Ciceſtre Monke of Weſtmynſtre; Mathewe Paris, Monke of Sent Albane; & of dyuers other Hiſtoriens: as Hughe Jeneſes, John Hardynge, &c, i. e. another Chronicle cited fol. 96. b. Colman the Chronicler, cited fol. 103. b. Matthew of Weſtminſter, & Sir John Froiſſard.

This Work, after a Deſcription of Britain, pretends to commence with the firſt Inhabitants of it, and ends at the deceaſe of K. Edward III. and is the original of the Author, who lived in the time of K. Henry VIII. altho' ſome few Notes have been inſerted ſince. The Collector is not free from miſtakes; & believed in the legendary Stories then in faſhion; but otherwiſe, collected much good matter. He ſeemeth not to have had John Hardyng by him when he firſt began, but to have made ſupplemental Collections from him afterward. I know not who his Author Hughe Jeneſes was; but do perceive that the Annals of Richard of Chicheſter, as alſo an Abridgement of the ſame, are yet remaining in the Library at Corpus Chriſti-College in Cambridge. The many Vacances left for inſerting of freſh matter ſhew this to be an original book; which yet appears clearer from the following note, written within the firſt ſpare Leaf at the beginning. " Raynolde Mohune Owner hereof by the gifte of John Rewys Lawyer, & borne in the Countye of Cornewalle; who drewe & wrate thys Worke wythe hys owne hande, and brevyatyd owte of dyvers antyke Auctors." Whether this Mr. Rewys (or Reeves) drew down his Annals unto his own time, in another Volume, I have not now opportunity to enquire.

10. The Sur-names of the Perſons of Reputacione that intride into Ingelande wyth William Couqueror. 125. b.

An old Heraldical Book in very ſmall folio, written upon paper, whoſe chief Subject is the Science of Heraldry, as containing,

1. Tabula Expoſicionis Armorum; ſive de Regulis & Differencijs principalibus: that is, a Table of the principal Matters treated of in this Work. 1.

2. Some few Armes promiſcuouſly tricked or colored; rudely, as the performances then were: the Owners names being too too often omitted; which defect renders this Book much leſs valuable than othetwiſe it would have been. 6. b. 7. 10.

Num. 2259.

3. The namys of the chefe Chevtaynes that cam with William Conqueror in to Inglonde. 7. b.

4. The Armes of Derham, quartering Ryveſhall, as I take it, in a large Eſcocheon; with the name Thomas Derham, written in a Scroll above it, by the firſt hand. 10. b.

I do not hence conjecture that Derham made theſe Collections; but that rather that he might have been the owner of them; nor do I, at preſent, find his name as an Officer of Armes.

Now comes,

5. The main Work, ſheweth one main Branch of the Science of Heraldry, touching the art of Blaſoning: being written in Engliſh, or French or Latin. 11.

Beſides this, here are Quotations from the learned Lawyer Bartholus, from Bartholomæus Anglicus, Franciſcus, the Arbre des Battailes of Honore Bonet, Jaques de la Mont, &c. but above all, from the Treatiſe entituled Regula Aurea; which laſt is cited almoſt continually, from fol. 69. to fol. 174.

In this Work, I obſerve as I go along,

6. The Armes of ſome Communities; as of the Grey Friers, or Friers Minors of London. fol. 13. b. Villæ de Wodeſtokke. fol. 14. The trewe Armys, & the olde Armys of the Cyte of London (being, St. Paul holding a naked Sword in his right hand) fol. 62. Of the Synke Ports. fol. 39. And of the Univerſity of Oxford (of which this is the oldeſt Inſtance that I now remember) at fol. 153.

7. Here are alſo ſome Remembrances of Armes antiently ſett-up in ſacred Buildings; which, poſſibly may not now be extant; or the notice of them to be met with elſe-where; as at Bow-Chyrche. fol. 53. Ludgate Chyrche. fol. 75. Godſtowe in Oxforthe-ſhere. fol. 105. Seynte Martine le Graunde. fol. 126. b. Seynt Katerynez at the Tower. fol. 132. Whyte Frers in Flet-ſtrete. fol. 166. Lombard-ſtrete. 70.

8. More might be obſerved about the Armes of particular Families; but I will only mention theſe few; at fol. 135. are the Armes of Harley my noble Lord's Family, but without the name. At fol. 24. I find the Armes of the ancient & noble family of Pawlet or Poulet; where the Swords are of a more antique Faſhion, than thoſe which I have ſeen delineated in Q. Elizabeth's time. At fol. 155. are the Armes of Gorges; now, & long ſince called a Spiral Line; and, as ſuch, delineated by the Herald Painters. Now here, this book ſheweth, that theys Armys were made aftyr a Whyrle-pytte of Water, becauſe of hys name, in Latin Gurges. At fol. 122. are the Armes of Noryce appellé, & of Leyaltone appellawnt. The former were borne with a Dyſſerens, which is a Croſs Patee Fichee. The Appellant's Armes are quarterly; as to which, pleaſe to take this ſhort Account, The Appellaunts Armys were gave hym at o tyme the fyrſt of the Kyngs Gyfte, and the ſecunde of the Duc of Somerſete (Edmund Beaufort) quod nota bene, quia raro videtur. Theſe Armys be nat comendyde, becawſe a Grate that ys ſo comen a thynge, & ſo fowle, is ſette in the Honor, i. e. in the Chief point. So at fol. 81. are theſe Armes, a Quarter baſe, Golde; in a feld Sabylle: with this Note, "Theys Armys be nat comendabylle, but yf (i. e. unleſs) the Metalle ſtoode above."

9. Upon this mention of Metal in Armory, I chuſe to bring out theſe Notes. At fol. 138. is a ſhield thus blaſoned, He berythe Golde. Theys Armys, to bere Golde or Sylver alone, & no more, may be borne welle; and ſuche Armys be & have ben, for ſuche Armys were comyne at the begyninge: and this juſtifies the Axiom, Arma non poſſunt eſſe ſine Metallo. fol. 94. b. In which page another may be found, Quilibet poteſt aſſumere ſibi Signum, ſed non Arma which is explained at fol. 110. by an Eſcocheon adorned with an odd ſort of a Charge, underneath which is this note, "Theys be none Armys, but a marke as Marchawnts vſe. For every mane maye take hyme a Marke, but non Armys, withowte an Herowde or Purcyvawnte." I forbear to mention the ludicrous Charge in the Shield, at fol. 139. b. which the Compiler ſhews to be no Armys, and that þey were neuer geuen for Armys but made for a conceyte, to ſette abovt a Creſte, to make men muſe on hem; and ſic de ſimilibus. It is not too late to add the following note relating to the Axiom abovementioned, Arma non poſſunt eſſe ſine metallo, from fol. 180. "There be ſome in Inglande bere withowte any Metalle, Herowds ſay they take heme of their owyne Autcryte; & ſome ſay, they were gene in olde tyme ex necligencia Haraldy. But, how ſo ever thy came, at thys day they be callyn none Armez; and alſo, they be agayne the Lawe of Armes: but ther be 3 or 4 ſuche Scochonys in Inglande, of olde Date."

10. Here are many more uſeful Notes, and Reſolves upon Heraldical Queſtions of Importance, which I paſs over, as not needful to be inſerted in a ſhort Catalogue: concluding with this Obſervation about our King Richard the ſecond's Supporters, if it be true, as I find it at fol. 76. Kyng Richard the IId. forſoke the two Antloppys for hys Beſts, & toke two whyt Hertys, berying vp the Armys with her bakkys.

In this Heraldical Book I likewiſe find,

11. The Armes aſcribed to the World's Nine Worthies, in blaſon; with a Ballad in their Praiſe. 39. b.

12. Lez Armez de Roy & Seignours d'Engletere plvs aunceyux. 76. b.

13. Lez Armez dez pluis noblez Chivalers d'Engletere. 185. b.

14. At fol. 53. b. is a large Eſcocheon of the Armes borne by Sir James Strangwyſhe Knight, with the blaſon of the ſame, as given (in French) by Garter; which blaſon doth alſo appear at the bottom of the firſt ſpare leaf of the book. And, indeed, it ſeemes to have belonged to that antient & worſhipful family, not long after it was compiled; for higher, in the ſame ſpare Leaf, I yet read "Iſte liber conſtat Ricardo Strangways."

. . . . . After the Table, at fol. 6. the ſame name is added; and again, at folio 190. where the work endeth: which Richard Strangways was no Officer of Armes as I can find. But at fol. 121. b. are "Lez Armez le Roy d'Engletere & Fraunce, & Margarete ſa Compayne," with the following Inſcription above them, "Iſte libellus fuit compilatus A°. 32°. H. VI^ti. and if we take Garter to be the man, John Smert will be him, for he was Garter anno 32 Hen. VI. and had but one Predeceſſor, namely Sir William Bruges; whom he ſeems to mean in the following Inſcription, which he hath prefixed to the whole Work at folio 1. "Penſa, Succeſſor, in tui cordis oraculo de primo Predeceſſore, qui hoc nobile ex pluribus libris aggregatum (ſi dici poſſit) non minus Seipſo predilexit; itaque et pro ejus Doctore, qui quidem in hac Lege, ſuis temporibus, floruit ſine pare."

A parchment Book in a long 4to, wanting divers Leaves at the beginning, and written in old Engliſh verſe: wherein was contained,

An Explanation of the Pater-noſter, with occaſional Diſcourſes or Strictures upon the ſeveral Virtues or Vices which the Author thought Men ſhould pray for, or againſt: tranſlated from the Latin. In the laſt Page are theſe lines.

" At þys tyme I wylle no more ſay
But ze þat haue hird þys, I zou pray þat ze pray for þam olde and zonge, þat turned þys into Englys tonge,
Whare ſo þat þay be, or in what Stede,
Whebere þey Lyue, or þay be Dede, &c."

2. A ſhort Abſtract of that Complaint or Memorial; ſhewing that his Lordſhip was much more inclined to have ſo conſiderable a living as that of Standiſh ſettled in his own family, than upon Mr. Kimbell. 5.

Now followeth a Tract relating to the Company of Weavers of London; comprehending ſeveral particular Papers, whoſe Titles follow in this order, Signed by the Lord Treaſurer Godolphin; and ſealed the 2d day of April, 1707. 2.

3. A Copy (atteſted by W. Wenman) of a Report made to the Lord Treaſurer Godolphin, by Sir Robert Cotton & Sir Thomas Frankland Poſt-maſters General, upon Mr. Dummers Petition to be releaſed of his Contract about the Weſt India Pacquet Boats. dated the 2d of April, 1707. 4.

That Mr. Dummer is Deficient in his Contract with her Majeſty to the Sum of £.5,919:6:7. That when he ſhall have paid in £.855:16::6. received by him for the Freight of Paſſengers; the Deficiency will be £.5,063:10:1. That if, after his Loſſes, He ſhall be rigorouſly tied up to perform his Contract, it would very much tend to ruin him. Yet, notwithſtanding his preſent Diſability, they think it not reaſonable that her Majeſty ſhould take the riſque & hazard of the Loſs of the Boats from the Enemy; or pay the prime Valuationt of thoſe which have been loſt, they having been built of a much greater Burthen; and, conſequently, at greater Expenſe than was contracted for, & with other Views and Deſigns, &c.

4. Copy of a Report from Sir Edward Northey, Attorney General to her Majeſty: dat. 3. Apr. 1707. 6.

5. Copy of the ſaid Butchers Petition to the Queens Majeſty, deſiring to be heard, by their Council, againſt the ſaid Market, before the Grant of it ſhould paſs. 7.

6. Copy of the Petition of the abovementioned Charles Hore & Richard Hore, to the Queen; ſetting forth their Services to the Publick; and, as a recompenſe, deſiring to have the Markets aforeſaid, to be holden in St. Johns Street near Hickes's Hall.

7. Copy of a Report of Sir Simon Harcourt Solicitor General, to the Queen: dat. 8 March, 1706-7. 9.

Setting forth that he had conſidered the ſeveral Allegations of the Hore's Petition, & having acknowledged the Public Services done by them, agrees that the Markets by them prayed for, to be held near Hickes's Hall cannot by Law be granted; becauſe not only that Neighbourhood, but the Seſſions of Peace for Midelſex would be incommoded. But that if the like Markets ſhould be granted to the Petitioners for 40 years, to be held in Vinegar Ground, it would be to nobodys Damage. This was done upon her Majeſties Reference unto him.

8. Tranſlation of Mr. Hores Patent for ſuch Markets to be held on Vinegar Ground, as drawn by Mr. Jeſſop; bearing Teſte 7 Aprilis, anno ſexto Annæ Reginæ. 10.

70. The Titles of the ſeveral Legends formerly contained in the whole Work. pag. ult.

Although the Name of our old Engliſh Poet may at this time be difficult to find out, yet the thing itſelf is of conſiderable value not only upon account of its Rarity; I not remembering to have met with any other Exemplar of it: but alſo for the purity of its Language, its Age conſidered; and the correctneſs of Him who wrote it. Yet theſe good Qualifications were not ſufficient to keep it from being mangled, & filthily ſcribbled-upon, by the Children in the Family of Sanford of Comberſlery in Somerſetſhire, during the Reign of Queen Elizabeth. Theſe ſeem, in their petulancy, to have pretended to write in a ſort of Cyfer. fol. 55. 73. 182. b. 190. 218. where the Secret is only to expreſs the Vowels

A. Velum-Book in large 4to, affirmed to have formerly been poſſeſſed by K. James the Second; but was aſſuredly the Book of K. Henry VI. wherein are contained divers of the Poems of Dan John Lidgate Monk of Bury, illuſtrated by 120 Pictures, ſome bigger, others leſs; beſides other embelliſhments of Illuminated Letters, ſo as to render this the fineſt Manuſcript of our Language written in that Reign; at leaſt, the fineſt of all that I have hitherto ſeen. Theſe Poems are,

1. A Deſcription of one of the Banners feigned by the Poet to have been born by St. Edmund King of the Eaſt-Angles, in his War againſt the Danes: which, the Bard prophecies, would, if uſed by that unfortunate King Henry VI. make him always ſucceſsful. 2.

The Picture repreſenting this Banner gives Adam and Eve about the Tree of Life, as about to eat the forbidden Fruit, reached unto the Woman by the Serpent, who enjoys an human Shape down to the middle. Above is the Holy Lamb within a Golden Circle, & a Glory about his Head, with his right Foot bearing up a Gola Golden Crofs florée fichée: the Red Ground within the faid Circle being powder'd with Crefcents, & without with Stars, all of Gold, as is the Tree itfelf: but the Figures of the Woman, Serpent, & Man, the Apples, & the Lamb, are all of Silver; although the Poet in line 13. calls it "A Lamb of Gold."

2. Another Banner afcribed to St. Edmund (being really the Armes of the great Abbey dedicated to him) of which, our Poet beginns to write thus, in fol. 4.

3. A fmall Service or Office to St. Edmund, confifting only of an Antiphone, Verficle, Refponfe, & Collect, with a Rubric prefixed, in thefe Lines;

To alle men prefent, or in abfence,
Whiche to Seynt Edmund have devocioun,
With hool herte and dew reuerence

Two hundred dayes ys grantid off pardoun,
Write and rgiſtred afforn his hooly Shryne,
Which for our Feyth fuffrede Páſſioun,

Underneath, is the Picture of K. Henry VI. repreſented as a young Child, kneeling upon a Carpet, and praying before St. Edmunds Shrine, which is here delineated, before the Rules of Perſpective were known in England. On one ſide of this Shrine, ſtands two Monks; and behind the King ſtands an Officer holding-up the Sword of State, with three Noble-men, all bare-headed.

4. Lidgates Prologue to his Tranſlation of the Life of St. Edmund, which he began at the command of William (Curteis) his Abbat, in that year when the young King Henry VI. kept his Chriſtmaſs at Burry-Abbey, tarrying there till Eaſter, when he was made a Brother of their Chapitle at his Departure. 6.

Beginn. "The noble Story to putte in remembrance."

Here this young & religious King is repreſented as ſitting on his Throne crowned, and receiving this Book from Abbat Curteis, who preſents it kneeling; near whom a Monk holds another great Book. In the preſence ſtand many Monks, Officers, & Nobles, two of whom (perhaps the Kings Unkles) wear Bonets of a foreign make; and an Officer bears-up the Sword of State. Within the initial Letter is a Shield of the Royal Armes; as the out-ſide is adorned with a Panther ſeiant; which Beaſt was one of his Supporters.

5. Lidgates Prayer to St. Edmund for his Aſſiſtance in making the Tranſlation of his Life. 9.

Beginn "O precious Charboncle of Martirs alle."

Here Dan John is repreſented as praying before St. Edmund's Shrine; about which ſeveral perſons are attendant. When ever his Works ſhall be printed together, this Picture of him may be of uſe; it being the beſt I have hitherto ſeen.

6. Now comes the Hiſtory itſelf, illuſtrated (as I obſerved before) with very many Pictures, compoſed after the old manner; that is, repreſenting, Habits, Weapons, Architecture, Utenſils, &c. according to the Modes & Faſhions then in uſe, when & where the Illuminator lived. It thus, 10. b.

begins. "In Saxonie whilom ther was a Kyng, Callid Alkmond, of excellent nobleſſe."

Num. 2278, 2279.

As to the Author of this Legend, I take him to have been Abbo Floriacenſis, who coming over from beyond Sea, to ſee St. Dunſtan about 3 years before that Saints death, that is, A. D. 985. received it from him, as he being very young, heard a very old man who had been Sword-bearer to St. Edmund relate it to King Æthelſtan, who died A. D. 940. This may be read in my printed Catalogue of Saxon MSS. pag 190. col. 1. where I am deſcribing a Cottonian MS. which formerly belonged to this Abbey, and was not peruſed by Lidgate. Abbo's Legend ſeems to have been incorporated in John of Tinmouth's large work, from whence he might eaſily borrow as many Lives of Engliſh Saints as he would have. Lidgate makes his Saint Edmund (fol. 14. b. 15. b. &c.) to have been a moſt comely man; but Joſcelin de Brakelond a Monk of that Abbey, writes, that when, in the year 1198. Abbat Sampſon made a new Shrine for this Saint (I ſuppoſe inbalmed) & had his Head in his hands,——"Et procedens, tetigit Oculos, et Naſum valde groſſum & valde eminentem," which intimates that he could not have been handſome, whoſe Features were irregular & diſportionate.

Next follows, another Work of our Tranſlator Lidgate, written & illuminated by thoſe who did what went before; with this Latin Rubric prefixed.

7. "Incipit Vita Sancti Fremundi, egregij Martiris Edmundi cariſſimi conſanguinei, qui ejuſdem Martiris interfectores, Domino invitante proſtravit gracioſe; una cum Miraculis Edmundi Martiris antedicti, prout in poſt ſequentibus clarius eluceſcit." 69. b.

Beginn. "Who kan remembre the Myracles merucilous, Whiche Criſt Jheſu liſt for his Seyntes ſhewe."

The main Author of St. Fremunds Life might be that Burchard of Dorcheſter mentioned by Pitts to have been an old Man A. D. 870. Tis extant in Saxon; in Latin it is taken into John of Tinmouth's large Collection of Saints Lives (and conſequently, to be found in Capgrave) and was turned into Hexameter Verſe by William of Croyland. To this Life, Lidgate hath made many Additions of his own, beſides his Legend of St. Edwards Miracles. 118. b.

8. The Tranſlators Lenvoye.

Beginn. "Go litel book, be ferful, quaak for drede
For t'appere in ſo hyhe preſence."

9. Regi. pag. ult. being a concluding Stanza to the King.

Beginn. "Souereyn Lord, pleſe to your goodly heed."

Underneath are theſe Words "Audelay baro," which ſeem to denote a former noble owner of this rich & valuable Manuſctipt.

2279.

A parchment Book in large 4to, well written; wherein I find,

1. Some Engliſh Verſes, where the Book ſpeaks (by a Proſopopoeïa) when it was ſent as a new Years Gift to a Lord; with this Title, "Liber in excuſatione Mittentis, et Defenſione ipſius." At the beginning.

2. The Chronicle commonly called Brute of England. 2.

Beginn. "In the noble lande of Syrrye."

This Exemplar was never finiſhed, but endeth abruptly in the 14th. year of K. Edward III.

3. Copy of an Inſcription found at the end of another Manuſcript of this Chronicle; ſhewing that the ſame was tranſlated from the French, by "Sir John Maundeuyle Perſon of Brunham-Thorpe." At the end. It is remarked that that "Tranſlation doth ſomewhat vary from this."

A Book in 8vo. written by the Hand of a pious Gentlewoman Mrs. Anne Cromwell; who at the beginning hath putt her Name to it, thus, Anna Cromwell 1656; and lower, thus, now Anna Williams 1660.

I making ſome enquiry after her about 5 years agoe, received the following Account from her Huſbands Kinſman Henry Cromwell Eſq; who may be ſtill living for ought I know. "Ann Cromwell was the Wife of Henry Cromwell Eſq; of Ramſy, who was the Son of Coll. Henry Cromwell, the ſon of Sir Oliuer Cromwell, who were, all three, Royaliſts. And in the year 60. Henry Cromwell of Ramſy changed his Name to Williams, being a Courtier: and from thence ſhe wrote her Name Ann Williams. They died without Iſſue; and the Eſtate of Ramſy was ſold to Colonell Titus. Sir Oliuer was the Head of the family: Oliuer the Protector was a Nephew to Sr. Oliuer; Mr. Cromwells father was a Nephew to Sir Oliuer; he (I ſuppoſe means himſelf) has ſeen this Mrs. Ann Williams; ſhe was an excellent Lady."

A Book in 8vo. handſomely bound in red Turkey, gilt & adorned with the Armes of Sir Kenelm Digby on the Cover, & with his Cypher on the back: wherein I find,

1. A Prayer for the Church Catholick. 1.
This ſeems to be written by a female hand; and, as I conjecture from the following Tract, by the Lady Frances Villiers Vice-counteſs of Purbeck.
2. Sir Kenelme Digbies Treatiſe upon this Queſtion, What Faith & Religion is the true one, to bring us to æternall Happineſſe? 4.
This is the Original of his own Hand-writing, written in 3 days; & dated at Paris, 13 Jan. 1636. for the uſe, & gaining over to the Church of Rome of the Lady above-mentioned; who was daughter of Sir Edward Coke Lord Chief Juſtice, & Wife of Sir John Villiers (an elder Brother to George Duke of Buckingham) who was created Viſcount of Purbeck A. D. 1618. In proſecuting this Diſcourſe, Sr. Kenelm ſeems to argue more like a Philoſopher than a Divine; nor doth his Work carry ſuch a Conviction with it as he would pretend.
3. A ſhort Tract written alſo by Sir Kenelm Digby concerning the Operations of the Soule. 94.
4. A Prayer for the King & State. 102.
This ſeems to have been written by a devout Female, of the Romiſh Religion, as appeareth by the Concluſion. She, after lamenting the National Crimes, prayeth for the Reſtauration of K. Charles II.

A Book in 8vo. formerly belonging to one Mr. Edward Beaver; who ſeems, at firſt, to have been preferred in Cambridge-ſhire; afterwards, to have been Parſon of Wickham in Hamſhire; with which Church, he held a Prebend in Chicheſter; and, keeping both theſe, became a Steward or Bayly to the Lord Powerſcourt. Hereinto, at various times, he entered his Accompts, Receipts, & other Memorandums, confuſedly enough; among which, I ſhall mention only theſe few particulars that follow: vizt.

1. Notes taken at Mr. Sherwoods Lecture in Weſtminſter-Abbey, againſt Rebellion. 2. b.

2. Some other ſhort Notes taken at other Sermons. 8.

3. Diagrams of ſome Conſtellations, as they ſtand in the North-Hemiſpheër of Heaven. 9. b.

2315.

A Book in 8vo. containing only two ſhort Tracts, written upon 44 leaves: vizt.

1. Short Memorials of ſome things to be cleared, during my Command in the Army. 1.

This is ſigned at the Beginning & end with the Monogram F; nevertheleſs, I cannot from hence affirm that it is the Original, written by Sir Thomas Fairfaxes hand. Herein, he apologizes for his Actions during his Command over the whole Parliament-Army (denying ſome things done under Color of his Name & Authority) untill his Commiſſion was taken from him.

2. A ſhort Memorial of the Northern Actions, during the Warr there: from the yeare 1642, till 1644. fol. 14. (Written by the ſame hand) and, at the end ſubſcribed F.

I am apt enough to believe, that in this Relation Sir Thomas Fairfax hath ſett-down matters relating to his Father & to Himſelf, impartially; and the rather, in that he writing how his Lady (in the fight between Bradford & Leeds) was taken by that illuſtrious Hero William Cavendiſh then Earl, afterward Duke of Newcaſtle, hath theſe words, fol. 33. "And (not many dayes after) the Earle of Newcaſtle ſent my wife back againe, in his Coach, with ſome Horſe to guard her: the which Generoſity gained more then any Reputation he would haue gott in detaining a Lady Priſoner vpon ſuch terms."

A Book in 8vo. ſeeming to have been written in the time of K. James 1. by ſome Popiſh Prieſt, belonging to ſome of the noble Family of Talbot; as being with other MSS. bought out of the late Duke of Shrewſburies Library. Herein, I find,
1. Notes of the ſix Ages of this World. 1.
2. Notes out of the ould Bible (i. e. old Teſtament. & perhaps, according to the Vulgate, or Doway-Tranſlation.) 2.
Many of theſe Notes are collected as proofs againſt the Doctrine of the Church of England: ſome are collected from St. Auguſtin, &c. and in fol. 2. b. is an Obſervation, becoming a Popiſh Prieſt, upon the Archbiſhops of Canterbury; as in fol. 9. b. is ſuch another about the Kings of England.
3. Like Notes out of the New Teſtament. 19.
Here are more quotations from St. Auguſtin, Ambroſe, Hierom; and fol. 24. b. are the Collectors Notes whereby to know the true Church, i. e. the Church of Rome.
4. A Note of Herreticks, & their ſeuerall Herreſies 41.
Among theſe, are four of modern times; of whom the Collector writeth thus, "Luther, died ſuddänly after feaſting. Swinglius, ſlaine in the warr againſt the Catholiks. Carroloſtadius, ſlaine by the Diuell. Caluine, eaten with wormes."
5. Eccleſiaſtical Ordinances appointed by ſundry Popes. 43.
Among theſe, are mentioned ſome others by S. Jerom, St. Ambroſe, & St. Bonaventure.
6. Falſifcations of Scripture. 45.
Here, the Collector taxeth ſeveralEditions or Tranſlations of the Engliſh Bible; right, or wrong.
7. That the Tolleration of the Stewes, is an allowance of vnchaſt Lyfe, or vnlawfull. 47.
This is a Defence of the Popes, in reference to the licenſed Bordellos at Rome.
8. Notes of the death and Martyrdome of the Apoſtles & others. 49.
9. Hiſtorical Notes out of Hooker alias Vowell, a Proteſtant Cronicler. 50.
Then follows in another hand, more incorrect than the former,
10. A Prayer of ſome young perſon, or Novice; for Grace to prepare himſelfe to receaue the bleſſed Sacrament worthily.

A Book in 8vo. whoſe Cover is adorned with the Badge uſed by Queen Anne Boleyne; and the Inſide written by two hands; where I find,
1. A frughtfull Exhortation to a ſicke Perſon, to prepare againſt his End: made by Docter Willet of Barle, and by him ſent to Sir Arthure Capell in his long ſicknes. 1. b.
2. A Prayer for one that is ſick. 8.
3. Some pious Ejaculations & Prayers to God. 11
4. A Morning-Prayer. 14.
5. A Confeſſion of Sins. 15. b.
6. Devout Meditations. 16. b.
7. A ſhort Catechiſme. 18.
8. Other Eiaculations. 22.
9. The Glory of a Chriſtian. 23.
This is a ſhort Paſſage taken from Boltons Works, about oppoſing the Growth of Sin; and is written (like as the enſuing Treatiſe) in a ſmaller, but more incorrect hand.

Num. 2318—2320.

10. The Linckes of breeding Sin: another Paragraph perhaps from the ſame Author. ibid.

11. A Treatiſe ſetting-forth what happened in the Council ſummoned by K. Philipp III. of Spain, to which Count Gondamar being purpoſely recalled from England, was to make a Report of his Intrigues here. A. Dñi 1618. 24.

I hold this to be a forgery, and to have been minted by a Puritanical Workman. I have ſeen it elſewhere, both in Manuſcript, & in Print.

A thin Book in 8vo. ſeeming to have been copied, incorrectly enough, by ſome Lawyers Clerk, toward the end of King Charles the ſeconds Reign. It is entituled,

"Mrs. Babylons Looking-glaſs: or a breif diſcription of the doings in Satans Sinagoge, otherwiſe called the Church of England, which is mounted upon the Beaſts, and a-goeing with ſpeed in the wide way of Deſtruction: and many clear truths laid togäther worth your Obſervation. Written by a Servant of Chriſt, whoſe name is written in the Book of Life."

The name of this un-worthy Servant of Chriſt doth not appear; but his ſilly performance ſhews him to have been a Quaker, and dwelling not far from Hitchin & Eccleſford: vid. fol. 38. 39. 43. & 44. The Work, ſuch as it is, is all in doggrel Rhymes, as ſcandalous as wicked. He endeavours to ridicule the holy Sacrament of Baptiſm. fol. 32. Epiſcopal Viſitation. fol. 37. Confirmation. fol. 41. Both Univerſities. fol. 44. and our reverend Biſhops & Clergy, almoſt every where. I could be more particular in deſcribing theſe ſcandalous Ballads, but I really think they do not deſerve more Time or Pains.

1. An imperfect Latin Calendar, beginning in May; but yet damaged by moiſture. 1.

In the principal Letter is the Effigies of the Author or Tranſlator, as praying: and his Invocation beginns with theſe Words, "Fader riztful, enformyng rechelneſſe, ech in on, nedefully acceptynge."

3. An Aſtrological Poem, teeching when to buy & ſell; to lett Bloud or Surgery; interpretation of Dreams; when to build; go to Sea; Childrens Fortunes, &c. all from the Day of the Moons Age, if the Author or Tranſlator may be believed. 31.

In the principal Letter, he is repreſented as ſitting at his Study; his Work beginning thus,

"He þat wol herkyn of Wit
þat ys witneſt in holy Wryt,
Lyſtenyth to me a ſtonde,
Of a Stori y ſchal zow telle;
What tyme ys good to byen & to ſylle,
In bok as hyt ys y-fownde."

Henry VI. and Edward IV. ſuch as Lace Baſcon, Lace endented, Lace bordred on boþe ſydes, yn o ſyde, þykke Lace bordred, Lace Condrak, Lace Dawns, Lace Piol, Lace couert, Lace couerte doble, Lace compon couerte, Lace maſkel, Lace cheyne brode, Las Cheueron, Lace oundé, Grene dorge, Lace for Hattys," &c. 52.

2324.

A vellum Book in 12mo. containing a Theological Treatiſe, written in old Engliſh, and entitled "A Lanterne of Litz." It is divided into 13 Chapters, which bear the Titles following,

1. The Prolog, or Introduction. 1. b.
2. Of Appeticioun. 4.
3. What is Anti-Criſt in general; wiþ Six Conditiouns. 5. b.
4. What is Anti-Criſt in ſpecial; with hiſe þre Parties. 13.
5. What is Anti-Criſt in ſpecial; with fiue Condiciouns. 16.

13. What is þe Fendis Chirche; with hir Propurtees. 119. to the end.

The Author was a Lollard, as plainly appeareth in fol. 10. & 94. b. He complaineth of the taking away of the Books of Scripture, then tranſlated into Engliſh, from the Laity, & for puniſhing thoſe who did read or quote the ſame. fol. 17. b. & 93. b. He bitterly inveyeth againſt the Pope as Anti-Criſt; againſt Biſhops, and Clergy both Regular & Secular, and their Officers. As to the Author, from the nature of the Work itſelf; the way of handling it; the ſtyle; & the Authors or Books cited by him; I am of opinion that it might be John Wyclyffe: although I have not now Bale at hand to conſult; and find that he is omitted (as having been an Heretic, forſooth!) by partial Pitts; that Leland mentions but few of his Writings; and even Mr. Hen. Whartons Account of them is ſometimes dubious, and (in the main) imperfect.

A Book

Num. 2325—2327.

2325.

A Book in 12mo. easily known by its remarkably bad Hand, to have been (for the most part) written by John Lord Roberts, afterwards Earl of Radnor & Lord Privy Seal. It contains,

1. Some loose Notes relating to our Parliament, &c. 1. 2. b.

A Book in 12mo. fairly written or transcribed by some Writing-master, as I suppose. It contains, 2330.

A parchment Book in 12mo. written (as I suppose) by one of those people, who were formerly called Lollards. In it are contained the following Tracts,

1. A Tretijs þat Seynt Austin made an Eerl clepid Julian, consisting of 17. Chapters. 1.

Beginn. "A! my dere broþir, if þou coueitist to wite (þouz I wite not) how mooste parfijt & fulleste Riztwisnes is for to love God."

I find not this Treatise in the List of St. Austins works given by Dr. Cave, who indeed mentions that he wrote against Julian the Pelagian, being different from this.

2. þe book of Seynt Austin of Cristin Lijf, to his Sistir a Wydowe. 66. b.

Beginn "þat I Synner, & þe laste, & vnwiser þan oþere, & moore vnlerned þan alle." 66. b.

This Tract is noted in the MSS. to be extant in the ninth Tome of St. Austins Works, at col. 888. of the Basil Edition, as I suppose. But Dr. Cave, seems upon the Authority of Lucas Holstenius, to ascribe it rather to Fastidius a Britan.

3. A Sermoun of Austin; how Man is maad to the Ymage & Likenesse of God his maker, of nouzt. 976.

Num. 2330—2333.

Beginn. " How greet is þe dignyte of Mannus making!"

This is alſo noted to be extant in the 9th Tome of St. Auguſtins Works. at col. 1178.

4. The XII Abuſiouns or Miſ-uſis, as reherſiþ Seint Auſtyn. 100. b.

Beginn. " þe firſte Abuſioun is a Wiſe Man without gode Werkis."

Some aſcribe this Treatiſe to St. Cyprian, as well as to St. Auguſtin; and it is printed by Sr. James Ware under the Name of St. Patrick of Ireland.

2331.

A thin Book in 12mo. beginning at either end; wherein are entered,

Particular Phraſes or Expreſſions obſerved in reading the Works of Corn. Tacitus the Roman Hiſtorian explained in Engliſh.

It is not unlikely but that this Reading of Tacitus might have been made to the great William Cavendiſh Duke of Newcaſtle in his younger Years, by ſome one of his Governors or Tutors.

A vellum Book in 12mo. by its former Owner the late Dr. John Covell, called an Almanack; and by him thought to have been written in the beginning of King Henry the ivth's Reign. It contains.

2. Another Table, wherein the Dominical Letter is expreſſed by A. 13. b.

3. Tables of the Solar Eclipſes, which (I ſuppoſe) were to happen; beginning with A. D. 1411. 14. b.

Here the Names of the Months are not written but expreſſed by rude Symbols.

5. Part of an Aſtronomical Diagram; where the Zodiacal Signs, & Months, are expreſſed by the Authors, or Workmans rude Symbols. 17. b.

6. A rude Sketch of a naked Man ſtanding, and affected in the proper parts by the ſeveral Signs of the Zodiac, expreſſed by Symbolical figures. 18.

7. Tabula ad ſciendum in quo Signo fuerit Luna omni die. 18. b.

This is expreſſed in like Symbols.

8. Another, perhaps, hinting at the Labors of the Year, & the lucky or unlucky Days for them. 19. b.

9. Rude Heads of our Kings from the Conqueror to Richard II. both included, with the number of years that each of them reigned. 21.

10. A Table, as it ſeemeth to me, for calculation of the Prices of Bread, or of Bread-Corn. 21. b.

Then followeth, in a newer hand,

11. The Statwete of Wencheſter, touching the Syſe of Bred, of what Grayn of Corne ſo euer that it be. 22.

Laſtly, cometh, by the firſt hand,

12. A Diagram for calculating the Moons Motion, as I take it. 23. b.

2333.

A paper Book in 12mo. written as I ſuppoſe, by one of thoſe Friers who, in times of Popery, uſed to inveigle people to ſaunter, & ſquander away their time & money in unneceſſary Voiages to Jeruſalem; leaving theſe Thieves behind with the Government of their Wives, Families, & Eſtates; to their great Loſs, if not Deſtruction. This is imperfect at the end; but Mr Knott (or Canutus, as he calls himſelf) writes that it is extant in Paratu Sermonum de Sanctis, in feſto Exalt. S. Crucis, paucis mutatis.

A parchment Book in 16to. from the beginning of the Prologue commonly called "The Poor Caitif," and by Mr. Henry Wharton, under the Title of Pauper Ruſticus, is aſcribed to John Wyclyffe. The Tracts herein contained are not altogether in the ſame Order with thoſe deſcribed in the M. S. No. 2322. which wanteth the Prologue (in like manner as ſeveral other Copies do) which in this Manuſcript doth thus beginn, "This Tretis compilid of a Pore Caitif, & nedi of gōoſtly Help of all Chriſten Pepele." The Work is here diſtributed into the following Tracts, vizt.

1. An Explication of the Bileue. 1. b.

Beginn. "The Ground of al Goodneſſe is ſtedfaſt feiþ oþur Bileeue."

2. A Comment on þe ten Heſtis. 13. b.

Beginn. "A man aſkide of Criſt what he ſhulde do, for to haue þe Lijf þat euere ſhal laſte."

3. Another on þe Pater noſter. 50. b.

Beginn. "Criſt ſeiþ, who þat loueþ him ſhal kepe his Commaundementis."

4. The Councel off Criſt. 63. b.

Beginn. "Criſt not compellynge, but freli counſelynge ech man to perfit Lijf."

5. Of vertuous Pacience. 66.

Beginn. "But who þat is verily fed with þat Breed þat cam doun fro Heuene."

6. Of Temptacioun. 68.

Beginn. "Whanne þou art temptid eþer troublid."

7. þe Chartir of Heuene. 69.

Beginn. "Everi Wiſe man þat cleymeþ his Eritage."

8. Armer of Heuene. 74.

Beginn. "Almyzti God ſeiþ bi hooli Job."

9. þe Name of Iheſu. 80. b.

Beginn. "Whoſo euere þou be þat araieſt þee for to loue God."

10. Off Mekeneſſe. 87.

Beginn. "To ony Degree of verri Love of Jheſu, mai no Soule atteyne, but if he be verili Meke."

11. Of Mannes Wil. 89.

Beginn. "Everi dede periſable eþer repreuable of Mannes Will."

12. Of actijf Lijf. 90. b.

Beginn. "Criſt louede moche Marie & Martha hir Siſter." This treateth alſo of contemplatif Lijf.

13. Of Chaſtite. 92. b.

Beginn Prolog. "I write þis Tretis in fine ſhort Chapitris, to hem þat wolen lyue Chaaſt."

Beginning of the Tract. "This Myrrour of Maidens loke ye þerinne, as follower of the mekeſt Maide."

In this Tract are 3 or 4 Legendary Stories related; the author (as it plainly appeareth) living in a ſtrict Communion with the Roman Church, when he wrote it. This, however, did not hinder Mr. Wharton from branding what he meant well, with the following Cenſure, "Speculum Caſtitatis; quod putidiſſimus fabulis repletum, Wicfeſo cum primis indignum videtur."

2336.

A parchment Book in 16to. containing another Copie of "The Pore Catif;" wherein ſome of the Tracts do not follow in the ſame Order as in the preceding Copy, and ſome have not the ſame Titles. v. gr.

1. The 4th Tract above, hath here the Title off "Perfit Lijf."

Num. 2336—2338.

2. The 5th is here entituled (perhaps erroneouſly) "Off Temptacioun." 82.

3. The 7th is here called "þe Chartre of eure heuenli Eritage." 86.

4. The 8th is here ſtyled "Off gooſtli Batel." 93.

5. The 9th is here ſaid "To loue God, or Jheſu." 102. b. and the 10th is as a part of it.

6. The Title of the 12th is only of "Contemplatif Lijf." 116.

7. At the end is a remarkable Note or Inſcription, which I ſhall not grudge to putt down here, although ſuch matters are not the buſineſs of this Catalogue: "This book was maad of þe goodis of John Gamalin for a comyn profite; þat þat perſoone þat haþ þis book committid to him, of þe perſoone þat haþ power to committe it, haue the uſs þereof þe terme of his Lijf; preiynge for þe ſoule of þe ſame John. And þat he þat haþ þis forſeid uſs of commiſſioun, whan he occupieþ it not; leene he it for a tyme to ſum oþer perſoone. Alſo þat þat perſoone to whom it was committid for þe teerme of lijf; vndir þe forſeid condiciouns deliuere he to anoþer, þe teerme of his lijf. And ſo be it delyuered & committid fro perſoone to perſoone, man or womman as longe as þe book enduriþ."

8. I muſt not conceal another Note which I find in a ſpare Page at the beginning, "Dixit Epiſcopus Ciceſtrenſis quod Frater Minor compilavit hunc librum in ſuo Defenſorio." I doubt not but that this Biſhop of Chicheſter was Reginald Pecok; who was thought to favor the Lollards, and was openly perſecuted & deprived, as guilty of Hereſy.

A Book in 20mo. deſigned for the Pocket; wherein are noted-down,

1. Many excellent Rules & Obſervations neceſſary to be putt in Practice by him who would endeavour to become eminent or excellent in the buſineſs of a Pourtrait Painter; indigeſted as to methodical Order, and ſo incorrectly, as that I doubt whether it were not a Copy too haſtily tranſcribed by ſome Face-Painter's Apprentice.

Herein, Vandyck, Dobſon, Wilſon, Watſon, Fuller, & the Authors Maſter are mentioned; & moſtly with applauſe. The Author repeats many of his Maſters Leſſons; whom alſo, in ſome reſpects, he compares with Titian; and indeed, ſeems to have taken almoſt the whole from his Inſtructions. Among other things, he relates how juſtly his maſter found fault with Old Faithorns Print of Mr. Stanley prefixed to his Lives of the Philoſophers, which came out (if I miſtake not) A. D. 1655. By this and by the Flemiſh terms of Stett and Stetting, I am apt to conjecture that Sir Peter Lely was the Maſter, & Mr. Ryley the Diſciple; and the Handwriting, a running Secretary, was in common uſe in the Reign of K. Charles II.

2. A Medicine to draw Milke out of a Womans Breaſts, that is newly brought to Bed.

At the other end, I find

3. Some few Aphoriſms, in Morality, & Painting.

4. A Sketch, with a Pen, of a Man's Head; perhaps from that of Sir William Dugdale before his Warwickſhire.

A parchment Book in 16to. rudely illuminated, wherein is contained,

1. An Old Engliſh Poem upon our Bleſſed Saviors celebrating the Paſſover with his Diſciples, his Paſſion, Death, Burial, & Reſurrection.

Beginn. "Cum eſſet plenitudo temporis, miſit Deus Filium ſuum factum.
Comyng þe gret tyme of Mercy,
Whan þe Fadir ſent his Sone from on hyz.

Num. 2338, 2339.

Off a Mayden he wolde be born.
To ſaue Man-kynde þat was for-lorn."

2. Prophetia Regis Anglie. pag. ult.
This is ſilly and imperfect, beginning thus,
" Whanne M.CCCCC. togidir be knet
And XXX. & VI. with hem are met,
As Merlyn ſayth in þe ſtory of Britayn,
Of Kyng Hary of Ynglond certayn."

At the end of the main Poem, (pag. penult.) is the following Note written by a later hand, " Finis Paſſionis Chriſti, auctore Thoma Breus, 1422." which ſeems to be a miſtake, and perhaps a wilful one. For the Name Thomas Breus which appears in the firſt Page, written in large Text-Letters of Red and Black Ink, is of the very ſame Inks that the whole book is written with, and that (as we ſee above) maketh mention of the year 1536: ſo that 'tis much more likely that this Breus was only the poſſeſſor of it.

A parchment Book in 2omo. not ill written; and conſiſting altogether of Theological matters, divers whereof are Tranſlations from the Latin. They are here putt-down in the following Order,

This wants the firſt Leaf, which (without doubt) was torne-out for the ſake of the Illumination.

2. An Oriſoun (or Prayer, from " Oratio") in mynd (i. e. Memory) of Jheſu Criſtis Paſſioun. 2.

3. An Oriſoun made by Seynt Auſtyn þe Doctour, (i. e. Bp. of Hippo.) 3.

Beginn. " Domine Jhu Xpe qui hunc Mundum." &c.

I am apt to conjecture that theſe ſeveral Paragraphs make but one Tract.

18. A profitable Mirrour for ſynful Men & Wymen to biholde ynne. 49.

Beginn. " For þat we ben in þe weye of þis failynge Lijf."

Num. 2339—2341.

At the end, this Tract is called þe Myrrour of Synners; and, perhaps may be that which Dr. Cave (or rather Mr. Wharton) aſcribes to John Wyclyffe, Hiſt. Litt. pag. 54. App.

19. A Tretis of þre Arowis þat ſchulen be ſchot on Domeſday to hem þat þere ſchulen be dampned. 62. b.

Beginn. " Whoſo wole have in mynde þe dredful Day of Doom."

This Tract is alſo aſcribed to John Wyclyffe, in the place above cited.

35. A Prayer of the faythful perſon in Adverſite. 143.

I will not affirm that this Manual was written by the Direction of Edward Seymour Duke of Somerſet & Protector of England, upon his firſt Committment to the Tower of London, and that the laſt five Prayers were added after his ſecond Committment, which ended in his Execution. But if this were ſo, 'tis eaſy to apprehend how it might come into the hands of that noble but unfortunate Lady, the Lady Jane Grey: whoſe Marriage with the Lord Guilford Dudley, fourth ſon to the ambitious Duke of Northumberland coſt them all their Lives. But that this Book was in the Lady Janes hands or

Num. 2342, 2343.

or poſſeſſion, and was alſo looked into by her Huſband, appears by the 3 following Notes, written in the lower Margins.

36. "Your louyng and obedyent ſon wiſchethe vnto your Grace long lyfe in this world, with as muche joy & comforte, as euer I wyſhte to my ſelfe; and in the world to come joy euerlaſting. Your moſt humble ſon tæl his Dethe G. Duddeley." 59. b.

37. "Foraſmuche as you have deſired ſo ſimple a woman to wrighte in ſo worthy a booke, gode Mayſter Lieuftenante, therefore, I ſhalle, as a frende deſyre you, and as a Chriſtian require you, to call vpyon God, to encline youre harte to his lawes, to quicken you in his waye, and not to take the worde of trewethe vtterlye oute of youre mouthe. Lyue ſtyll to dye, that by deathe you may purchaſe eternall life; and remembre howe the ende of Mathuſael, whoe as we reade in the ſcriptures, was the longeſte liuer that was of a manne, died at the laſte. For, as the Precher ſayethe, there is a tyme to be borne, and a tyme to dye; and the daye of Deathe is better than the daye of oure birthe. Youres as the Lorde knowethe as a frende. Jane Duddeley." 74. b.

The Gentleman this was written for, ſeems to have been Sir John Gage Lieutenant of the Tower of London, when ſhe was priſoner therein.

38. "The Lorde comforte your Grace, and that in his worde whearein alle creatures onlye are to be comforted. And thoughe it hath pleaſed God to take awaye 2 of your children: yet thincke not, I moſt humblye beſeche youre Grace, that you haue loſte them; but truſte that we by leaſinge this mortall life, haue wunne an immortal Life. And I, for my parte, as I haue honoured youre Grace in this life, wyll praye for you in another Life. Your Gracys humble daughter Jane Duddeley."

None of theſe 3 Notes or Epiſtles are mentioned by any of our Hiſtorians, that I now remember.

A Book in 4to. written upon parchment, wherein is contained, a good Copy of

1. þe boke of Pyris Plowman. 1.

Beginn. "In a Somer ſeyſone, whan ſofte was þe Sonne."

At the end, is this Note, "Hic explicit Viſio Wilelmi de Petro Plowman." Now among the ſeveral perſons to whom the Poems of Piers Plowman have been aſcribed, I remember not any William; ſo that if Geffrey Chaucer was the man, he diſguiſed his name for fear of the Clergy, who are bitterly inveighed againſt in these Poems. And to ſhew that the preceding Note, and another that will

A parchment Book in 4to. imperfect at both ends; many alſo of whoſe Leaves are tranſpoſed through the Ignorance of its former owner. It contained a Theological Poem, divided into Seven parts, the Authors matter being collected from ſundry books of Scripture, Fathers, &c. Who he was I know not; but he quotes Bartholomæus de Proprietatibus Rerum, in foll. 1. & 44. which writer flouriſhed, A. D. 1360. that is, not long before this Copie was writt.

What remaineth, beginns towards the Concluſion of the

1. Second Part, which treated of the Worldes Vnſtabulnes. &c. 1.

2. þe þridde part of this Boke, þat ſpekeþ of Deþ. 2.
Beginn. "þe Deþe is moſt dredful þing þat es."

3. þe ferþe part, þat ſpekeþ alof Purgatorye. 16.
Beginn. "Firſt whan God wolde make alle þinge."

4. þe fyft part; þat is, of þe day of Dome, and of þe Tokenes þat byfore ſhul come. 34. b.
Beginn. "þe fyſt part is of the Day of Dome."

Here, the Leaves being tranſpoſed, the Reader muſt turn-over to fol. 67.

5. þe ſexþ part; þat is of þe peynes of Helle. 99. b.
Beginn. "Many man here ſpeketh of Helle."

Here, when the Reader is gotten to the end, he muſt turn back to fol. 35.

6. þe ſeuenth party of the blys of Heuene. 43.
Beginn. "Many men þe blys of Heuene coueytes."

Thus this imperfect Work endeth after fol. 66. and by another imperfect Copy here, as well as by Mr. Wharton's Appendix to Dr. Cave, Pitts, &c. appears to be Richard Hampoles Prikke of Conſcience.

The Author of this Work (whoſe firſt part conſiſts of 93 Chapters, as the ſecond does of 46) does appear to be Walter Hilton the devout Canon of Thurgarton in Notinghamſhire; and it hath been divers times printed. Among the MSS. of it (as may eaſily be perceived in looking into thoſe extant in this noble Library) are vaſt differences in the Readings, as there is alſo in the Title; eſpecially if the Scala Perfectionis, Liber Contemplacionis, De Vita Contemplativa, & De Arte bene vivendi, which are all aſcribed to this Author, ſhould prove to be the ſame book. (It is alſo called the Reforming of Mannys Soule.) vid. 100. C. 27.

A Book in 4to. written partly upon Parchment, but moſtly upon Paper; wherein is contained, Geffrey Chaucers Poem of Troilus & Creſſeida.

2393.

A paper Book in 4to. conſiſting of two Treatiſes only; vizt.

1. A Poem Hiſtorical, Political, & Moral; imperfect at the end, as wanting all after the 352 Stanza. Its main ſubject is the unfortunate Reign of King Edward II. whoſe Ghoſt is introduced as relating his Actions & Diſaſters. It is written to Queen Elizabeth, as plainly appears in ſeveral places, particularly by theſe Stanzas, 9, 242, 243, & 305, where ſhe is named.

The Work ſeemeth to bear the Title of Edward the Second; and beginneth thus,

" Whie ſhould a waſted Spirit ſpent in Woe
Diſcloze the Woundes receyv'd within his Breſt?
Is't not ynowgh that Fortune proves his Foe,
In whoſe ſad Frownes is foullded his Un-reſt?
Is't not ynough to knowe himſelfe diſtreſt?
Oh noe! ſurcharged Hartes muſt needs complayn;
Some Eaz it is, though ſmall, to tell our Payn."

2. The ſame Poem reviſed & corrected by many Alterations, Additions, & Omiſſions; being now fitted-up for the peruſal of King James I, as may appear by the Stanzas, 6, 259, 260, 326, &c. and, in the whole, conſiſts of 581 Stanzas, as does another Copie of it in this noble Library, now inſcribed 40 D. 8. The Author, at the end, calls himſelf Infortunio; and, perhaps, might have been Mr. Edmund Spenſer, who is ſaid to have lived long, & to have died in very low circumſtances. This reviſed Copie beginns,

" I ſinge thy ſad Diſaſter, (fatal King Carnarvan-Edward) ſecond of that Name:
Thy Mynions Pryde; thy States ill mannageing;
Thie Peeres Revolt; the Sequell of the ſame.
Thy Life, thy Death, I ſing; thy Sinne, thy Shame;
And how thou wert deprived of thy Crowne;
In higheſt Fortunes caſt, by Fortune, downe."

Num. 2393—2395.

2394.

A paper Book in 4to. (not altogether deſtitute of parchment-leaves) much corroded at the beginning, by Mice or Rats; wherein is contained,

An old Theological Poem in the Northern Engliſh Dialect, divided into 7 parts; imperfect at the beginning; and renewed at the end, by a later & modern hand.

This I take to be Richard Rolle the Hermit of Hampole's " Stimulus Conſcientiæ," or " Prykke of Conſcience;" of which there are other Copies, with his Name to them, in the Libraries of both our Univerſities; not to mention here what is ſaid of it by Mr. Wharton, Pitts, & others.

Toward the end of the Prologue are theſe Lines,

" It pryks here Conſciens within,
And of þat may a Luf begyn."

Horæ beatæ Virginis, cum calendario, vigiliis mortuorum, commendationibus animarum, &c. Codex membranaceus in folio minore. xv.

In the firſt ſpare leaf of this Manuſcript is the following note, in the hand-writing of Mr. Aſhmole to whom it once belonged. " Memorandm. One of the moſt richly illuminated & adorned I ever ſaw, with between 30 & 40 pictures, among which are Becket's death & buryal."

This however is by no means a proof of the writer's ſkill in the comparative merit of the paintings in theſe ſervice books.

The preſent manuſcript is handſomely, and rather ſplendidly illuminated; but, the paintings, with reſpect to deſign, belong to an inferior claſs. It is rather extraordinary that Mr. Aſhmole ſhould not have noticed in fol. 54. the portraits of John Duke of Bedford, to whom the book probably belonged, and his wife, both kneeling before the figure of their patron St. George, who is repreſented as killing the dragon. The Duke's mantle is ſurcharged with his creſt of an ermined lion. Theſe portraits are certainly executed in a very bad ſtile, but they ſufficiently diſplay the artiſt's intention.

On fol. 55. is a repreſentation of the Murder of Becket as alluded to by Mr. Aſhmole; but as to his burial, the paintings in fol. 128. & 176. are no other than the uſual ſubjects that accompany the ſervice of the dead in moſt of theſe hours. With the former of theſe illuminations is the uſual hymn addreſſed to Becket, beginning,

" Gaude lux Londoniarum,
Thoma tutor animarum,
Dei providencia:
Natus matre martis die,
Sequens vitam vere vie,
Speciali gratia."

This, as uſual with whatever relates to the Canterbury Saint, is obliterated with a pen & ink.
